VERA CRUZ, Sept. 22.—Capt. Christy of the United States scout cruiser Salem yesterday prevented sixteen Mexican political fugitives from falling into the hands of the Constitutionalists at Progreso. The fugitives were passengers on the Ward Line steamer Esperanza, bound for New York.

Fearing that an attempt would be made to remove the Mexicans in spite of the fact that the Esperanza cleared from Vera Cruz, which is temporarily an America port, and was scheduled to touch at Progreso only incidentally, Rear Admiral Beatty sent the Salem to convoy the liner. Mexicans appeared alongside the Esperanza soon after she came to anchor in Progreso, and her Captain signaled the Salem. The Esperanza and the Salem then moved together. The Salem took the fugitives aboard and sailed away with them, bound for Havana.

Plans for Vera Cruz.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 22.—Col. Edmundo Martinez, representing Gen. Aguilar to negotiate the transfer of Vera Cruz, made this statement today:

"There will doubtless be some confiscation of property in Vera Cruz when it is taken over, but Gen. Aguilar will not permit looting. While some persons may be executed, these will not take place until after they are tried by officers whom Gen. Aguilar will appoint for that purpose."

He further admitted that restrictions would be put on the Church, only a certain number of priests to be allowed in Vera Cruz as such, although they will be permitted to seek other "employment." It is stated that nuns will not be tolerated, and they also are required to leave the country or seek employment. The statement adds:

"They can sew, embroider, and do many other useful things rather than live off the superstitions of the people."

In the interview Col. Martinez said the majority of Mexicans were unable to rule at the present time, wherefore it would be necessary that "we who are better able" govern until the masses are educated to higher standards.

The evacuation of Vera Cruz is greatly delayed, due to the procrastination of Gen. Carranza in appointing the proper officials to negotiate the transfer, those arriving hitherto not having the proper credentials entitling them to undertake serious negotiations. Meanwhile rebels are active in the vicinity of Mexico City, again cutting the water supply and driving outposts to the very outskirts of the capital. Activity is also reported in the vicinity of the railway line.

Huera's Pledge a Difficulty.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Officials here expressed the opinion today that any problems arising over the pledge of Mexican customs by Gen. Huerta to guarantee a foreign loan probably would have to be dealt with by the future Mexican Government. This is one of the questions being considered in the negotiations now in progress for the transfer of authority at Vera Cruz to the Carranza Government.

The question looms large upon the horizon, as Gen. Carranza was reported at the time of the consummation of the loan as saying he would not recognize the integrity of any loans advanced to the Huerta régime. The United States is interested in this question because parts of the bonds are held by a group of American bankers. The loan amounted to about $78,000,000 and was made last Autumn.

A French group of bankers holds 45 per cent. of the bonds, German and English groups 19 per cent. each, while 11 per cent. of the bonds were disposed of in the United States. The remaining fraction is held by Mexican bankers. To guarantee this loan 38 per cent. of Mexican import and export duties was pledged.

More than $1,000,000 collected in customs duties at Vera Cruz during the American occupation is impounded, to be turned over to the Mexicans when the United States retires from the port.

The State Department today asked the Carranza Government to guarantee the safety of the priests and nuns gathered at Vera Cruz seeking a means to leave the country. Consul Canada reported that about 220 were destitute. Thirty-two of the priests desire to go to Havana, but the wishes of the other religious refugees have not been determined.

FIGHTS IN PACIFIC AND IN EAST AFRICA

Fort Repulses Germans on Dark Continent—Australians Seize Last Wireless Station.

NAIROBI, British East Africa, via London, Sept. 22.—A German force, the strength of which is not known, attacked a fort twenty miles from the border in the Voi district Sept. 19. After an hour's sharp fighting the Germans retired, leaving eight dead.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Gen. Louis Botha, Premier and Minister of Agriculture of the Union of South Africa, will take supreme command of the British operations against German Southwest Africa.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The destruction of the wireless telegraph station on the island of Nauru, which removes the last German stationary wireless apparatus in the Pacific Ocean, is reported in a dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Company today from Sydney, New South Wales.

The British flag now flies over the island, though the German Governor and his staff have been allowed to remain.

Scattered fighting has taken place at Rabaul, Neupommern, an island in the Bismarck Archipelago. The natives under German leaders proved very troublesome, but the Australian landing party took to cover cleverly and suffered no losses.

After this skirmish Rabaul practically surrendered.

Dr. Pockley, a member of the Australian Red Cross detachment, was shot by a German officer after he had removed his coat with the Red Cross band on the sleeve to cover a wounded man.

BOSNIAN CAPITAL OCCUPIED BY SERVIANS

Austrians Abandon Sarajevo After Overwhelming Defeat — Meet Disaster Also on River Drina.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—In a dispatch from Rome the correspondent of The Star says Servian and Montenegrin forces have occupied Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia, which was abandoned by the Austrians after an overwhelming defeat.

NISH, Servia, Sept. 22.—The battle which has been in progress for several days near Krupani, on the Drina River, has, according to an official announcement made today, ended in complete disaster for the Austrian army.

The announcement declared that 100,000 Austrian troops were engaged in this encounter, while the Servian forces included various bodies of men who had been concentrated along the Drina, reinforced by troops hastily recalled from Semlin and Slavonia. The fighting was very sanguinary.

The Austrian attempt on Shabatz was repulsed with heavy loss.

Prince George of Servia, who for the second time has been wounded while leading a charge of a Servian battalion, is doing well, and it is the opinion of his physician that his life is in no danger. A rifle bullet penetrated the trunk of his body.

Prince George was wounded first at Belgrade in the early part of August by a fragment of a shell when that city was being bombarded by the Austrians.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—In a dispatch from Nish, Servia, dated Sunday, Sept. 20, the correspondent of the Havas News Agency says:

"The Austrians have been forced to retreat along the entire front between Lioubovia, Svornik, and Losnitza, and they are being hotly pursued by the Servian forces near Kouriatcitza. The Servians destroyed the bridges over the River Drina, but after suffering heavy losses the Austrians succeeded in gaining the opposite bank.

"The Austrian attempt to cross the River Save between Mitrovitza and Shabatz has failed.

SPREEWALD CAPTURED BY BRITISH CRUISER

Berwick Also Takes Two German Colliers—Hamburg-American Liner Had Been Armed.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The Hamburg-American liner Spreewald has been captured by the British cruiser Berwick, Capt. Lewis C. Baker, in the North Atlantic, the Admiralty announced tonight. Two colliers also were captured.

The Spreewald was fitted out as an armed cruiser. The two colliers carried 2,600 tons of coal and 180 tons of provisions for the German cruisers in Atlantic waters.

The total number of German vessels which, according to latest reports, have been captured by British vessels at sea or by British port authorities is 92. Ninety-five German vessels were detained in British ports at the outbreak of the war.

Seventy British vessels were held in German ports at the commencement of hostilities, and since then twelve vessels out of the nearly 4,000 carrying on oversea trade have been captured and sunk at sea.

The Spreewald sailed from Antwerp, in command of Capt. Hintze, on July 12 for San Juan. She arrived there on July 30 and sailed next day for Arroya. Her next port of call was Ponce, and she left there on Aug. 2, going to Guanica, St. Thomas, and other West Indian ports. She is reported to have sailed for Europe on Sept. 4.

The vessel was built by Furness, Withy & Co., at West Hartlepool, England, in 1907. She is of 3,899 tons, 332 feet long, 45 feet beam, and 26 feet draft.

FRENCH'S REPORT ACCUSES GERMANS

TRIBUTE TO THEIR BRAVERY

INVADERS RELY ON GUNS

Intrenchments Made with Rare Skill—Gen. French Gives Generous Praise to His Troops.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A conspicuous feature of an account of the British Army's operations from Sept. 14 to Sept. 18, issued tonight through the official press bureau, is a plain statement that the German troops are "fighting to win anyhow regardless of all the rules of fair play," and "do not hesitate at anything to gain victory."

From this the account, which comes from Field Marshal Sir John French, goes on to say of the Germans, to whom tribute is paid as a formidable enemy, well trained, and brave:

"It has been definitely established that they have committed atrocities on many occasions, and they have been guilty of brutal conduct."

"General Headquarters,
"18th September, 1914.

"At the date of the last narrative, Sept. 14, the Germans were making a determined resistance along the River Aisne. Opposition, which it was at first thought might possibly be of a rear guard nature, not entailing material delay to our progress, has developed and has proved to be more serious than was anticipated.

"The action, now being fought by the Germans along their line may, it is true, have been undertaken in order to gain time for some strategic operation or move, and may not be their main stand. But, if this is so, the fighting is naturally on a scale which as to extent of ground covered and duration of resistance, makes it undistinguishable in its progress from what is known as a 'pitched battle,' though the enemy certainly showed signs of considerable disorganization during the earlier days of their retirement phase.

"Whether it was originally intended by them to defend the position they took up as strenuously as they have done, or whether the delay, gained for them during the 12th and 13th by their artillery, has enabled them to develop their resistance and force their line to an extent not originally contemplated cannot yet be said.

"So far as we are concerned the action still being contested is the battle of the Aisne. The foe we are fighting is just across the river along the whole of our front to the east and west. The struggle is not confined to the valley of that river, though it will probably bear its name.

German Counter Attacks.

"The progress of our operations and the French armies nearest us for the 14th, 15th, 16th, and 17th will now be described:

"On Monday, the 14th, those of our troops, which had on the previous day crossed the Aisne, after driving in the German rear guards on that evening, found portions of the enemy's forces in prepared defensive positions on the right bank and could do little more than secure a footing north of the river. This, however, they maintained in spite of two counter attacks delivered at dusk and 10 P. M., in which the fighting was severe.

"During the 14th strong reinforcements of our troops were passed to the north bank, the troops crossing by ferry, by pontoon bridges, and by the remains of permanent bridges. Close co-operation with the French forces was maintained and the general progress made was good, although the opposition was vigorous and the state of the roads, after the heavy rains, made movements slow. One division alone failed to secure the ground it expected to.

"The First Army Corps, after repulsing repeated attacks, captured 600 prisoners and twelve guns. The cavalry also took a number of prisoners. Many of the Germans taken belong to the reserve and Landwehr formations, which fact appears to indicate that the enemy is compelled to draw on other classes of soldiers to fill the gaps in his ranks.

"There was a heavy rain throughout the night of Sept. 14-15 and during the 15th. The situation of the British forces underwent no essential change. But it became more and more evident that the defensive preparations made by the enemy were more extensive than was at first apparent.

Intrench to Escape Hostile Fire.

"In order to counterbalance these measures were taken by us to economize our troops and to secure protection from the hostile artillery fire, which was very fierce, and our men continued to improve their own intrenchments. The Germans bombarded our lines nearly all day, using heavy guns, brought, no doubt, from before Maubeuge, as well as those with the corps.

"All their counter-attacks, however, failed, although in some places they were repeated six times. One made on the Fourth Guards brigade was repulsed with heavy slaughter.

"An attempt to advance slightly, made by part of our line, was unsuccessful as regards gain of ground, but

GERMANS RAID NORTH SEA

ONLY 700 REPORTED SAVED

EXPLOIT WITH NO PARALLEL

Submarine Cruising Radius Limited—Disaster Occurred Yesterday Morning.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The British armored cruisers Cressy, Aboukir, and Hogue, sister ships, were sunk by German submarines in the North Sea this morning.

The time is said to have been between 6 and 8 o'clock. The place is not given in the Official Press Bureau's announcement of the disaster, but is said to have been twenty miles north of the Hook of Holland.

Latest reports indicate that about 700 men were saved. Probably 1,500 perished.

Two of the five submarines which delivered the attack were sent to the bottom by the British ships, according to survivors from the cruisers who arrived at Muiden, Holland, this evening. Muiden is at the mouth of the Vecht, in the Zuider Zee and is eight miles from Amsterdam.

The Aboukir was torpedoed first. The Hogue and the Cressy drew in close to her and were standing by to save her crew, when they also were torpedoed.

The three cruisers sunk were each of 12,000 tons burden. The complement of each was 755 men. Thus at the time of the disaster there were probably on board about 2,265 men. It is officially announced that a considerable number of these were saved.

Survivors were picked up by the cruiser Lowestoft, a division of torpedo-boat destroyers, and some trawlers.

Some Survivors Landed.

The Dutch steamer Titon has arrived at the Hook of Holland with twenty British wounded and some dead, picked up at the scene of the disaster. The Titon reported that the disaster occurred at 7:30 o'clock this morning. The Titon picked up 114 survivors, most of whom were transferred to British torpedo boats.

Amsterdam reports that the steamer Flores brought 287 uninjured survivors to Muiden. One dead and a few wounded also were aboard.

Survivors were landed also at Harwich and Parkeston Quay, near Harwich.

The Cressy, Capt. Robert W. Johnson; the Aboukir, Capt. John E. Drummond, and the Hogue, Capt. Wilmot S. Nicholson, were of a comparatively obsolete type, having been built fourteen years ago.

The daring raid of German submarines across the North Sea which resulted in this disaster has momentarily diverted attention from the battlefields of the Continent. Such an attack the British Navy had been led to expect, for the Germans had frankly avowed that their plan was to reduce British naval superiority by submarine raids and the sowing of mines; they had been training their young officers for sallies of this kind.

A Shock to Englishmen.

Nevertheless, it came as a shock to Englishmen that big ships such as those sunk could so easily be attacked and destroyed while the German fleet had been able to remain in safety in its mine-protected and fortress-protected harbors. It was pointed out, however, that the British fleet must keep the seas, to insure Great Britain's food supply, and in doing so must run great risks.

The ships sunk, while obsolete, still were useful vessels. Notwithstanding the loss of them, England's cruiser fleet is still double in number that of the Germans, and, as Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has said, Great Britain will be able to build during the war, if protracted, three cruisers to Germany's one.

Survivors Landed in Holland.

MUIDEN, Holland, Sept. 22.—Two of the five German submarine boats which attacked and sank the British cruisers Aboukir, Cressy, and Hogue were sent to the bottom by the British ships, according to survivors of the cruisers who arrived here this evening.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 22, 11:21 P. M.—The steamer Flores arrived at Muiden tonight with 287 survivors from the British cruisers sunk by the German submarines. One dead and a few wounded were also aboard.

The correspondent of The Handelsblad interviewed at Muiden one of the survivors.

"We were navigating with the cruisers in the North Sea in beautiful weather," the survivor is reported as saying. "This morning the Aboukir was hit in several places and disappeared within five minutes. The other men-of-war thought the Aboukir had struck a mine, as no hostile ships could be seen. They lowered their boats. A few minutes later the Hogue was hit and sank. In a short time the Cressy also was torpedoed. She sank at about 8 o'clock."

SAW SURVIVORS LANDED.

Had Been Rescued from the Water and Wore All Kinds of Garments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HARWICH, England, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—"I have just witnessed the landing of many survivors from the sunken British warships. Almost immediately the little hospital craft was busily engaged at the Shotley Naval Barracks with the wounded, and, it is believed, with some who had been killed in action.

It was soon after 8 o'clock tonight that the first batch of survivors was landed at the Harwich pier. Some appeared to be naval officers. They wore all kinds of garments, but for the most part were clad in llama coats such as are used on night watch in wintry weather. Evidently they had been taken from the water. They walked firmly and appeared to bear the situation with calmness and equanimity. Some had sacking wrapped around their bodies; others had white trousers. For the most part, they were barefooted.

"Simultaneously other little groups were landed. In every case they walked firmly to the hotel in the midst of lines of onlookers kept back by a strong-armed guard. Hearty cheers were raised as each little group made its way into the hotel.

"Altogether it is estimated that between twenty and thirty survivors, who were uninjured and who appeared to be mostly officers, were landed at Harwich. It is stated here that 700 in all have been saved. Eighty were brought in by torpedo boats and landed at Parkeston Quay."

Saved Computed at 700.

HARWICH, England, Sept. 22.—It is computed here that 700 men from the British cruisers Aboukir, Cressy, and Hogue were saved. Thirty uninjured officers, survivors of the three warships, arrived here tonight. They had been rescued from the water and wore improvised clothing.

Eighty other survivors were landed at Parkeston Quay, three miles west of Harwich.

Rescuer Identifies Place Where Submarines Sunk British Cruisers.

MUIDEN, Holland, Sept. 23.—A member of the crew of the steamer Flores, which arrived here last night with 287 survivors from the British cruisers sunk by the German submarines, gives the following details:

"The Flores was bound from Rotterdam to Leith. When about twenty miles north of the Hook of Holland we sighted a number of open boats, which proved to contain British naval officers and seamen, survivors of the cruisers Aboukir and Cressy. They reported that the Hogue and the Aboukir had been torpedoed by submarines and sunk at 6 o'clock in the morning. The Cressy sank at 8 o'clock in sight of the Flores, whose crew saw her heel over and disappear beneath the waves. The cruisers were attacked by five German submarines. Other British cruisers and torpedo boats rushed to the scene of the fight, and it is reported that they succeeded in destroying two of the German submarines."

CHATHAM, England, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—The Cressy, Aboukir, and Hogue were Chatham ships, attached to the Nore command, and were familiar spectacles in the River Medway. Indeed, the Cressy and the Aboukir only left Kethole Reach a few days ago, and were among the last of the war vessels to sail from this port.

Their crews totaled over 2,000, and of these a large proportion were resident in four local towns. A considerable portion of the ships' companies were Royal Naval Reserve men.

Summary of War News.

The British Admiralty announces the loss of three British cruisers—the Aboukir, Hogue, and Cressy, which were sunk by German submarines in a night in the North Sea. Only 700 of an estimated number of 2,200 aboard are believed to have been saved.

A news dispatch from London states that two of the five submarines which attacked the British cruisers were sunk.

The French War Office, in a night report, announced that the situation along the Aisne battle line was unchanged. A day report announced further gains on the left wing of the allied forces and on the centre between Souaine and the Argonnes. On the right the German Army has retaken Donestre, to the south of Blamont.

The Servians and Montenegrins have captured Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia, defeating a strong Austrian force.

The Germans announce that they have captured important positions at Craonne, and have occupied the village of Betheny, three miles outside of Rheims. German forces are also attacking the forts outside of Verdun.

The Russian General Staff reports that the fortress of Jaroslaw, seventeen miles northwest of Przemysl, has been taken by Russian forces. Another Russian Army is surrounding Königsberg.

The Servians report another victory over the Austrians. This engagement occurred near Kroupani, on the Drina, where the Austrians attempted to invade Servia, but were driven back with tremendous losses.

A dispatch from Rome states that thousands of Italians gathered in front of the British Embassy there yesterday, offering their services to the British Army and cheering for England and the Allies.

BERLIN, Sept. 22, (by wireless telegraphy to Sayville, L. I.)—The announcement given out at official headquarters under date of Sept. 21 relates that in the fighting around Rheims the Germans have occupied the heights of Craonne and that in advancing on the French city, which is described as on fire, they occupied the village of Betheny.

The Germans have attacked the line of forts to the south of Verdun, and they crossed victoriously the eastern frontier of Lorraine, which was defended by eight French army corps. A French sortie from a point northeast of Verdun was repulsed.

This dispatch is the same in substance as one from Berlin by way of London, printed in a late edition of yesterday morning's TIMES.

HUGE LOSSES NEAR CRAONNE.

Seven Thousand German Casualties in One Attack That Failed.

PARIS, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—Wounded soldiers, who are beginning to arrive from the region of Craonne, describe the battles there Sunday and Monday as having been costly to the Germans, who, they say, were sacrificed without apparent reason by their officers.

Though pushed back with great slaughter, the Germans returned again and again, only to be mowed down by the French. One regiment, it was stated, was wiped out, and when the French took possession of the field they found 1,000 wounded left by the Germans. Trenches which had been carefully prepared for resistance of the Allies' advance were filled with dead. A superior officer among the wounded estimated the German losses in this engagement alone at 7,000.

Very little had been seen recently by the wounded men of the German cavalry, and it was their opinion that this branch of the service was being compelled to act as infantry, since, they said, three-fourths of their horses had succumbed, owing to the long and unceasing reconnaissances of the last seven weeks, during which the animals often lacked proper food. The British and French horsemen, on the other hand, are well supplied with remounts.

Another of the wounded men told of the effective work of a German aeroplane while a French regiment was establishing itself on the right bank of the Aisne River. The aeroplane, he said, flew over the French position to aid the German artillery, and a rain of shells immediately followed. As soon as the French position was changed the fact was signaled to the battery and the shower of shrapnel was continued.

Finally a French machine took part in the action, and the German airman was forced to seek a higher level. An exciting chase ensued, but gradually the Frenchman gained a position of advantage. A rapid exchange of shots from the automatic pistols of the airmen ensued, resulting finally in the fall of the German machine. The position of the French regiment was then changed again, and it found shelter from the German battery's fire.

RHEIMS RUIN NOT WILLFUL.

Von Bernstorff Denies That Germans Premeditated It.

Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, commented briefly yesterday on the destruction of the Cathedral of Rheims. It was preposterous, he said, to assert that the wrecking of the historic edifice was a premeditated act on the part of the Germans.

"It would seem," said Count von Bernstorff, "from certain published reports that the destruction of this grand old edifice was the result of malice or envy. This is ridiculous. All that I have to say on this matter is that I am positive that the attack on the Cathedral at Rheims was not willful.

"For my part, I feel much more for the thousands of men who have sacrificed their lives, although I regret as much as any man the destruction of such a beautiful work of art."

Count von Bernstorff expressed indignation over the speech made in Liverpool by Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, in which Mr. Churchill referred to Ambassador von Bernstorff's peace talks in the United States as vague and "as insincere as the information of which he is the source," adding that there would be no peace with Prussian militarism short of the grave.

"It would be useless," said Count von Bernstorff, "to enter into a discussion with Mr. Churchill, who is known to be chiefly responsible for our war with England. The official answer of the German Government through Ambassador Gerard in Berlin, to the American peace proposals, was that it was up to the Allies to state whether they wanted peace or not. Evidently Mr. Churchill's speech was the answer to this question.

"My statement was that Germany would not consent to any peace terms as long as the Allies were bent on the dismemberment of Germany. And I said that we had won the war, not that it was a draw."

When asked about the sinking of the three British cruisers by German submarines yesterday the Ambassador answered that it was very interesting news in the light of what had been said about Germany having been swept from the seas.

The Ambassador said that he had not received any official communications from Berlin in the course of the day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—A wireless dispatch via Sayville from Berlin to the German Embassy in Washington today said:

"Rheims lies in the French battle line and we regret being forced to answer the fire. The city suffers, but orders were given to spare the Cathedral. The French attack in Middle Alsace was repulsed. Subscription to the German war loan today amounts to 4,200,000,000 marks."

DROPS BOMBS IN HOLLAND.

Aeroplane's Attack Stirs Dutch Government to Inquiry.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Exchange Telegraph Hague correspondent, telegraphing on Tuesday, says:

"The Dutch Government has decided upon an official inquiry into the dropping of bombs from an aeroplane of unknown nationality on the town of Maestricht today. The Government will submit reports to the German and Belgian Governments, asking whether the bombs were dropped by the flying corps of their countries.

"An aeroplane dropped two bombs, one of which fell on the lawn of a convent on which the Red Cross flag was flying. No lives were lost."

An Amsterdam dispatch says that one of the bombs fell near the Brussels Gate.

No lives were lost, but a big hole was torn in the ground, trees were broken, the doors of a neighboring house were riddled, and windows for a considerable distance were shattered.

Automobiles went in pursuit of the air craft, but it disappeared, going south.

Reports German Right Turned

LONDON, Sept. 23, 3 A. M.—A Daily Mail correspondent reports that the German right has been turned between Peronne and St. Quentin. He says that during all Sunday night wounded have been arriving at an unnamed place. They report there are nine miles of dead in trenches between those two towns.

PARIS, Sept. 22, 10:59 P. M.—An official statement issued by the Government tonight said that there was no change in the situation from what was reported in the day bulletin. This read as follows:

"Along the entire front, from the Oise to the Woevre, the Germans manifested yesterday (Sept. 21) a certain activity, without, however, obtaining appreciable results.

"First—On our left wing, on the right bank of the River Oise, the Germans were obliged to cede ground before the French attacks. Between the Oise and the Aisne the situation remains unchanged. The enemy has not delivered any serious attack, contenting himself yesterday, Monday evening, with a continued cannonading.

"Second—On the centre, between Rheims and Souain, the enemy attempted an offensive movement which was repulsed, while between Souain and the Argonne we have made some progress.

"Between the Argonne and the River Meuse there has been no change.

"In the Woevre district the enemy made a violent effort. He attacked the heights of the Meuse along the front between Tresauvaux, Vigneulles, and Heudicourt, without, however, succeeding in gaining position on these heights.

"On our right wing, in Lorraine, the enemy has again passed the frontier, using in this operation a number of small columns. Donestre, to the south of Blamont, has been reoccupied by the enemy.

"During the days of Sept. 20 and Sept. 21 we captured twenty automobiles, used in moving provisions, together with all the men attached to them. We also captured on these days numerous prisoners belonging principally to the Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Fifteenth, Fourteenth, and Sixteenth German Corps; to the Bavarian Landwehr, and to the Reserve Corps.

"Concerning the Russians in Galicia the rear guards of the Austrian armies have been pursued by the Russians, and have suffered considerable losses. Russian troops have come in contact with the Austrian garrison near Przemysl. The heavy Russian artillery is bombarding the fortifications of Jaroslaw."

Says Germans Are Yielding.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 22.—"The battle between the Oise and the Meuse probably will last three or four days longer," says the Temps in a military review today.

"But reports indicate that the resistance of the enemy is weakening. Another effort, and French territory will be free of them. It will be hard, however, for we shall have many victims.

"Our advance between Rheims and the Argonne seems to show the greater part of the German Army in retreat by way of Belgium. West of the Meuse they are making extensive defensive works on the Sambre."

FRENCH CAPTURE ST. QUENTIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—A Daily Mail correspondent telegraphs from a place in France, the name of which is not given:

"After terrific fighting the German right appears to have been turned between Peronne and St. Quentin.

"All night the wounded have been coming in. They say that there are nine miles of dead in the trenches between the two towns.

Peronne was evacuated by the Germans four days ago. They occupied a strong position with the hills behind them and marshes in front. The French received orders to take the position at all costs.

"Driven from here the Germans would be enveloped by the outspreading French left wing.

"First the trenches were combed by artillery fire, but the Germans still held, and their guns on the heights behind were doing execution among the French. Then it was decided to storm the position across the marsh.

"In the half light before the dawn the French advanced in a number of narrow columns. They suffered badly, but never wavered or flinched. When they reached the trenches the Germans, contrary to their custom, waited for them.

"There was a fierce and deadly struggle, breast to breast. The French had the advantage of dash and vigor. They were the attackers. They stabbed and stabbed 'till theirs arms ached,' as one of the wounded put it.

"Of course, their losses were very heavy, but they gained their point.

"The Germans fell back on St. Quentin. The French, with fresh troops coming up, pursued them hotly into the suburbs of the town. There was savage fighting in the streets. Yard by yard the Germans were driven back until they received orders to abandon the town.

"What the consequences of this magnificent feat of desperate assault may be one cannot yet say, but one may hope for a great deal.

"Just as I am sending this off I hear that the battle is still going on at St. Quentin and that the Germans are making an effort to retake the town."

SCENES IN BATTLE'S WAKE.

Reinforcements and Big Guns Pass Through Ruined Villages.

BY PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FORET DE VILLERS-COTTERETS, Sept. 20, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—All day long on Sunday I had been trudging over the battlefields, still littered with the horrors of the recent fighting, toward the lines stretching northward and eastward from Vic-sur-Aisne to Noyon and Soissons.

As I walked far beyond the rails from the little town of Crépy-en-Valois, which has suffered the ravages of the Germans, and on through the forest of Villers-Cotterets the great guns of our heavy artillery shocked the air with their thunderous reverberations. Presently I heard a deeper and more sonorous booming of different guns, followed by percussion of the air as though great winds were rushing into void spaces. These strange, ominous sounds were caused by the heavy pieces which the Germans had brought up to the heights above the marsh lands of the Aisne—the terrible 11-inch guns which I described in my previous dispatch.

As I now learn, they were imbedded in cement two weeks ago in high emplacements, while the Germans' advance columns were threatening down to Paris. Even then they were preparing a safe place of retreat for themselves in case their grand coup should fail, and, alas! during the last two days our British troops have suffered from this foresight on the part of an enemy which takes big risks but remembers the need of a safe way back.

I walked on, not only among the dead, but, what affected me with a more curious emotion, through villages where a few living people wrung their hands amid the ruins of their homes. Even in Crépy-en-Valois, which has suffered less than other towns through which the Germans passed, I saw their willful, wanton, stupid destruction. They had entered all the abandoned houses, and found some evil pleasure in smashing the chairs, tables, lamp shades, and baby perambulators, and the cheap but precious ornaments of the little homes. They had made a pigsty of every neat little cottage, and it seemed as though an earthquake had heaped everything together into a shapeless, senseless litter.

Words seem poor things to build up a picture of things which are vivid to me now that darkness has fallen and I think of all I have seen. Today I saw more than trivial episodes in the wake of great armies. I saw movements of regiments moving up to support the lines of the Allies—movements not yet to be recorded by the war correspondent—and the carrying up of heavy guns for the great battle which has now reached its sixth day, and the passing of Red Cross trains bringing back the wounded from that terrible front between Vic and Noyon, where the trenches are being filled and refilled with dead and wounded, the Germans' losses far outnumbering those of the French, and regiments of tired men who struggle forward with heroic endurance to take their place under the fire of those shells which have already put their souls to a test of courage beyond, yes, beyond anything that may be demanded in reason of the stronugest heart.

ALLIES FIRE ALL NIGHT.

Give Germans No Respite—Finally Advance Simultaneously.

AT THE BATTLE FRONT, Sept. 22, (via Paris.)—Not a moment's respite was given last night to the German forces intrenched along the ninety-mile front, running along the Rivers Aisne and Oise and extending into the Woevre district.

The Germans, occupying the trenches, kept constantly on the alert, but until 2 o'clock this morning no aggressive move was started from the Allies' lines, facing them. Then all the allied batteries seemed to open fire together, and every point along the front became very active.

At the western end of the line the allied infantry gathered in the trenches and simultaneously at various points crept out and advanced cautiously in wide open lines toward the German positions.

The French and British on several occasions succeeded in surprising and driving back the occupants of the German trenches, but only after the most stubborn fighting and after heavy losses both to the attacking and to the defending forces. In every instance the allied troops retained the ground captured and immediately dug themselves in.

Further east the Germans themselves developed a strong attack, but were beaten back with the bayonet, only to return again and again, and to be finally driven off to their original positions.

The allied commanders were able to give the troops who had been occupying the advance firing line a welcome rest, pushing to the front fresh brigades of batteries, hitherto held in reserve, which were only too anxious to come into actual contact.

Military experts estimate that 2,000,000 or more men are now in the zone where the battle has been in progress ten days.

Fresh Troops Reported at Peronne on Von Kluck's Flank.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The stress laid on the announcement of the French Government today that an advance is being made by the Allies' left wing on the right bank of the River Oise serves to fix even more firmly the attention of the public on that region from which the first signs of victory in the battle of the Aisne are expected to come.

Although official reports do not go beyond saying that the Germans have been forced to give ground before the French attacks and speak of Noyon and the district around that city as the centre of operations, some correspondents describe the Allies' left as extending from west of Noyon to as far north as Le Catelet, from which point, or Peronne, the new army, of which there have been so many reports but no confirmation, is supposed to be operating, to threaten the German right wing. If this is true, the German right is in a dangerous position, for it cannot extend much further north or west of St. Quentin.

The Times military expert says that the line of the Allies now extends on the east from a point near St. Dié, through Lunéville, Pont-à-Mousson, Etain, Consenvoye, Montfaucon, Souain, Rheims, Craonne, Noyon, Lassigny, and Roisel, to Le Catelet.

"The news of the day," he adds, "is the appearance of fresh forces around Peronne, seventeen miles northwest of St. Quentin, attacking the German extreme right at St. Quentin.

"The English Army is near Soissons. On the British left are French troops who probably reach through to Lassigny toward Ham, twelve miles southwest of St. Quentin, and are endeavoring to close in upon La Fère, fourteen miles northwest of Laon."

If the report that Gen. von Kluck has moved his headquarters back to Mons be true, it is of significance as showing his recognition of the danger which might threaten him from an army marching from the west.

ALLIES' ADVANCE CONTINUES.

Germans' Right Wing Forced Back at Every Point.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The great battle of the two rivers, which has been fought with unparalleled fury, will continue for some days yet. A new step in the constant progress of the Allies' extreme left wing is marked by its presence at Lassigny, situated ten miles from Noyon.

This movement is of extreme importance. That is why the Craonne region has been the centre of violent conflicts and bayonet charges. The Germans, while making desperate efforts to diminish the pressure on their extreme right wing, have nevertheless everywhere been forced to give way.

Little is said of what is happening in the centre, but in taking Mesnil-les-Hurlus and Massiges the French have just completed the line running from Alsace to the forest of Argonne. Thus the German centre between Rheims in the west and Souain on the east no longer has scope for movement.

HEAVY LOSS IN OFFICERS.

The French Considering Advisability of Modifying Uniforms.

PARIS, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—The proportion of French officers killed or wounded in the battles is so great as compared with the casualties among the privates that the question is being discussed whether it would be advisable to modify officers' uniforms and make them more difficult to distinguish from those of the men. The Germans seem to pick out officers all the more easily since the French officers are said to be showing great daring at the heads of their companies.

There have been many promotions of general officers recently to fill vacancies made through casualties.

The brilliant French cavalry leader, Gen. Bridoux, was killed in action yesterday.

The weather continues excessively cold for this season of the year and is causing much anxiety for the comfort of the soldiers in the trenches and camps. Associations are being formed to hasten the manufacture of heavy knit garments and sleeping sacks similar to those used by arctic explorers for use by the troops at the front.

SAYS HOSPITAL WAS SHELLED.

Frenchwoman Accuses the German Artillerymen at Etain.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 22.—Mme. Paul, the head of the French Women's Ambulance Corps, has sent a report to the Government from Etain, Department of Meuse, in which she described the bombardment of a hospital at that place by the Germans on Aug. 24.

The first shot from the German artillery, Mme. Paul says, brought down the Red Cross flag on the roof of the building, and a fragment of this same shell shattered a basin at the side of a table upon which Dr. Proust of Paris was operating on a serious case. The doctor then moved into a room in another wing of the building, in which there were five wounded German soldiers.

The shells began to fall faster, and finally this section of the building had to be abandoned. The wounded were moved to Verdun, twelve miles away.

LEADERS OF ALLIED FORCES.

Names of Generals of Various Armies Are Made Known.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—The Daily Telegraph's Bordeaux correspondent says:

SLOW FIGHTING IN BELGIUM.

Signs That Germans May Attempt Passage of the Scheldt.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COURTRAI, Sept. 21, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Heavy rains of the last few days are greatly hampering military operations. Even the German corps commanders who hitherto have shown little regard for their men have been compelled to cry a halt. The roads are difficult for transport of any kind and the flat country is a quagmire, impossible for marching men. The Germans are inadequately sheltered and are suffering severely from exposure.

There was desultory fighting today near Malines and Termonde. To the northeast of Termonde the Germans have massed a fresh force, and they are reported to be bringing up heavy guns, which at present are stuck fast in the mud. Everything points to a new attempt on the part of the Germans to force the passage of the Scheldt near Termonde in order to threaten Antwerp.

A second German force is hovering near Alost, which already has been ravaged.

A number of German fugitives without arms are being captured daily, having fled across the French frontier. They are detached atoms of the mighty army which the Allies are so successfully driving out of France.

QUICK DEATH IN BLAST OF BIG FRENCH GUNS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DIEPPE, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Standard.)—A visit to the field of the Battle of the Marne shows the devastating power of the French three-inch field gun to be something, of which we had hitherto not dreamed. Entire sections and companies have been struck out as if by simultaneous thunder bolts, reminding one of nothing so much as the wholesale extinction of the populations of Herculaneum and Pompeii.

On the borders of one of the forests a company of Prussian infantry at bivouac is laid out as if it had been surprised by the fire. Two sentinels are still grasping rifles, and a little way off a signal messenger lies by himself. Further on the officer on guard lies a few yards away from men with loosened belts and in their blankets. Two of them still had playing cards in their hands. Those sleeping and those waking were swept out of life together without apparently having had time to move.

Even more extraordinary is another group of sixty dead, who were lying around a small haystack, presumably asleep. Their rifles are piled and their knapsacks arranged in orderly heaps in an outer ring.

The path of the shells can be traced in a direct line by the heaps of corpses, but the particular shell that killed these sixty struck them in front, behind, and at the sides with the same sudden death, and yet none of them bears any outward wound. There they are stretched face downward or staring up at the sky seemingly paralyzed by the mere force of the explosion.

The same mysterious results are seen in many of the trenches, where the Germans are piled in rows.

The German Army, east and north of Rheims, are stated to be strongly intrenched in deep cuttings with bombproof shelters and rest houses underground, but very similar ones were found at Betz behind the Ourcq. One of these was a mile and a quarter long with tunnels in all directions. Yet it was filled with dead along the whole length.

According to all the stories of French artillerymen the Germans were never able to stand before the fire of the three-inch guns, whenever it found them out, but latterly as soon as a French battery opened fire, their hasty retirement was quickly followed by a heavy bombardment of guns by the big calibre German artillery far out of range.

That the Germans are beginning to feel discouraged is gathered from letters seized and statements made by officer prisoners. A Lieutenant of the Twenty-sixth Artillery Regiment writes:

"The Tenth Corps has been fighting incessantly since the commencement of the campaign. Almost all our horses are gone. We are under fire every day from 5 A. M. to 8 P. M. without food or drink.

"The French artillery fire is terrific.

"I am so worn out that I can hardly sit on a horse, even at a walk.

"Even at night our men cannot rest. A French airman last night threw four bombs, three of which killed and wounded twenty horses and four men. We get no letters."

An officer of the Prussian Guard says:

"My regiment started with sixty officers and only five are left. More than 2,000 men are out and the regiment is a mere relic."

MANY RETURNING TO PARIS.

Refugees in Bordeaux Gain Confidence—Government Will Delay.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 22.—Bordeaux today is beginning to lose something of the overcrowded aspect it has had since the seat of Government was brought here from Paris.

Many persons not directly connected with the Government, are going on to Biarritz, Pau, and other resorts, while still others, in spite of the long and uncertain railroad journey back to Paris, have decided to return to the capital. They are encouraged by the continued good reports of the progress of the war.

The Temps, which was transferred here several weeks ago from the capital, announces tonight that it will return to Paris.

The Government, however, will not, it is understood, consider going back to the capital until the enemy has been driven from French territory.

GERMAN LAW FOR FRANCE.

Proclamations Threaten Death and Destruction for Attacks on Army.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Following is the text of the proclamation published in French and said to be posted in all towns occupied by the Germans:

"All the authorities and the municipality are informed that every peaceful inhabitant can follow his regular occupation in full security. Private property will be absolutely respected and provisions paid for.

"If the population dare under any form whatever to take part in hostilities, the severest punishment will be inflicted on the refractory.

"The people must give up their arms. Every armed individual will be put to death. Whoever cuts telegraph wires, destroys railway bridges or roads, or commits any act in detriment to the Germans will be shot.

"Towns and villages whose inhabitants have taken part in the combat or who fire upon us from ambush will be burned down and the guilty shot at once. The civil authorities will be held responsible. VON MOLTKE."

AMERICANS BEST INFORMED.

Dispatches Received Here Correct Each Other, Says Temps Correspondent.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 22.—"Americans are infinitely better informed about the war than any Europeans, even the neutrals," says the Temps New York correspondent.

"They have received news from everywhere, from belligerent and neutral countries, and also censored and uncensored dispatches which rectify and clarify each other."

AIDS ANGRY JOURNALISTS.

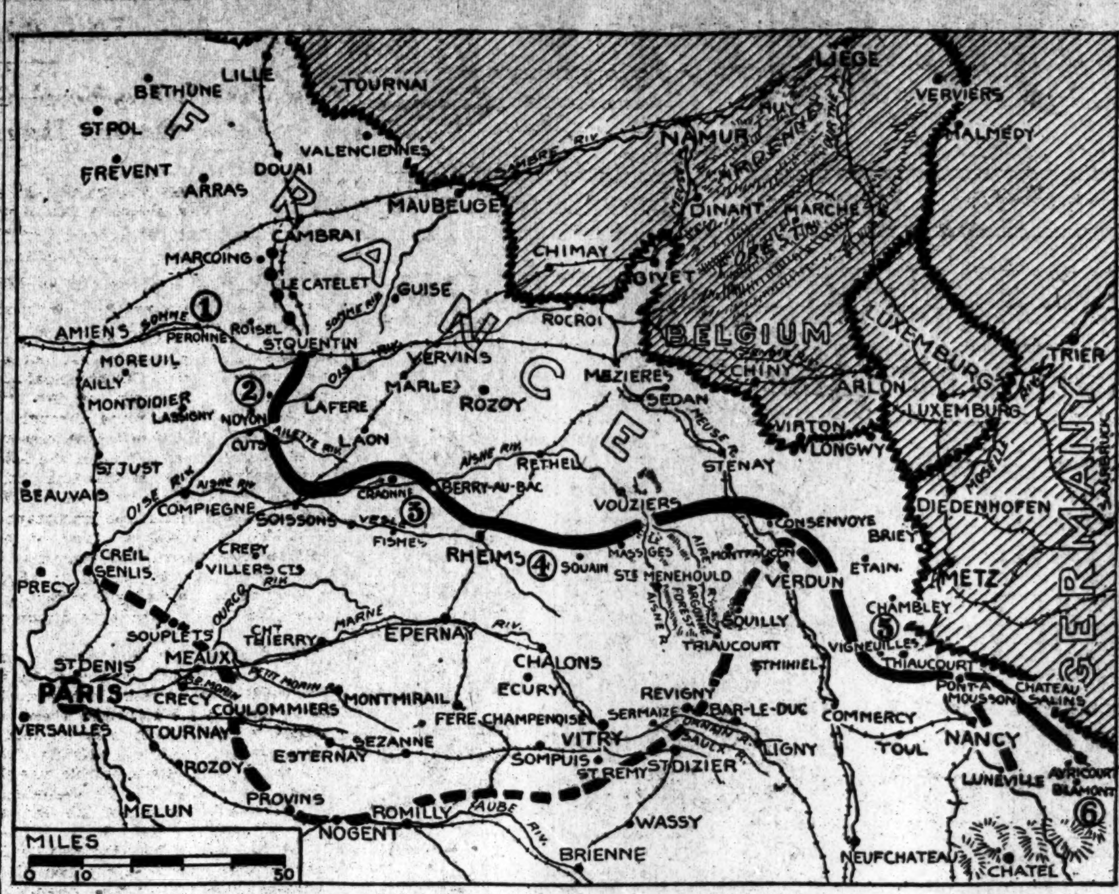
Sir George Riddell to Protest Against Press Bureau's Back Door.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Sir George Riddell, a well-known newspaper owner, today took up the cause of the newspaper men who made a protest at the Press Bureau last night and threatened to strike because one of their number had a struggle with a special officer after the newspaper man had insisted on entering the front door, whereas the rule was that the reporters must use the back door.

Sir George said today that he would bring the matter to the attention of the War Office and the Admiralty and endeavor to have this rule rescinded.

Vital Points of the Struggle in Northern France.



(1) French troops, moving to outflank the German right, have reached Peronne, and some may be at Le Catelet, north of St. Quentin. One dispatch to London says Gen. von Kluck's flank has been turned between Peronne and St. Quentin.

(2) Connected with the advance by way of Peronne is the reported progress of the Allies' forces, moving up on the west side of the Oise River.

(3) Conflicting reports come of the result of the desperate fighting at Craonne. The Germans say they have taken the hills there, while the French official report says the situation is unchanged.

(4) Repulse of a German attack between Rheims and Souain is reported.

(5) The Germans have resumed activity in this region, attacking the heights from Vigneuilles to Heudicourt.

(6) In the same way the Germans have assumed the offensive close to Blamont, having reoccupied Donestre.

"Further counter-attacks made during the night were beaten off. Rain came on toward evening and continued intermittently until 9 A. M. on the 16th. Besides adding to the discomfort of the soldiers holding the line, the wet weather to some extent hampered the motor transport service, which was also hindered by broken bridges.

"On Wednesday, the 16th, there was little change in the situation opposite the British. The efforts made by the enemy were less active than on the previous day, though their bombardment continued throughout the morning and evening. Our artillery fire drove the defenders off one of the salients of their position, but they returned in the evening. Forty prisoners were taken by the Third Division.

Germans' Losses Heavy.

"On Thursday, the 17th, the situation still remained unchanged in its essentials. The German heavy artillery fire was more active than on the previous day. The only infantry attacks made by the enemy were on the extreme right of our position, and, as had happened before, were repulsed with heavy loss, chiefly, on this occasion, by our field artillery.

"In order to convey some idea of the nature of the fighting it may be said that along the greater part of our front the Germans have been driven back from the forward slopes on the north of the river. Their infantry are holding strong lines of trenches among and along the edge of the numerous woods which crown the slopes. These trenches are elaborately constructed and cleverly concealed. In many places there are wire entanglements and lengths of rabbit fencing.

"Both woods and open are carefully aligned, so that they can be swept by rifle fire and machine guns, which are invisible from our side of the valley. The ground in front of the infantry trenches is also, as a rule, under crossfire from the field artillery placed on neighboring features and under high-angle fire from pieces placed well back behind the woods on top of the plateau.

"A feature of this action, as of the previous fighting, is the use by the enemy of their numerous heavy howitzers, with which they are able to direct long-range fire all over the valley and right across it. Upon these they evidently place great reliance.

"Where our men are holding the forked edges of the high ground on the north side they are now strongly entrenched. They are well fed, and in spite of the wet weather of the last week are cheerful and confident.

"The bombardment by both sides has been very heavy, and on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday was practically continuous. Nevertheless, in spite of the general din caused by the reports of the immense number of heavy guns in action along our front on Wednesday, the arrival of the French force acting against the German right flank was at once announced on the east of our front, some miles away, by the continuous roar of their quick-firing artillery, with which their attack was opened.

"So far as the British are concerned, the greater part of this week has been passed in bombardment, in gaining ground by degrees, and in beating back severe counter-attacks with heavy slaughter. Our casualties have been severe, but it is probable that those of the enemy are heavier.

"The rain has caused a great drop in the temperature, and there is more than a distinct feeling of Autumn in the air, especially in the early mornings.

"On our right and left the French have been fighting fiercely and have also been gradually gaining ground. One village has already during this battle been captured and recaptured twice by each side, and at the time of writing remains in the hands of the Germans.

"The fighting has been at close quarters and of the most desperate nature, and the streets of the village are filled with dead of both sides.

Quotes a French Order.

"As an example of the spirit which is inspiring our allies, the following translation of an ordre du Jour, published on Sept. 9 after the battle of Montmirail by the commander of the French Fifth Army, is given:

Soldiers: Upon the memorable fields of Montmirail, of Vauchamps, of Champaubert, which a century ago witnessed the victories of our ancestors over Blucher's Prussians, your vigorous offensive has triumphed over the resistance of the Germans. Held on his flanks, his centre broken, the enemy is now retreating toward the east and north by forced marches. The most renowned army corps of old Prussia, the contingents of Westphalia, of Hanover, of Brandenburg have retired in haste before you.

This first success is no more than the prelude. The enemy is shaken, but not yet decisively beaten. You have still to undergo severe hardships, to make long marches, to fight hard battles.

May the image of our country, soiled by barbarians, always remain before your eyes. Never was it more necessary to sacrifice all for her.

Saluting the heroes who have fallen in the fighting of the last few days, my thoughts turn toward you, the victors in the next battle. Forward, soldiers, for France!

FRANCHET D'ESPEREY,
General Commanding the Fifth Army,
Montmirail, Sept. 9, 1914.

Says Germans Hesitate at Nothing.

"The Germans are a formidable enemy, well trained, long prepared, and brave. Their soldiers are carrying on the contest with skill and valor. Nevertheless they are fighting to win anyhow, regardless of all the rules of fair play, and there is evidence that they do not hesitate at anything in order to gain victory.

"A large number of the tales of their misbehaviors are exaggeration and some of the stringent precautions they have taken to guard themselves against the inhabitants of the areas traversed are possibly justifiable measures of war. But, at the same time, it has been definitely established that they have committed atrocities on many occasions and they have been guilty of brutal conduct.

"So many letters and statements of our wounded soldiers have been published in our newspapers that the following epistle from a German soldier of the Seventy-fourth Infantry Regiment, Tenth Corps, to his wife may also be of interest:

"'My dear wife: I have just been living through days that defy imagination. I should never have thought that men could stand it. Not a second has passed but my life has been in danger, and yet not a hair of my head has been hurt.

"'It was horrible! it was ghastly! but I have been saved for you and for our happiness, and I take heart again, although I am still terribly unnerved. God grant that I may see you again soon, and that this horror may soon be over.

"'None of us can do any more; human strength is at an end. I will try to tell you about it. On the 5th of September the enemy were reported to be taking up a position near St. Prix, southeast of Paris.

"'The Tenth Corps, which had made an astonishingly rapid advance, of course, was attacked on Sunday. Steep slopes led up to the heights, which were held in considerable force.

Regiment Lost Third Colonel.

"'With our weak detachments of the Seventy-fourth and Ninety-first Regiments we reached the crest and came under a terrible artillery fire that mowed us down. However, we entered St. Prix. Hardly had we done so than we were met with shell fire and a violent fusillade from the enemy's infantry.

"'Our Colonel was badly wounded—he is the third we have had. Fourteen men were killed around me. We got away in a lull without being hit.

"'The 7th, 8th, and 9th of September we were constantly under shell and shrapnel fire and suffered terrible losses. I was in a house which was hit several times. The fear of death, of agony, which is in every man's heart, and naturally so, is a terrible feeling.

"'How often I have thought of you, my darling, and what I suffered in that terrifying battle, which extended along a front of many miles near Montmirail, you cannot possibly imagine.

"'Our heavy artillery was being used for the siege of Maubeuge. We wanted it badly, as the enemy had theirs in force and kept up a furious bombardment. For four days I was under artillery fire. It was like hell, but a thousand times worse.

"'On the night of the 9th the order was given to retreat, as it would have been madness to attempt to hold our position with our few men, and we should have risked a terrible defeat the next day. The First and Third armies had not been able to attack with us, as we had advanced too rapidly. Our morale was absolutely broken. In spite of unheard-of sacrifices we had achieved nothing.

"'I cannot understand how our army, after fighting three great battles and being terribly weakened, was sent against a position which the enemy had prepared for three weeks, but naturally I know nothing of the intentions of our chiefs; they say nothing has been lost.

"'In a word, we retired toward Cormontreuil and Rheims by forced marches by day and night. We hear that three armies are going to get into line, intrench and rest, and then start afresh our victorious march on Paris. It was not a defeat, only a strategic retreat. I have confidence in our chiefs that everything will be successful.

"'Our First Battalion, which has fought with unparalleled bravery, is reduced from 1,200 to 194 men. These numbers speak for themselves.'

Charges Treacherous Acts.

"Among the minor happenings of interest is the following:

"During a counter-attack by the German Fifty-third Regiment on portions of the Northampton and Queens Regiments on Thursday, the 17th, a force of some 400 of the enemy were allowed to approach right up to the trench occupied by a platoon of the former regiment, owing to the fact that they had held up their hands and made gestures that were interpreted as signs that they wished to surrender. When they were actually on the parapet of the trench held by the Northamptons they opened fire on our men at point-blank range.

"Unlucky for the enemy, however, flanking them and only some 400 yards away, there happened to be a machine gun manned by a detachment of the Queen's. This at once opened fire, cutting a lane through their mass, and they fell back to their own trench with great loss. Shortly afterward they were driven further back, with additional loss, by a battalion of guards which came up in support.

"An incident, which occurred some little time ago during our retirement, is also worthy of record. On Aug. 28, during the battle fought by the French along the Oise between La Fere and Guise, one of the French commanders desired to make an air reconnoisance. It was found, however, that no observers were available.

"Wishing to help our allies as much as possible a British officer attached to this particular French army volunteered to go up with the pilot to observe. He had never been in an aeroplane, but he made the ascent and produced a valuable reconnoissance report.

"Incidentally he had a duel in the air at an altitude of 6,000 feet with the observer of a German Taube monoplane which approached. He fired several shots and drove off the hostile aeroplane. His action was much appreciated by the French

"In view of the many statements made in the press as to the use of Zeppelins against us, it is interesting to note that the Royal Flying Corps, who had been out on reconnoissances every day since their arrival in France, have never seen a Zeppelin, though airships of a non-rigid type have been seen on two occasions near Marne.

"Late one evening two such were observed over the German forces. An aeroplane was dispatched against them, but in the darkness our pilots were uncertain of the airship's nationality and did not attack. It was afterward made clear that they could not have been French.

"A week later an officer, reconnoitring to the flank, saw an airship over the German forces and opposite the French. It had no distinguishing mark and was assumed to belong to the latter, though it is now known that it also must have been a German craft.

"The orders of the Royal Flying Corps are to attack Zeppelins at once, and there is some disappointment at the absence of those targets.

Pays Tribute to His Men.

"'Special Order of the Day,
By Field Marshal Sir John French,
G. C. B., G. C. V. O., K. C. M. G.,
Commander in Chief of the British Army in the Field.
"'17 September, 1914.

"'Once more I have to express my deep appreciation of the splendid behavior of the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the army under my command throughout the great battle of the Aisne, which has been in progress since the evening of the 12th inst., and the battle of the Marne, which lasted from the morning of the 6th to the evening of the 10th and finally ended in the precipitate flight of the enemy.

"When we were brought face to face with a position of extraordinary strength, carefully intrenched and prepared for defense by an army and staff which are thorough adepts in such work, throughout the 13th and 14th, that position was most gallantly attacked by the British forces and the passage of the Aisne effected. This is the third day the troops have been gallantly holding the position they have gained against most desperate counter-attacks and the hail of heavy artillery.

"'I am unable to find adequately words in which to express the admiration I feel for their magnificent conduct.

"'The French armies on our right and left are making good progress, and I feel sure that we have only to hold on with tenacity to the ground we have won for a very short time longer when the Allies will be again in full pursuit of a beaten enemy.

"'The self-sacrificing devotion and splendid spirit of the British army in France will carry all before it.

"'J. D. P. FRENCH, Field Marshal,
"'Commander in Chief of the British Army in the Field.'"

REPORT KAISER'S SON DEAD.

But Embassy Has No Such Information Concerning Adalbert.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—A report through a news agency that the Emperor's son, Prince Adalbert, has died in Brussels has greatly astonished the German Embassy here, whose officials declare they have not received any information to this effect.

Liège Forts Are Restored.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The correspondent of the Central News at Amsterdam telegraphs that reports from Liège say that the Germans have brought the fortresses of Liège into such condition that they may again be used for defense.

DEATH FOR SELLING BRITISH PAPERS

Germans in Brussels Enforce the Rule Against French Papers as Well.

GHENT AGAIN IN DANGER

May Soon Be Occupied by Germans, Despite the Agreement Made with the Burgomaster.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WETTEREN, Belgium, Sept. 21 (Dispatch to The London Standard).—The anxiety of the Germans to prevent newspapers published outside of Germany from getting into Brussels would be comical if the cruelty shown toward any one found carrying newspapers—especially English newspapers—were not only too often tragic.

In all parts of Belgium men and women are being stripped and searched for newspapers and even for newspaper clippings. It has been formally announced in Brussels that any one bringing French or English newspapers into the city will be shot without trial.

It is the English newspapers that the Germans especially fear and that the German officers privately covet for their own perusal. As I discovered recently in France, there is nowadays rarely anything in the French papers except more or less authentic reports of atrocities, eulogies of the French and English troops and vague official announcements from day to day of the Allies' successes; but the English papers daily teem with information about actual events which would bring dismay and disgust to the German rank and file, the majority of whom, of course, are neither brutes nor fools. As for the population of Brussels, the Germans fear, rightly or wrongly, that if it were generally known that Germany had sustained severe reverses there would be an uprising to exterminate the German garrison.

Whipped for Selling Belgian Papers.

A small boy carrying a parcel of Belgian newspapers, most of the news in which is copied from English newspapers two or three days old which have reached Ostend, was captured by Uhlans near here on Sunday and taken before the Burgomaster at Alost, who was asked to punish the lad for selling Belgian newspapers in German territory in defiance of military law. The Burgomaster boldly replied that if he was required to take the Germans' orders to punish the boy for selling the newspapers of his own country in his native village they must regard him as no longer having any authority to punish anybody. The German Captain blustered, but finally contented himself with having the papers burned in his presence and thrashing the unlucky boy with his riding whip. The lad fortunately escaped without serious injury and is still busily selling newspapers.

The Germans also regard it as a capital offense to carry letters between the coast and Brussels. Unlucky people who get caught with letters or newspapers on them do not, it is to be feared, live to tell the tale. It is said that they are shot immediately. It is known that several couriers employed by business people and others are missing.

M. van Steenbrugge, the Burgomaster of the village of Avelghem, near Renaix, who is 80 years of age, was carried off as a hostage by Uhlans and forced to spend the night sleeping on the ground in a turnip field. The handsome wife of the village innkeeper was forced to serve them and was treated with the grossest indelicacy. Worse would have befallen her had not her young son, a lad of 12, succeeded in bringing some Belgian gendarmes to her rescue, and the Germans had to make a bolt for it.

Women Provoke Indignities.

German resentment against women has been admittedly provoked by acts of aggression which no women in war time are under any circumstances justified in committing. I may instance a story widely published in England at the beginning of the war, of how some women in a factory routed a regiment of Uhlans with boiling water. Acts of this kind are no excuse for barbaric reprisals, but they should never have been committed. Whenever they do occur we may be sure the woman pays. I have heard stories of the savage flogging of women, which recall the infamous deeds of Marshal Haynau.

It was only the prompt and courageous measures taken by Burgomaster Braun of Ghent that saved that city last week from all the horrors of Louvain. Two German soldiers asserted that they had been attacked by civilians. M. Braun at once drove out to Oordeghem and spent four hours pacifying the German Gen. von Boehn. He was assisted by the American Consul at Ghent. Gen. von Boehn at length admitted that the soldiers never ought to have entered Ghent, but the incident shows how slight a spark might have brought disaster to Ghent. All over the town the legend "Leve Onze Burgemeester!" ("Long live our Burgomaster!") appears on doors, walls, and windows, testifying to the gratitude of the city of 850,000 inhabitants and to the realization of the peril escaped so narrowly.

Readers outside of Belgium must find it difficult to understand how, with fighting continually taking place within a few miles of Ghent, the town itself, with its famous old churches, remains unharmed. The explanation is that a great city like Ghent, although unfortified, cannot be taken by assault without a large force, armed with artillery. The Germans have, therefore, preferred to make terms with the city, receiving the supplies which they demanded and refraining from occupation.

As long ago as Friday, Aug. 21, when they arrived at Melle and there was a wild stampede of civilians from Ghent, the Germans threatened to bombard the place if there was any opposition from the civil population of the district or of the Gardes Civiques, whom the Germans will not recognize as belligerents. Since then the Germans have destroyed Termonde and Melle, the latter a village only five miles from Ghent.

There is no doubt that unless they are forced to retire from the siege of Antwerp they will occupy Ghent in the very near future. This would be unlucky for the English subjects who might be there at the time. They are now trying to cut off Antwerp from Ghent and the Belgian coast at Ostend. In relation to the latter place Ghent is the key to Antwerp, and there are signs that the Germans will not long refrain from a vigorous attempt to cut the railway lines north and west of Ghent and occupy the town itself.

Except at Termonde and along the banks of the River Scheldt, which the Germans wish to cross, the fighting around Ghent has been mostly with scouting Germans.

A Heroic Belgian Soldier.

The heroic self-sacrifice of a soldier named Tresignies of the Second Regiment of chasseurs-à-pied, has just been related to me. The Belgians were exceedingly anxious to get across the Willebroeck Canal at Pont Brule. A bridge was raised against them on the other side, which was occupied by a strong force of Germans. Tresignies volunteered to swim across and try to lower the bridge. The attempt meant certain death. Before he plunged in he wrote with a pencil on a scrap of paper the name and address of his wife and the words, "God will help and comfort you." The Germans were startled into admiration as he leaped into the stream, and for a few moments held their fire; but, seeing what he was about, they riddled him with bullets just as the lowered bridge fell into place with a crash. The Belgians rushed across with shouts of triumph and vengeance, and the Germans fled. Tresignie's body was recovered next day and buried with military honors.

An elderly man living at Leeuwelgem had been employed by the Germans as assistant camp cook, much against his will, for a fortnight. He says he worked ten hours a day, peeling and washing potatoes to satisfy the insatiable appetites of his masters. The water he used he had to take from a great tub the contents of which had been chemically tested and disinfected with a few drops of some liquid. The German head cook had about twenty saucepans made of aluminium, closely fitting inside of one another for transit, so as to look like one big one. Every day he made a great stew, which was served at midday, as a rule, and cooked up again at night. The Belgian liked it very much, especially at night, when the extra cooking made it easier to digest.

Germans' Excellent Cuisine.

The German cook also made great puddings of chopped meat and dried vegetables. These would keep for several days. Whenever they could kill an ox or cow the Germans cut up the carcass just as systmatically as though they were in a model slaughter house. The superior officers had the choice steaks on such occasions. Some of the officers were particularly fond of roast fowl, and were always asking for it.

When no fighting was going on all the soldiers had wine, tobacco, tea, coffee, and such other luxuries as chocolate creams looted from the shops. After every meal all the cooking and table utensils were thoroughly washed in boiling water and packed up ready for departure at an instant's notice, however little likelihood there seemed to be of such a move.

The extraordinary calmness and method of all ranks struck this Belgian with admiration, in spite of his hatred of the Germans and his rage at being forced to cook for them. Many sat learning French from text books in their brief leisure.

I learn from Ostend that the bathing machine colony is being evacuated. Two hundred refugees who have been sleeping on straw here have been sent to England, and others are being taken into local private houses. The cold wet weather has made the bathing machines almost uninhabitable. The distress has been great, and the diet has been almost exclusively potato soup and bread.

HADN'T HEARD OF VICTORY.

Returning English Refugees Knew Nothing of German Retreat.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Four hundred women, English refugees from Berlin, passed here on their way home. When the train steamed into Rotterdam only those on the station platform cheered; the refugees were strangely quiet. When they left the station after hearing the true state of the campaign they cheered lustily, as people might on awakening after a horrible nightmare.

Every one fired astounding questions at me regarding the British army at the front. They were all quite ignorant of the German retreat and said they had heard of nothing but German victories. When I told them of Kitchener's huge volunteer army they were incredulous, having been thoroughly convinced by the Germans that only 2,000 men had responded to the call.

"Is it true," asked one, "that the English have fired on the French because they were running away?" When they heard the emphatic denial several cheered again.

"Are the Japs really keeping down a revolution in India?" asked another, and I had to tell the story of the Sikhs and the other Indian troops.

"Is it really true that the Germans are in retreat? Are you sure?" they persisted, almost afraid to believe the news, for they had not had the slightest inkling that the Germans had fallen back an inch.

RUSSIANS TAKE JAROSLAW FORTS

AFTER KONIGSBERG AGAIN

VIENNA FULL OF WOUNDED

Large Camp of Hospitals for Infectious Diseases Outside the City —Gen. Martos's Trial.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 22.—Russian troops have occupied the fortified Austrian position of Jaroslaw, according to official announcement made here today. The Russian flag is now flying over the town.

Jaroslaw is an important railroad centre and fortress. A bridge near the town crosses the San and commands the passage of that river. The town is situated seventeen miles north-northwest of Przemysl, and is on the railroad line between Lvov (Lemberg) and Cracow.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—The Daily Telegraph's Petrograd correspondent says:

"The Novoe Vremya for the first time today gives information concerning the extent of the German invasion of Russian Poland by announcing that the Germans on Sept. 17 evacuated the towns of Wladistawow, Wolkowyszhki, Mariampol, Kalwaria, and Suwalki. These towns, none of which is more than twenty miles from the frontier, apparently define the high water mark of the German invasion."

ROME, Sept. 22.—Official news from Petrograd says that the Russians are gradually surrounding Königsberg and expect reinforcements at an early date for an attack on that city.

Dispatches from Vienna say that the Austrian capital is crowded with wounded and soldiers returning from the war with infectious diseases. This has rendered necessary the construction of a large camp of hospitals outside the city.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 22.—A special dispatch to The Avondpost from Berlin says that so far no proof has been forthcoming of the accusations against the Russian General, Martos, who is charged with killing non-combatants in East Prussian towns and villages occupied by his troops. His trial by court-martial is proceeding.

JAROSLAW BIG STRONGHOLD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The fortress of Jaroslaw has been taken by the Russian forces after two days' bombardment, and the Russians have an open approach to the northern face as they had previously to the eastern and southern faces of the principal Austrian fortress of Przemysl.

The northwestern face of Przemysl offers the best chances of a successful attack upon his fortress, which is defended by a double line of outer forts. The southeastern face is likewise vulnerable, in both cases, owing to the contour of the ground which favors the approaches on these two fronts.

The capture of Jaroslaw Fortress admits the Russians into the rectangle Jaroslaw-Rzoszoff - Dynoff - Przemysl, where the remnants of the beaten Austro-German armies are now endeavoring to reorganize.

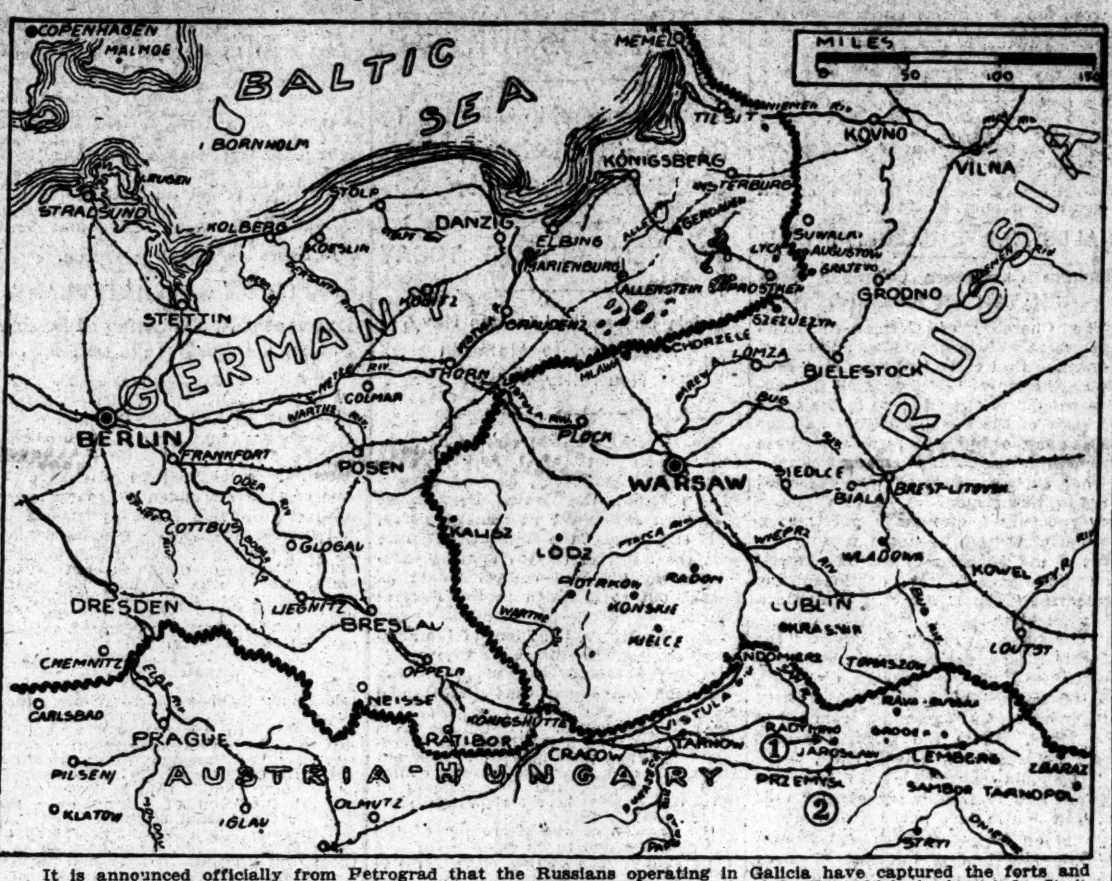
The speedy capture of this fortified place indicates the condition of the Austrians. It is reported that the number of desertions is very great, and that the Germans, not wholly trusting to their Austrian allies, have insisted upon garrisoning Przemysl with their own forces.

At the opening of the war Jaroslaw presented the formidable aspect of a fully equipped fortress. It stands astride the River San, with three independent forts on a line about three and a half miles long on the right bank of the river and sixteen forts dispersed on a line five miles long on the left bank. The garrison in peace time was 10,000 men. As the Galician battle developed Jaroslaw was materially strengthened by temporary works of every kind on a large scale and the garrison, of course, included at the moment of capture all the remnants of the Austro-German armies beaten before Grodek. As will be found in the case of all the Galician fortified places, Jaroslaw was fully supplied with munitions and military supplies of all kinds.

It commands a passage across the River San, and also a direct railway line to Rava-Russka and to Przemysl, from which it is distant about sixteen miles. It may thus be considered as the outlying defense of the principal Austrian fortress in Galicia.

No details of the fighting or estimates of booty taken have as yet been received.

Scene of Operations on the Russian Frontier.



It is announced officially from Petrograd that the Russians operating in Galicia have captured the forts and town of Jaroslaw, (1,) an important railroad centre seventeen miles from Przemysl, (2,) which is invested. It is also reported that the army operating in East Prussia is surrounding once more the great Baltic fortress of Koenigsberg.

THE WAR SITUATION.

Allies Push Turning Move—Germans Plan Advance Against Meuse Forts—Russians Threaten to Cut Off Austrian Army.

(An Associate Editor of The Army and Navy Journal.)

The important development of the day in France is the report of troops of the Allies at Peronne and at Catelet, half way between St. Quentin and Cambrai. The report does not state whether cavalry or infantry, nor are the numbers given. The principal supply line for the army of Gen. von Kluck follows the route through Le Cateau and St. Quentin; the presence of an expeditionary force of the Allies within seven miles of this line shows at least a decided weakness in the German right flank. So important is it to keep up a steady supply of food and ammunition at the front that an army is frequently forced to devote one-fourth of its strength to the safeguarding of its lines of communication.

The danger into which their supply lines are exposed is recognized by the Germans in the organization of a new army at Mons. By pushing these new troops westward they may be able to clear away the turning columns of the Allies. If unsuccessful in this attempt, these fresh troops will be available to protect the retirement of the Germans to a new line.

The fighting from Soissons to Verdun has settled down to a question of endurance. The German attacks at Rheims can hardly be pressed in sufficient force to endanger the Allies' centre. The Germans have no system of roads or railroads behind them to favor such a move. Since troops in immense numbers can move only through districts of well-developed highways, it would seem that the big efforts of the Germans would come in the vicinity of Laon in the west or opposite Metz in the east.

It is especially probable that an important German advance against the fortified line between Verdun and Toul will be attempted as one part of their campaign in France. The great success of their big 11-inch howitzers in destroying the land forts at Namur and Longwy gives the Germans grounds for expecting success in a sudden campaign against this line of forts along the Meuse.

Every day of prolongation of this great battle in France should increase the dangers of the German position. Their rapid advance in the early days of the campaign was obtained only at terrible cost in lives. In spite of their excellent organization for rushing reinforcements to the front and for replacing battle losses, their strength on the firing line must be appreciably affected by the enormous waste of lives demanded by their tactical system.

The losses of the Allies must have been very much less. The generally published ratio of 1 to 3 seems reasonable in view of the conditions under which they fought. The French have now had sufficient time to get their full fighting force into action. The British regular armies have done good work, and their volunteer armies must by now be in the field in front.

For the Boer war Great Britain had more than 1,000,000 men under arms; she also has in the empire a number of ex-regulars. Such of these ex-soldiers as have joined the present volunteers should have been as available for service at the front as the German reserves. After only a week or two to get back into training they were ready to start to the front. Of the 300,000 volunteers raised by Great Britain on her first call, it is quite probable that an army of 80,000 is now operating in France at the northern end of the Allies' line.

The success of the Russians in Galicia in forcing the Austrians to abandon Jaroslaw will have important influence on the rest of the campaign. The great danger to an army in crossing a river is due to the opportunity given to the enemy to fall on the part that has crossed and crush it before the rest can be moved up to its assistance. Even after an army has succeeded in making its crossings it has to be very cautious until its lines are reformed.

The most dangerous position in which an army can fight is one with a river at its back. In 1807 Napoleon decided the war with Russia by catching its army in this position. In the great battle of Friedland, which is pictured in history as marking for Napoleon the zenith of his glory, the Russians, under Benningsen, took up a position in a bow with both flanks protected by the Alle River. Napoleon directed the corps of Marshal Ney and Marshal Victor on the left of the Russian line, drove it back, and destroyed the bridges across the Alle on which this flank depended for its retreat. In the attempt to retreat by the few remaining bridges, the Russians were so hard pressed that they lost 25,000 men out of 67,000 engaged.

The retreat of the Austrians from the San River yields to the Russians a position that might have cost them days of delay and much fighting. It will gain added importance from the encouragement that the Russian forces will receive from this acknowledgment by the Austrians of their weakness.

The deciding manoeuvre of this campaign seems to be the race between the Russian armies, moving southwest in Poland, and the Austrian armies, moving west in Galicia. If the Austrians win out in reaching Cracow they can join the German Silesian army and form the right wing of a strong force to bar the further Russian advance. If the Russians win out and interpose between the Galician army and the Silesian army, they will have the advantage of a central position from which they can in turn concentrate first upon one and then on the other of their opponents.

RHEIMS MAY BRING PAPAL PEACE PLEA

Rumor That Benedict XV. Will Reinforce His Protest to Germany.

ITALIAN ANGER INCREASES

International Art Association Contemplates the Expulsion of German Members.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 22.—Since the war has caused the death of ecclesiastics, the destruction of churches, and the loss of religious treasures, the Pope thinks that the interests of the Holy See are so great that he has the right to intervene to bring about peace.

In Vatican circles it is asserted that his voice will soon be heard, stronger than ever, for the cessation of hostilities.

Cardinal Lucon, Archbishop of Rheims, has sent a message from Paris to the Pope, saying that he is doing all in his power to reach Rheims, where the great Cathedral has been destroyed by German shell fire. He has been unable to do so, however, owing to the occupation of the town by the French forces. The Pope has asked for a report regarding the destruction of the famous edifice.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A Rome dispatch to The Central News says that Pope Benedict XV. has telegraphed to the German Emperor protesting against the destruction of the Cathedral of Rheims.

IN RHEIMS AS SHELLS FELL.

German Dead and Dying Huddled on the Cathedral Floor.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The Daily Telegraph correspondent, E. Ashmead Bartlett, telegraphing from Rheims a description of his visit to the Cathedral during the bombardment, says:

"A great wave of sunshine lit up the sombre picture of carnage and suffering at the west end, near the main entrance. Here on piles of straw lay wounded Germans in all stages of suffering, their round shaven heads, thin cheeks, and bluish-gray uniforms contrasting strangely with the sombre black of the silent priests attending them. Most of the wounded had dragged their straw beds behind the great Gothic pillars, as if seeking shelter from their own shells.

"The priests conducted us to one of the aisles beneath the window where the shell had entered that morning. A great pool of blood lay there, staining the column just as the blood of Thomas à Becket must have stained the altar of Canterbury seven centuries before. 'That, Monsieur, is the blood of a French gendarme, who was killed at 11 this morning; but he did not go alone.' The priest pointed to two more recumbent figures clad in the bluish gray of the Kaiser's legions. There they lay, stiff and cold as the effigies around them. All three had perished by the same shell. The civilian doctors of Rheims moved among the wounded, who for the most part maintained an attitude of stoical indifference to everything around them.

"Food is scarce in the town, and meat is almost unobtainable, but in the centre of the Cathedral transept lay a raw quarter of a slaughtered ox, a horrid touch of materialism amid a scene otherwise lacking all sense of reality.

"We moved around, collecting fragments of the precious glass which the Kaiser had so unexpectedly thrown within our reach. We were brought back to realities by hearing the unmistakable whistle of an approaching shell, followed by a deafening explosion, and more fragments of glass came tumbling from aloft. The war-worn Teutons instinctively huddled closer to the Gothic pillars. A dying officer, his eyes already fixed in a glazed stare on the sunlight above, gave an involuntary groan. We heard outside more breaking of glass. Our chauffeur came hastening in with the Virgin's broken arm in his hands. A fragment of shell had broken it off outside."

INVOKES PITILESS VENGEANCE

But Anatole France Warns Against Destroying German Monuments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 22.—(Dispatch to The Daily Chronicle.)—Anatole France has addressed the following letter to the editor of La Guerre Sociale:

"My Dear Hervé: I send to La Guerre Sociale my indignant protest against the destruction of the cathedral at Rheims. Invoking the blessing of the God of the Christians, the barbarians have burned one of the most magnificent monuments of Christianity. They have thus covered themselves with eternal infamy, and the German name has become execrated by all thinking men. Who in the face of this can doubt that they are really barbarians, and that we are fighting for civilization?

"The war will be fought without mercy, but we, as soldiers fighting for the right, will remain worthy of our cause. We will continue to the end to show that we are magnanimous as well as victorious. As you say today, we will inflict pitiless vengeance upon the criminals, but we will not stain our victory by any similar crimes upon their soil. When we have conquered their last army and reduced their last fortress we will proclaim that the people of France will again receive in friendship the conquered enemy."

DAMAGE SLIGHT, BERLIN SAYS.

Newspapers Assert That French Drew Fire on the Cathedral.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 22, (via London.)—According to Berlin papers which have been received here, the Cathedral of Rheims suffered but slightly during the recent German bombardment.

These papers aver that no damage at all would have been done to the cathedral if the French troops had stayed away from it.

MAY EXPEL GERMANS.

International Art Association Considering Such Action.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The destruction of Rheims Cathedral has aroused widespread indignation throughout Italy, where respect for ancient monuments is akin to worship. The press unanimously deplores what it terms a ruthless destruction unprecedented in history, as even the barbarians sacked towns but spared churches. Thus, it is asserted, the Germans, who boast of their culture and civilization, have degenerated from their barbarian progenitors.

The Academy of St. Luke has telegraphed to the Imperial Academy in Berlin demanding confirmation of the report of the destruction of the Cathedral. The International Art Association has summoned a general meeting of its members, with the object of deciding on the expulsion of Germans, while prominent artists and art critics write to the papers protesting in the strongest terms against the outrage imputed to the Germans.

KAISER'S WAR SPEECH.

Thanks for God, Threats for Enemy—Praise from Francis Joseph.

The text of the fiery speech made by the German Kaiser to his troops on reviewing a parade at his war headquarters at the height of the swift German advance toward Paris, which has since been checked, is printed in big type in German newspapers received here yesterday. The speech reads:

"Comrades: I have gathered you around me here in order to take joy with you in the glorious victory which our comrades have in several days of hot battle won with their swords. Troops out of every nook and cranny of the empire helped one another in invincible bravery and unshakable loyalty to win great results. There stood together under the leadership of the son of the Bavarian King and fought, with equal blades, troops of all ages, active, reservists, and landwehr.

"For our victory we are thankful, in the first place, to our old God, (unserem alten Gott.) He will not desert us, since we stand for a holy cause. Many of our comrades have already fallen in battle. They died as heroes for the Fatherland. We will think of them with honor here, and shout to the honor of those still in the field, Hurrah! hurrah! hurrah!

"We still have many a bloody battle before us. Let us hope for further successes like this. We shall not relent, and we shall get to the enemy's hide. We shall not lose our faith and trust in our good old God up there, (unserem guten alten Gott dort oben.) We are determined to win, and we must win."

In bestowing on the German Kaiser the Great Cross of the Order of Marie Theresa, Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria praised him as the man who "sharpened and swung the heavy sword" in the present war. The text of the Austrian Emperor's address to the Kaiser in bestowing the decoration, as published in late copies of the Vienna papers just received here, was:

"The glorious victories, so crushing to the foe, which the German Army has won in battle under your chief command owe their begetting and their success to your iron will, which sharpened and swung the heavy sword.

"To the laurel that crowns you as victor I wish to add, if I may, the highest military honor which we possess, in begging you to take in true brotherhood of arms and as a token of my appreciation the Great Cross of my military Order of Marie Theresa. The decoration itself, dear friend, shall be handed to you by a special envoy as soon as it is convenient for you."

At the same time the Austrian Emperor bestowed the Commander Cross of the Order of Marie Theresa on Gen. von Moltke.

ENGLAND TO AID FIRMS.

Government Has a Project to Help Business Concerns by Loans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—The Daily Mail says this morning:

"We understand that the Government has under consideration a scheme for advancing money to business concerns which find themselves in temporary difficulties owing to the disruption of commerce by war.

"It is stated that the sum to be earmarked for this purpose, if the scheme is carried through, will amount to several millions of pounds."

SUBMARINES SINK 3 BRITISH CRUISERS

these conditions to "dig the rats out day morning is the most serious yet sustained by any of the warring powers at sea. It would be idle to deny that the exploit reflects the greatest credit on the German submarine service.

"There may be some who will ask why the British Navy, which is between two and three times as strong as that of Germany in submarines, cannot do likewise. The answer is simple: The principal ships of the German Navy are stowed away securely in their harbors, sheltered behind shallow waters through which run navigable channels of exceedingly narrow width and defended by powerful fortifications and widely spread mine fields.

The British fleet would be unable in of their hole." It is compelled to adopt the tactics of the Nelsonian era—to keep watch and ward at sea until the enemy can summon enough courage to venture forth. Our naval Commander in Chief has to bear in mind the possibility of a sudden raid across the North Sea. We cannot afford to lay our fleet up, as Germany is doing. Charles II. tried it in 1667, and the result was that the Dutch captured Sheerness and burned Chatham. These are risks the nation does not run today, but our security is purchased only at the greater risk and sacrifice of the navy. It has been claimed that the submarine renders a blockade altogether impossible, but the main German fleet is still effectively blockaded in spite of these craft."

The Chronicle's naval correspondent writes:

"The loss of three armored cruisers is a disaster the meaning of which it would be foolish to minimize. The vessels were not new, they were even obsolescent, but they were still valuable.

"Wherever the disaster took place the danger was not foreseen. The enemy's submarine—there may have been more than one—was not perceived by any lookout. The conclusion therefore cannot be escaped that this new element in naval warfare has proved its value and that we are appreciably nearer to the day, foretold by Sir Percy Scott, in which the big ship would be doomed.

"Are we to conclude that big ships like the Aboukir, or, let us say, the latest battle cruisers, are at the mercy of a submarine assailant? Vessels under way cannot carry torpedo-nets outrigged; their safety seems to lie in vigilant observation, not only by themselves, but by accompanying small craft, and still more in rapid movement and in altering their course so as to make it impossible for a submerged assailant to determine their position. No submarine below the surface has anything like the speed of a cruiser; it must lie in wait or have very good luck."

The Globe's naval expert says:

"Our fleet is necessarily exposed to these dangers. It has to wait upon the pleasure of the enemy. It dare not wait too far away, because the North Sea is small and could be quickly traversed by hostile fleets. The risks must be run, and we need not fear that our men will shrink before them. Nevertheless, death dealt by an unseen hand is the most detestable of all.

"This disaster will rouse the British fleet to action as nothing else could have done, and the success of this submarine attack may yet prove the death knell of the German Navy."

That the incidents of the naval war have gone far toward justifying Sir Percy Scott's claim that the submarine is the only naval type, if not of today, then surely of tomorrow, is shown by the fact, pointed out by The Daily News, that while so far four cruisers, totaling 13,600 tons, have been sunk by gunfire, five cruisers, totaling 41,040 tons, have been sunk by submarines.

"In addition," says The Daily News, "there have been sunk by gunfire the German merchant cruisers Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and Cap Trafalgar, but these were not regular warships. There seems to be some doubt as to whether the German cruiser Magdeburg was actually destroyed by Russian gunfire or whether she was run ashore and blown up by her own people.

In any case, the figures are sufficiently striking, and when analyzed go far to confirm Lord Goschen's statement in 1900 that the submarine is the weapon of a power acting on the defensive. All the British naval losses except the Pegasus have been caused by mines or submarines. Every loss inflicted on the enemy except one has been by gun power."

PROBABLY SAME DISASTER.

Lowestoft, Eng., Heard 12,000-Ton Vessel Was Sunk by Mine.

LOWESTOFT, England, Sept. 22, 3:30 P. M.—It is reported that a vessel of 12,000 tons has been sunk by a mine in the North Sea. Another large vessel is standing by. No official confirmation of the report can be obtained.

This dispatch is timed an hour previous to the first bulletin announcing the destruction of the Cressy, Aboukir, and Hogue. It is supposed to refer to the same disaster. Lowestoft is the easternmost point of England.

SCOUTED OFF SCOTLAND.

German Submarine Said to Have Passed Under a British Squadron.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—A German submarine recently made a reconnoitring cruise to the Scottish coast, according to a letter written by a German sailor and published in the German newspapers. She was ten days absent frfom her base, and went all along the English coast, at times under water, and passed under a British squadron.

"It was the prettiest picture I ever saw," the sailor wrote. "Up there, like a lot of peaceful lambs, lay the English squadron, without a care, and as if there were no German sea wolves in armored clothing. For two hours we lay there under water on the outposts. We could with certainty have succeeded in fetching under a big cruiser. But we must not; we were on patrol, and our boat had further work to do."

"FACTS" ABOUT BRITISH NAVY

Doesn't Dare Face German Fleet, Belgians Are Informed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ANTWERP, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The German official paper, The Friend of the People, published in French and German at Liege for the enlightenment of the Belgians, gives some interesting "facts" about the British Navy. It appears that the English find great difficulty in equipping their ships, and that for this reason the English armada has not dared to advance into the North Sea, where the German fleet awaits it day and night.

The Admiralty is seeking recruits, this publication says, offering 120 marks (about $30) a month and more, but "one cannot create in such haste for a mercenary fleet properly trained crews."

NAVAL LOSS OF 41 VESSELS.

Total Since War Began — Twenty Were German and Twelve British.

According to confirmed and unconfirmed records forty-one warships have been put out of action by mines, destroyers, or other naval craft, or sold to a neutral power, beginning with the German-Russian engagement in the Baltic on Aug. 3, when it was reported that two Russian cruisers were lost. This list includes twenty German, twelve English, five Austrian, two Russian, and two Japanese vessels. The confirmed chronological list runs as follows:

Aug. 3—German-Russian engagement off Aland Islands—two Russian ships lost.

Aug. 5—German mine-layer Koenigen Luise sunk by British torpedo boat Lance in North Sea.

Aug. 6—British cruiser Amphion sunk in North Sea by mine.

Aug. 9—German submarine sunk by British cruisers in North Sea.

Aug. 13—German cruisers Goeben and Breslau sold to Turkey to escape capture.

Aug. 16—Austrian battleship Zrinyi and three other Austrian warships sunk in Adriatic by French fleet.

Aug. 16—Unnamed German dreadnought reported ashore and out of action at Trondhjem, Norway.

Aug. 27—German cruiser Magdeburg ashore in Gulf of Finland; attacked by Russian warships and blown up.

Aug. 27—German converted commerce destroyer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse sunk by British cruiser High Flyer off west coast of Africa.

Aug. 28—Three German cruisers and two destroyers sunk in night engagement off Heligoland.

Sept. 6—British cruiser Pathfinder reported sunk by mine in North Sea; an official report on Sept. 10 says she was torpedoed; rammed one submarine before she was blown up.

Sept. 14-16—Japan lost two torpedo boats outside Kiao-Chau.

The loss of the Magdeburg on Aug. 27 and the loss of three cruisers in the Heligoland Bight on Aug. 28 reduced the number of German light cruisers in home waters from twenty-eight to twenty-four. In addition, her destroyer class was reduced from seventy-seven to seventy-five.

The wearing down tactics in home waters have now resulted, to Germany's advantage, in four British cruisers sunk; to Germany's disadvantage, three cruisers, two destroyers, and one mine layer, besides damages.

The German cruisers sunk on Aug. 28 were reported to have been the Mainz, the Köln, and the Augsburg, all of the Kolberg class, each armed with twelve 4.1-inch guns, four 5-pounders, four machine guns, and two submerged 18-inch torpedo tubes.

The loss that the British light cruiser class has just met with is heavier. Like the German ships lost on Aug. 28, the Aboukir, the Hogue, and the Cressy were all cruisers of the same type. These vessels had a displacement of 12,000 tons each, were 440 feet long, 69.5 feet wide, and drew 26 feet of water. Each had a complement of 755 men, including officers and crew. Their armaments consisted of two 9.2-inch guns, twelve 6-inch guns, twelve 12-pounders, and five 3-pounders The Aboukir and the Cressy were built at Govan in 1900, and the Hogue at Barrow in the same year.

GERMANY HAD 27 SUBMARINES

Now Has Lost Four—Allies Have 223—Effective Only with Luck.

It is a question among naval strategists whether the British Navy is actually pursuing a "bottling-up" process in German North Sea waters or whether Germany is successfully maintaining a "wearing-down" process by mines and a flotilla of destroyers and submarines.

The action in which three British light cruisers were sunk was the first, not only in the present war, but in any war, that the submarine had given such a good account of herself.

Just before the war Admiral Sir Percy Scott, a British naval expert, declared that England should build no more battleships, as submarines could do better work. It was pointed out, however, that the submarine needed a hydroplane for scouting purposes, and only large warships could carry hydroplanes. The hydroplane is said to be to the British Navy what the submarine is to the French and German.

At the opening of the war, the German submarine force consisted, according to recent statistics, of twenty-seven boats in commission and ten rapidly building. Since Germany built her first submarine in 1906 they have greatly increased in size and power; displacements, above water, from 200 feet to 840 feet; horse power, above water, from 450 to 1,800; speed above water from 11 knots to 17 and, below water, from 9 knots to 12. The first boat carried one torpedo tube, the latest completed carry three.

The date of the U 15, which was sunk by the Birmingham, on Aug. 9, was 1911-12. She was one of a batch of six boats of that year.

The periscope of a German submarine is much larger than that of the American, French or English boat. It is as large as a saucer, and remains about eighteen inches above the surface. It is painted bluish-gray, and is almost imperceptible at two or three hundred yards in clear weather.

Some submarines keep their periscope always above the water, but the German, upon approaching to attack, submerges hers, so that her Captain, looking in the mirror at the base of the periscope, sees no more figures reflected. The submarine is now blind. She cannot see through water. But she can steer her course. His Captain made his calculations before he submerged his periscope. The range of a German torpedo is about 3,000 yards at 25 to 30 knots. The submarine can fire her torpedoes, go about, presently rising, until her periscope is above water, then continue beneath the surface until it is safe to rise and, like a whale, breathe again.

According to British tactics, explained by Lord Sydenham, on which German plans are said to be based, although the latter do not take into account the auxiliary use of the hydroplane:

"The flotilla is to be accompanied by 'scouting aeroplanes always high up. If an enemy is sighted, the gong sounds and the leash * * * will be slipped.' This is to happen in the 'open sea,' and apparently all over the world. Considering that the aeroplanes will be of no scouting value at night, in thick weather, or in a gale, and must have a surface ship—certain to be destroyed by the enemy's submarines—close at hand if they are employed far from land, while the submarines in heavy weather will have no speed, the slipping of the leash may prove futile. The sharp limitations of both aeroplanes and submarines appear to be disregarded, and the fact that the former may prove dangerous opponents of the latter is ignored. I admit that these limitations may be mitigated in the future, but certain disabilities will always remain, and with the increase of tonnage the submarine will develop new disadvantages, notably in the greater depth of water which will be needed for submerged movement.

"On the surface the submarine is a most inferior destroyer, slow, supremely vulnerable, and unsuitable for long habitation. When submerged it can be navigated only by the periscope, the idea of which I suggested nearly thirty years ago. In this position it is not wholly invisible, and if caught by a destroyer it would be sent to the bottom.

BRITISH SUBMARINES BALKED.

Could Not Get at German Warships for Trawlers, Cables, and Nets.

In a letter just received by a friend in New York a Lieutenant Commander in the British Navy writes:

"We have been right up the Elbe in our submarines, but could not get at the big German warships. They are lying well apart and protected by scores of trawlers and small steamships, with huge steel cables and nets in between.

"The Naval Brigade of 15,000 men, mostly from the Naval Reserve, are in camp being drilled daily. They expect to land in Belgium when ready.

"Don't get down-hearted about any bad news. The Germans will soon be done for, as immense preparations are going on here of which I dare not write more fully."

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

The Belgian King Thought To Have Been Mined—Twenty-two Lost.

TREBIZOND, Asia Minor, Sept. 22, (via London.)—Twenty-two persons lost their lives by drowning as a result of the sinking of the British steamer Belgian King near Cape Kurell yesterday.

The Belgian King carried passengers and crew to the number of 120. Ninety-eight of them were saved by a Russian steamer.

It is surmised this accident was due to a mine, but the real cause has not been revealed.

TAKE SHIP AND RESERVISTS.

German Steamer Prof. Woermann Brought Into Sierra Leone, Africa.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The German steamer Professor Woermann of the Woermann Line, with 300 German reservists on board, has been taken captive and brought into Sierra Leone, on the west coast of Africa.

28 MORE OFFICERS KILLED.

British Press Bureau Issues New Casualty List—46 Wounded.

LONDON, Sept 22.—The official Press Bureau tonight issued a casualty list under date of Sept. 17, which shows twenty-eight more officers killed, forty-six wounded, and fourteen missing.

Three officers previously reported as missing have returned to their commands.

Of other ranks 150 wounded and 202 missing are reported.

The list contains the names of no prominent men, but shows that the Ninth Lancers, the Dorsetshire Regiment, the Eighteenth Hussars, and the Royal Engineers have been in the thick of the fighting, for the list of men wounded and missing is made up almost entirely of members of those regiments.

The Royal Irish Rifles lost two officers killed and eight wounded.

Lieut. C. G. Bayley and Second Lieut. V. Watarfall of the Royal Flying Corps are unofficially reported dead.

ITALIANS WOULD FIGHT FOR BRITAIN

Thousands Visit the Embassy in Rome, Anxious to Enlist in the Ranks.

OTHER AID IS TENDERED

Including Steamships and Provisions—Italians Fear an Invasion by Austria.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Standard.)—No more convincing proof of the ardent wishes of the Italian people could be imagined than was afforded by a scene today at the British Embassy, where offers were received from thousands of Italians anxious to be allowed to fight in the ranks of the British Army.

This striking manifestation occurred as a sequel to the remarkable demonstration of the previous evening, when over 200,000 persons outside the embassy shouted "Long live England!" and cheered the British flag.

The truth is that the Italians are simply boiling over with impatience at the hesitating attitude of their own rulers. Whatever the Italian Government may finally decide to do, public opinion long ago determined upon the course to be followed. The war fever is throbbing in the veins of the people, and if they cannot fight under their own flag they will fight under the flag of one or other of the Allies.

The popular enthusiasm for England exceeds anything previously known in this country, and culminated today in this remarkable offer of service. Not only have fiery young citizens of Rome proffered themselves in battalions to fight for England, but staid old business firms controlled by Italy's big commercial men also approached the embassy with offers to provide steamers and other facilities for the transport of troops and provisions.

The embassy, of course, was obliged gratefully to decline the offers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—Signor Ferrari, Grand Master of the Italian Freemasons, has issued a circular to all the lodges defining the war as a struggle between German imperialism and the Germanic idea of a hegemony on the one side, and justice, nationality, and liberty on the other.

Italy, he says, would be very improvident if she stood aloof from this tragic conflict, which will decide the fate of Europe for several generations.

The so-called official Socialist Party, comprising thirty-four out of the eighty Socialist members of the Chamber of Deputies, supported by the newspaper Avanti, has issued a proclamation ascribing the origin of the war to capitalism. The proclamation eulogizes the heroism of Belgium, reaffirms Socialist approval of Italian neutrality, and strongly opposes participation in the war.

On the other hand, the Reformist Socialists under Signor Bissolati, who number twenty-three in the Chamber, advocate intervention, which is urged also by the Genoese Socialists, on behalf of liberty against imperialism.

The anarchists have also issued a proclamation denouncing neutrality as national egoism.

The Berliner Tageblatt's attempt to pacify the Italians by suggesting that if they remain quiet the peace congress may be held in Rome provokes the reply here that that journal was pronouncedly anti-Italian during the Libyan war.

Notes for one and two lire (20 cents and 40 cents) are ready and will be issued immediately.

ITALIANS FEAR INVASION.

Rome Papers Say Austrian Guns Are Being Placed on Frontier.

ROME, Sept. 22.—In spite of denials to the contrary made by the Austrian Government, newspapers here publish detailed descriptions purporting to show that Austrian armaments are being placed on the Italian frontier.

They declare that preparations are being made by Austria to invade Italy.

ITALY HOLDS FORMER SONS.

Naturalized Americans Must Serve with the Army.

ROME, (via Paris, Wednesday, Sept. 23.—Owing to the absence of a naturalization treaty between America an Italy the latter is not recignizing the right of Italians to become citizens of the United States with a view to avoiding military service. A number of naturalied Americans of Italian birth have not been allowed to return to the United States, owing to their liability for military service in the Italian Army.

Many of these cases entail hardships, especially when those detained have families in America. Thomas Nelson Page, American Ambassador to Italy, has interested himself in their behalf. Those detained include the Rev. Domick Cassetta and Gustave Danchiz of New York and the Rev. Raymond Carrel of New Orleans, all of whom have parishes and have lived in America since childhood.

GREY "SPEECH" DENIED.

Never Proposed Dividing Germany British Embassy Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—A widely circulated statement that Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, had declared that there would be no peace in Europe until German territory had been divided among her enemies and her commerce transferred to England, was denied officially today by the British Embassy. The embassy announcement follows:

"Certain persons have been circulating in the press reports of speeches supposed to have been delivered by British statesmen, such, for instance, as that attributed to Mr. Burns, which is a pure fabrication. Recently a statement has been made as to a speech of Sir Edward Grey, in which he is quoted as saying that 'there shall be no peace until Germany is humbled to the earth, her territory divided between Russia and France, and her commerce definitely delivered to England.' Sir Edward Grey never delivered such a speech, and the statement is obviously circulated with a view to mislead public opinion."

AMERICANS SAFE IN BRUSSELS.

No Cases of Destitution—Risks of Reading English Papers.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Three Americans who arrived in London tonight from Brussels, William J. Garland of Los Angeles and James B. Pauley and J. E. Reichel of Chicago, say that the Americans in Brussels have plenty of food and are quite safe. The German authorities are treating them courteously, they say, and the American Relief Committee in Brussels has found no real cases of destitution.

The chief concern of those interned, according to the arrivals, was to obtain news from the outside. The London Times sold for $1 a copy, and any English or French paper brought from 60 cents to $1. It was worth one's liberty, however, it was added, to be discovered by the Germans reading these papers.

MERCHANTS HELP WORK

$52,737 for American Paris Ambulance Hospital—$40,768 in Prince of Wales Fund.

The subscriptions to the European fund of the Red Cross coming in to the New York branch of the society yesterday totaled $13,038.78, making the grand total to date $158,162.70. It was explained that the $15,232.50 received on Monday from Dr. Bernhard Dernburg was not intended for the Red Cross, as was erroneously stated, but was simply a deposit with the Red Cross for the German relief fund.

The officials of St. Paul's Church, Trinity Parish, in lower Broadway, fastened to the fence on the Broadway side of the church a little almsbox, above which was a sign that read:

> Offer daily in this house of God one short prayer for wounded and dying soldiers and sailors, for widows and orphans, and for the restoration of peace among the nations, and place at least one cent daily in the almsbox for the work of the Red Cross Society.

All British men are invited to a meeting at the British Imperial Club, 108 East Thirtieth Street, at 8 o'clock this evening to formulate plans for aiding the British Red Cross and reservists.

Klaw & Erlanger have arranged to give one special performance of "The Little Café" at the New Amsterdam Theatre Friday night, Oct. 2, in aid of the American Red Cross. "The Little Café" company leaves for a tour of the country the following day.

The fair for the Fatherland today and tomorrow from 2 to 5:30 P. M. and from 7 to 10 at 100 East Ninety-fifth Street, is to be repeated during the same hours on Saturday and Sunday.

An aerial fête for the benefit of the American Red Cross was held on the roof of the Hendrik Hudson apartments. The fête was held under the auspices of the International Residence Association for Students and Travelers.

FRITZI SCHEFF BEREAVED.

Receives Cablegram That Father Was Killed in War in Austria.

It was announced by the management of the Casino Theatre, where Fritzi Scheff is appearing in "Pretty Mrs. Smith," that Miss Scheff yesterday received a cablegram from her mother in Vienna that her father, Dr. Godfrey Scheff, a surgeon in the Austrian Army, had been killed in the fighting around Sarajevo.

The cablegram came direct from Vienna, but, although it was not received until yesterday, it bore Sunday's date.

NOGALES, Sonora, Sept. 22.—Gen. Juan Cabral said today that Gen. Benjamin Hill, whom he was sent to succeed, would turn over the office of Military Commander of the State of Sonora to him. Gov. José Maytorena was ordered to reliquish military affairs and retire to Hermosillo to devote himself to civil functions.

Gen. Cabral today sought to induce Maytorena to surrender command of his troops. Cabral said if the Governor would do this, Hill would turn over his command also, and affairs in Sonora, now on the verge of open rebellion, would be promptly settled.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Although yesterday's official reports indicated that the friction between Gens. Obregon and Villa was of an insignificant character, there was a pessimistic tone in the advices from Mexico which reached here today. The local troubles in Sonora have given rise to the fear among some observers that Villa may attempt to quell the disturbances there independent of Carranza's orders.

As yet, however, nothing of a definite nature has reached officials on which a judgment of the trend of future events can be based. Everything seems to depend, they believe, on the outcome of the National Convention on Oct. 1, as it already is realized both here and in Mexico that a contest will ensue between the Carranza and Villa factions for political control of the Assembly.

UNCERTAIN AS TO VILLA.

But Most of the Northern Generals Are Expected at Conference.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 22.—Roque Estrada, private secretary of First Chief Carranza, said today that Gen. Obregon had left Chihuahua, en route to Mexico City, and that he might be expected here tomorrow. Señor Estrada also said that almost all the Generals of the northern division were coming to Mexico City for the convention of chieftains on Oct. 1, but as yet nothing was known for certain about the coming of Villa.

Licenciado José Lopez Moctezuma, former attorney for the National Railways of Mexico, has been arrested on political charges and held at Police Headquarters.

Saloons, after being closed more than a month, were allowed to open this afternoon, but will be restricted in respect to hours and in other ways.

KAISER THE HERO OF WAR STORIES

ADDRESS TO SON'S TROOPS

Generous with Iron Crosses in Hospital—Copenhagen a Centre for Berlin Reports.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The fog of German warfare does not obscure the War Lord's movements, and it is possible to follow him from place to place by means of inspired bits of news that creep occasionally into the German papers.

The other day the Kaiser visited the establishment of a Protestant religious order which had been turned into a military hospital. He walked through the rows of wounded soldiers, spoke to the men, and grasped the outstretched hands of those unable to salute or rise from their beds. He afterward sent a rose to every wounded soldier who did not have the honor of a personal chat with him. Incidentally he distributed Iron Crosses right and left.

The clergyman who had the care of these wounded soldiers seems to have addressed the Kaiser with too heavy a heart.

"We have to make sacrifices in these times," said the Emperor, and he reminded the cleric that he had six sons fighting in the war.

"Yes, your Majesty, that is our pride and happiness," responded the Chaplain.

"I did all in my power to keep peace," proceeded the Kaiser, "but our enemies would not have peace. Now we will have to crush them to the ground. Don't you agree?"

The meek clergyman, in relating this conversation afterward, said he had nothing to do but agree with the Emperor and assure him he was prepared to make every sacrifice for the Fatherland.

"Yes, your Majesty."

"How much per cent.?"

"A hundred per cent., your Majesty."

The Kaiser smiled, patted the nozzle of a machine gun, and passed on through the ranks of the Imperial Grenadiers.

The Kaiser was reviewing a regiment of the Imperial Grenadiers commanded by his son Prince Oscar, after the battle of Virton.

"I salute you," he said, addressing the men just after embracing the Prince. "I have often seen your gallant regiment at manoeuvre. It is a great pleasure for me to meet you again on conquered ground. The heroic deeds at Virton will be engraved on the history of the war forever in golden letters. Your regiment has upheld the glorious traditions of your forefathers in 1870 and 1871. The armies of the Crown Prince and Duke Albrecht of Württemberg have advanced victoriously. Our Eastern Army has thrown three Russian Army Corps over the frontier and two more Russian Army Corps have been captured in the field. For all these victories we have One to thank, and He is our ancient God who is over us."

The Kaiser again kissed his son and then drove off in his motor.

Copenhagen is just now flooded with German news. It can be relied on only when sent by Danish correspondents in Berlin. From photographic prints exhibited in newspaper windows, from thrilling movies shown in Copenhagen picture theatres and occasionally from more reliable German papers, it is possible to get a glimpse of the German Army in its true light, and the iron hand that rules it. I will say nothing of the coarse jests at the expense of the British soldier to be seen in some shop windows here. They are reminiscent of the pictorial brutalities hurled at our army during the South African war.

IMPUGNS KAISER'S WITNESS.

Paris Matin Says Consten's Louvain Testimony Is False.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—On Sept. 2 the German Chancellor sent to the American press and on Sept. 8 the Kaiser himself sent to President Wilson charges that Belgian women and children had cut the throats of German soldiers billeted on them. The Kaiser cited these alleged acts as reasons for the destruction of Louvain.

In an addendum to the German White Book of diplomatic documents on the war this charge is supported by the evidence of one Hermann Consten, described as a Swiss investigator, who went to Liège in the service of the Red Cross.

The Matin today publishes a statement by the Chief of the Swiss Police, showing that Consten is not Swiss, but a German to whom Swiss naturalization has been refused. According to the Swiss official's statement, he is well known to the Swiss police, and after an investigation of a series of frauds a decree for his expulsion was signed on Sept. 10. He never belonged to the Red Cross; on the contrary, he has been under police surveillance for two years. After the declaration of war this man left Switzerland only from Aug. 9 to 14. It is absolutely impossible, the Chief of Police says, he could have been at Liège at the time of the siege.

Hermann Consten finally left Switzerland, in consequence of the decree of expulsion, on Sept. 13. It appears that several years ago he founded an information agency in Basle.

CALLS MARNE BATTLE MYTH.

German Commerce Chamber Says It Was All Imagined.

The Chamber of German-American Commerce (Incorporated) announced yesterday that there had been no "Battle on the Marne" and that all the stories written of the advance to the gates of Paris of the German armies and the subsequent defeat and retreat of those armies were inventions pure and simple.

That such a battle as was described in the newspapers early this month never occurred was made public in a statement written by "The military expert of the Chamber of German-American Commerce," who captioned the statement "The Battle on the Marne a Colossal Myth."

"For several weeks," he writes, "the American papers have been filled with descriptions of the enormous 'Battle on the Marne,' lasting for ten days or longer on a front extending from 100 to 150 miles, where the German armies were defeated and driven back.

"It should now be plain to American editors and their military experts that such a battle has never taken place, and is an invention pure and simple.

"The situation is this: After their victories at Mons, Charleroi and other places, the Germans followed the enemy very quickly. Energetic pursuit of the defeated enemy is of importance but not without danger, especially if the enemy's forces are not completely destroyed or reinforcements can be brought up from various directions. On or about Sept. 5 the Germans recognized that their lines were too far extended and that the distances between the troops and the bases of supplies were becoming too great.

"In addition, the German right under Gen. von Kluck was threatened by an army to the north of Paris, probably formed by the Paris garrison, forces withdrawn from the vicinity of Belfort, French troops from Morocco and perhaps British reinforcements.

"Gen. von Kluck's lines, which had penetrated as far as Provins, less than fifty miles from Paris in a southeasterly direction and near the Seine River, must have been rather thin and it would have been extremely hazardous to accept a battle with a large and closely concentrated force of fresh troops. Besides, a part of the German right was undoubtedly so far from the main army that it had become extremely difficult, if not impossible, to bring up ammunition, &c., in sufficient quantities for a regular battle.

"Under the circumstances it naturally became necessary for the German commanders to concentrate the vast army, to draw in the detachments which had advanced too far, and to take a position where the force could be used with telling effect. How well this movement was executed need not be dwelt upon because it is clear to every observer.

"During this movement there were, of course, a number of collisions such as are generally designated rear-guard actions. They were scattered over a wide area, entirely separate from each other and in no case the result of concentrated action. In the course of the movement the Germans naturally lost a number of prisoners because many small detachments were too far away to be able to reach the main army quickly enough, and also some guns, because the heavy rains had made the roads impassable and ammunition had become scarce. A concentrating movement on so large a scale cannot be executed without losses.

"The German General Staff undoubtedly speaks the truth when it declares that the Allies have won no victory. No real battle was ever fought, and the whole fighting consisted in a series of occasional rencontres which in no wise hindered the Germans to finish their concentration. An army, beaten in a struggle lasting ten days, and 'driven back,' as we constantly hear, could not make so firm a stand on ground, and at a time, chosen by its commanders. The whole great 'Battle on the Marne' is a myth and has never taken place."

LITTLE CRIME IN LONDON.

Sessions Calendar Lightest in the History of the County.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Robert Wallace, the Chairman, in charging the Grand Jury at the County of London Sessions today, said he was pleased to say the calendar was the lightest in the history of the county. At a time like the present, when there was so much want, it was a cause of genuine congratulation that he was able to make such a statement.

Mr. Wallace said he rejoiced that the people of England exercised such wonderful control and restraint in the present crisis.

PREPARE TO TEST WIRELESS CONTROL

Federal Censorship Question To Be Submitted to Court, Says President Griggs.

MAY SEIZE PLANT TODAY

Daniels Determined to Use Navy, if Necessary, to Maintain Neutrality Order.

The Marconi wireless station at Siasconset was not taken over by the Government yesterday, as was expected. Instead, the Navy Department postponed action for at least one day, and last night the indications were that the question of Government wireless censorship and control would be fought out to a finish in the Federal courts.

John W. Griggs, President of the Marconi Wireless Company of America, telegraphed Secretary Daniels yesterday afternoon suggesting that he withhold action until the matter could be decided in the courts. Word came from Washington last night that the Secretary had taken the suggestion under advisement, and that he would confer with officials of the Departments of State and Justice before replying to Mr. Griggs's telegram.

The answer of the Secretary of the Navy is expected to be made today and if he follows the advice already given by Attorney General Gregory in the matter it will probably be a declination of Mr. Griggs's suggestion. Prior to the receipt of the message from Mr. Griggs the Secretary had stated that he would give the company until today to give assurances that it would rigidly observe the neutrality regulations promulgated by President Wilson. There is no reason to believe that any such assurance will be given. If it is not given and the course indicated Monday, is followed, the Government may seize the Siasconset station today.

The Marconi side of the controversy was explained in a statement issued late in the afternoon by Mr. Griggs. In that he said that a representative of the company in Washington had vainly endeavored on Monday to obtain a copy of the opinion of the Attorney General, in which he advised the Secretary of the Navy that the President had the right to "close down, take charge of and operate" the Siasconset station if the neutrality regulations of the Government were not adhered to by the wireless company.

The statement then continued:

> The Marconi Company is preparing papers for a suit to be brought in the Federal Court to determine by judicial decision the rights of the company and of the Navy Department, as to which controversy exists. The following telegram was today sent to the Secretary of the Navy:
>
> "Referring to your letter 19th, we have been unable to procure copy of Attorney General's opinion, owing to unwillingness of the departments to give it out. In view of the very important legal questions involved and public and private injury that would be caused by forcible action, we suggest that such action be withheld long enough for us to submit question to decision of a Federal Court in a suit, papers for which are now preparing."
>
> We desire to correct any impression that the public may have that the Marconi Company is wilfully trying to evade the neutrality laws of the United States. They are doing nothing of the kind. They are endeavoring to the utmost of their intelligence and ability to conform to every requirement of a neutral citizen of this country. They take the position that the reception and transmission of messages from their stations are not forbidden by any law or treaty. If it is unneutral for the Marconi Company to receive a message from a British war vessel at sea, it is quite as unneutral for a telegraph or cable company to receive or forward messages to or from Canada, Great Britain, France, or Germany; yet it is indisputable that citizens of this country have a right to deal with the belligerent nations, to sell them munitions of war, food supplies, and any other commercial material.

The statement then points out that the much-criticised message from the British cruiser Suffolk was one addressed to a private person here asking that 800 pounds of potatoes and 377 pounds of fresh beef be sent to her on the high seas. It goes on:

> It is difficult to see how this is any more a violation of neutrality than for the British Government to cable to a manufacturer or dealer in the United States to ship to that country guns, ammunition, powder, flour, wheat, or any other material of commerce which would, if captured by another belligerent, become contraband of war.

Last night Richard A. Ford, of counsel for the Marconi Company, had a conference with Secretary Daniels in Washington, and during that conference Mr. Daniels handed to Mr. Ford a copy of that part of Attorney General Gregory's opinion, in which the President's right to enforce wireless neutrality was upheld. It was stated after the conference that it was the purpose of Secretary Daniels to use the navy to the extent necessary to maintain the neutral operation of the Marconi Station at Siasconset, unless orders to the contrary were issued by President Wilson.

CONFER ON SAYVILLE PLANT.

Government Not Thinking of Seizing Station, Daniels Tells Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Conferences were held at the State and Navy Departments today over the use of the Sayville (L. I.) wireless station on Long Island. Information had reached officials of the Telefunken Company operating the Sayville plant to the effect that the Government contemplated taking over the Sayville plant and operating it in place of the Tuckerton (N. J.) plant, which was disabled last week by being burned out. To ascertain the intentions of the Administration, two officials of the company called on Secretary Daniels today. They were H. O. Boehme, manager of the operating and engineering department, and Paul C. Schnitzler.

Secretary Daniels told his visitors that his department was merely acting as policeman with respect to the wireless stations, in accordance with orders given by the President after consultation with officials of the State Department. Mr. Daniels said he knew of no present intention of taking over the Sayville plant, and suggested that his callers interrogate Acting Secretary of State Lansing. Mr. Lansing also told them that the State Department did not contemplate at this time asking that the Navy Department take over complete control of the Sayville plant.

SUIT OVER THE CECILIE.

North German Lloyd Would Take Its Liner from Bar Harbor.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 22.—An application for permission to bring the North German Lloyd steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie from Bar Harbor to this port for anchorage during the Winter will be presented to the Federal Court here, it was learned today.

The ship is in the custody of the United States Marshal for Maine in consequence of the suit brought by New York bankers because of the ship's failure to deliver gold bullion at Plymouth, England. The Cecilie while bound from New York to England sought refuge at Bar Harbor when the European war began.

ALLEGED REFUGEES NEVER SAW AMERICA

Relief Committee in London Fears That Thousands of Cases Are Fraudulent.

OUR AGENTS NOW WARNED

Nothing to be Done with Those Who Have Arrived with Passports but Send Them Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—There is grave suspicion both at the United States Embassy and among the members of the American Relief Committee that a large number of the thousands of refugees applying for the protection of the United States on the ground that they are naturalized American citizens are in reality German or Austrian subjects who have obtained passports fraudulently.

Many of these folk who are pouring into England by every boat from the Continent are unable to speak English and seem to have vague ideas about America, which they ardently claim as their home. One woman with an unpronounceable German name, casually interrogated in German by a member of the committee at the Savoy Hotel today, gave an apparently bona fide address in New York, but was ignorant about landmarks known to every visitor to that city, such as the Statue of Liberty, Broadway, and the Woolworth and Singer Buildings. "She says she lived six years in New York, but I don't believe she was ever closer to it than she is now," her interviewer said afterward.

All who seek relief of any kind from the American Committee must have American passports if they come from the Continent, and, of course, the committee cannot discriminate against anybody showing a passport unless it is obviously fraudulent. The responsibility must rest with the diplomatic and consular representatives in Germany, Austria, and elsewhere, who, in the rush of refugees, perhaps issue passports without making inquiries that are sufficiently searching.

Generally, it is believed the game is worked by a person really naturalized who is eager to help Austrian or German relatives to America out of the war zone.

This form of swindling Uncle Sam is likely to become less easy, however, for diplomats and Consuls have now been instructed to be on their guard against impostors claiming American citizenship.

In the list of several hundred names of "American" refugees arriving on Sunday from Germany printed in today's issue of the committee's bulletin there are not half a dozen which are not obviously Teutonic, and a considerable percentage of them are unable to speak anything but German.

NEW WAR TAX BILL WILL BE RUSHED

House Democrats Plan to Limit Debate and Jam the Measure Through Tomorrow.

REPUBLICANS DECRY 'PANIC'

Ways and Means Minority Assails Proposed Legislation and Charges "Reckless Extravagance" by Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The War Revenue bill, now a political issue between the Democrats and Republicans in Congress, will be put through the House on Thursday by means of a so-called "gag" rule, which will limit all debate to four hours. No opportunity will be offered to amend the bill in any particular, but at the end of the discussion the Republicans may, the rule provides, offer a motion to recommit the legislation to the Ways and Means Committee with instructions to substitute a Republican-made bill.

This steam-roller method of doing business makes it certain that the bill will go to the Senate in the form it was written by the Ways and Means Committee, which followed the instructions of the Democratic caucus. The big Democratic majority in the House will make it impossible for the Republicans to do more than acquire campaign material. The keynote of their opposition will be what they call Democratic extravagance.

Representative Underwood, the majority party leader, introduced the resolution for the rule to limit debate today, after he had presented the formal report of the Ways and Means majority asking for favorable action on the tax measure. A little later the Republican members of the committee presented their adverse report. These perfunctory proceedings placed the legislation on the calendar, with the decks of the House cleared for the struggle to come on Thursday.

The Republicans will begin the fight by protesting against the adoption of the rule. They will assert that when the Spanish War Tax bill was passed in the House sixteen years ago there were two days of debate after the measure was taken up under the five-minute rule for amendment. In 1898, as now, the war tax question was political, although at that time the solid Democracy was against it and the Republicans were compelled to push it through by force of numbers.

The two reports from the Ways and Means Committee, representing the majority and minority views, both contain a review of the Treasury situation and by use of the same figures arrive at totally different conclusions. The majority members found that the loss of customs revenues that will be caused by the European war for one year will be $100,000,000, which amount, unless replaced by taxes from some other source, will cause a serious deficit. The minority members, although they argue that conditions would have been much better under a protective tariff, profess to see no danger in the Treasury situation and assert that the practice of economy by the party in control of affairs would meet the deficiency much better than a tax.

"It is true that at this time we have a general fund balance in the Treasury amounting to about $119,000,000," says the majority report. "About $75,000,000 of this money is deposited in the national banks of the country to assist in the movement of the crops and to meet the Treasury's daily needs when required. Of the remaining surplus there is a large amount in subsidiary coin and bullion, which is not available for use in meeting current obligations.

"The question therefore confronts us as to whether it is advisable to call in this surplus from the banks at this time or to levy additional taxes to take care of the loss of revenue caused by the war in Europe. All conditions throughout the civilized world have been disturbed and interfered with by the war in Europe. The great nations of Europe have gone to a paper basis and gold has gone to a premium. International exchange has been interrupted and must be re-established on a new basis.

"The usual course of exports abroad, that we expected to return gold to this country within the next four months, has been interfered with, bringing about a more or less demoralized condition of business in our own country, and has placed a tremendous strain on our banking facilities.

"It is therefore deemed unwise at this time to withdraw Government funds from the banks of the country, because, if the Government now withdraws its funds, it will necessitate the banks reducing their credits, embarrassing the movement of our crops and reducing our Treasury working balance to the minimum, and probably bringing disastrous conditions to our people.

"It seems to be the part of wisdom for the Congress to levy a tax to care for the deficit in our customs revenues brought about by conditions over which our Government and our people have no control."

This theory is combatted by the Republicans. Their report, after showing that the Treasury balance on Sept. 2 was $122,843,190, says:

"It would not seem from the above that there is any occasion for panic, or hasty action, or headlong rush to enact legislation to heap heavier burdens upon the people. While not disputing that the balance is not lare enough to meet present demands, the President argues against the withdrawal of this money from the banks, and for resorting to taxation of the people. He believes that this withdrawal of these deposits would take money out of business and cause injury. We fail to see wherein a gradual withdrawal of the money in these banks, as the Treasury may need it, will have any more serious effect on the banks and business generally than the withdrawal of the much larger sum from the people by increased taxation. The banks are undoubtedly generally able to live up to their contracts, and this recall would work little injury or hardship.

"Business has been in bad condition for a year, and the proposed drain would be very onerous and difficult to meet. If the Treasury needs more money, it arises not so much from the war in Europe as from the reckless extravagance of the party in power."

HENNESSY HAMMERS GLYNN

Says Democrats Have Brought the State to Bankruptcy.

John A. Hennessy made a tour of Queens last evening, speaking at Astoria, College Point, and Jamaica.

"I have entered this fight for the purpose of destroying Charles F. Murphy," said Mr. Hennessy. "I'll defeat him either at the primaries next Monday or at the election in November. With him will go all the bosses in the counties that have been doing his bidding. If Murphy succeeds in nominating Glynn next Monday, you will see a Republican Governor elected in November.

"The State of New York has been brought to bankruptcy by the Democrats. Gov. Glynn says there will be no direct tax, but I say to you that whoever is Governor will have to have a direct tax next year. While Glynn has been cutting off the necessary appropriations for the State institutions, he has increased the State payroll by $992,000.

"What has Glynn done? He has suppressed the investigations into the State road frauds, the canal frauds, and the excise frauds. Sulzer was removed because he started these investigations, and Glynn was put in office to stop them, and he did stop them.

"Gov. Glynn has been declaring that he wants harmony in the Democratic Party. He went to Washington and told President Wilson that he would recognize Democratic autonomy in the counties in the State. Yet in the Counties of Chenango, Erie, Monroe, Putnam, Cayuga, Oneida, and Delaware, where the anti-Murphy Democrats control the party affairs, Glynn has not given a single appointment or a bit of recognition to any but the minority."

ROOSEVELT IN NEBRASKA.

Democrats Help Draw Crowd, but There Is a Reason.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 22.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt told Progressives of Nebraska in a speech in this city tonight that the party ticket in this State should be supported by every believer in progressive principles. He indorsed woman suffrage and urged support for that issue by every member of the party.

The Colonel was introduced by Harry E. Sackett, Progressive candidate for Governor. Democrats of the city worked ardently to promote a crowd for the Colonel on the theory that every vote polled for the Progressives in this State would aid in the defeat of the Republican ticket.

Officials of every party State Committee were in attendance. The Republicans made an effort to show that the ovation tendered the Colonel was in a large measure non-partisan and an honor due an ex-President.

The Colonel caustically referred to the fact that R. B. Howell, Republican candidate for Governor, had remained in his party after protesting vainly against the wrongs of machine control.

"There is one thing I want every one to favor at the polls this Fall," he said, "and that is the equal suffrage amendment. In Kansas I talked to the voters of the State. Men and women there vote."

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—An invitation by telegraph was extended and accepted today for Col. Roosevelt to be the guest at dinner of Gov. Edward F. Dunne at Springfield on Thursday night. Col. Roosevelt will speak at Rock Island, Galesburg, and Peoria on Thursday, and will reach Springfield on Thursday night.

PLAN BALLOON RACE ALL FOR AMERICANS

Gordon Bennett Entrants Are Expected to Take Part in Contest.

A. LEO STEVENS TO LEAD

Start Will Be Made from Point East of Philadelphia, Probably Point Breeze.

A. Leo Stevens, who made balloon ascensions before the days of the aeroplane, will try this Fall to bring the sport of ballooning back into favor. He proposes an All-American balloon race, to start between Oct. 1 and Oct. 10, from some point east of Philadelphia. He expects that ten balloons will start, among them three constructed for the Gordon Bennett international race, which was postponed on account of the war.

It was the war that led to the movement for ballooning as a sport. The "Made in America" propaganda was being discussed at the Aero Club, when some one suggested: "Why not a 'Made in America' balloon race, since foreign ballooning has gone by default?"

Stevens found many ballooning enthusiasts who thought ballooning such a fine sport that it ought not to be abandoned.

The exact starting point has yet to be decided. Places near New York were frowned upon because of the danger of being carried out above Long Island Sound or out to sea. Massachusetts was discussed, and it is possible that a point of departure will be agreed upon near Blue Hills Observatory. It was at this observatory that balloons, both with passengers and with only self-registering instruments, made a first map of the air ocean up to seven miles. Another point discussed was Point Breeze, near Philadelphia. Several contestants favor Point Breeze as more available for the spectators who are expected to watch the balloons get away.

Only drifting balloons will be allowed in the race. A feature heretofore not attempted will be automobile racing with the balloons. There will be a prize for the first automobile to reach the winning balloon after it lands and a special trophy for the balloon which lands nearest the "king balloon," which will start in advance of the others and will mark out a course which the others will be expected to follow as nearly as their pilots can.

The balloon "Dancing Dell," with Stevens in charge, will be the "king balloon," and will carry along a trophy provided by F. Harrison Higgins, to be given to the balloonist who lands nearest the "king balloon." Besides Stevens, those who have signified their willingness to participate in the race are Alan R. Hawley, President of the Aero Club of America; Dr. Jerome Kingsbury, Charles J. Glidden, Arthur T. Atherholt, Charles Jerome Edwards, William F. Whitehouse, Henry Woodhouse, William D. Gash, Clifford B. Harmon, and J. H. Wade.

The Aero Club of America, it was announced last night, was prepared to sanction the race.

COLORADO TRUCE PARTLY REJECTED

GRIEVANCE PLAN DEFECTIVE

Couldn't Guarantee Continuous Operation—Welborn Sees President Today—Rockefeller, Jr., Helping.

DENVER, Sept. 22.—The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, through its President, J. W. Welborn, has sent a reply to President Wilson's letter of Sept. 5, suggesting the plan of truce between the company and the striking miners. The reply states that the company is in hearty accord with some of the suggested terms of the truce, but that it would have difficulty in accepting others.

According to Mr. Welborn the company would be in serious difficulties if it agreed to re-employ "all striking miners who have not been found guilty of violating the law." In the first place, he says, that because of the depressed state of the steel industry it is doubtful if the company will continue to have enough work for all the men now in its employ in the coal and iron mines. Because of the hazards attending operations inside the coal mines the company is opposed to employing men hostile to the present employes. Mr. Welborn, however, adds:

"We are prepared to re-employ upon work which may be available any man who, so far as we know, has not shared in responsibility for acts of violence or overt hostility. In fact, we are daily taking back such men into our service."

Mr. Welborn says that the establishment of a grievance commission is desirable in purpose, but that the plan proposed is defective. For example, he says, the proposal that mines could not be closed down more than six consecutive days except by permission of the proposed commission would make the company dependent upon the views of the commission, rather than upon the company's knowledge of mercantile conditions. Further, he urges that the proposal that the commission should assess penalties for any violation of the scheme is inequitable, because fines could be enforced against the company only. Also, according to President Welborn, the proposal that the employes bear half the cost of the commission is objectionable because it is "precisely the form of exaction from which the promise of an 'open shop' entitled our men to expect exemption."

Denies Company Violated Law.

Mr. Welborn accepts the provision for "the enforcement of the mining and labor laws of the State," and denies that his company has ever violated them. The provision that the "intimidation of union and non-union men be strictly prohibited" Mr. Welborn accepts, saying that its wisdom is beyond question. He says that the company at once took steps to comply with the proposal that the current scale of wages, rules, and regulations of each mine should be printed and posted.

"We are now developing," Mr. Welborn says, "an even more comprehensive plan, embodying the results of our practical experience, which will, we feel confident, result in a closer understanding between ourselves and our men."

At the moment, according to Mr. Welborn, this is the situation:

"There is no likelihood that the supply of Colorado coal, of which our company produces but 35 per cent. of the total, will be inadequate or that the price will be unusual. More than 9,500 men—nearly all old employes—are peaceably at work in Colorado coal mines, receiving the highest wages paid to that class of labor anywhere in the United States."

He says that the company's production of coal is more than 70 per cent. of the usual output and fully 90 per cent. of the demands of the trade.

Mr. Welborn plans to discuss the strike problem with President Wilson at Washington tomorrow by appointment.

At a convention held at Trinidad last week the union coal miners of Colorado accepted the truce plan without amendment. The letter signed by Mr. Welborn is the individual reply of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. The other operators in the State, it is announced, will unite in a separate letter to the President.

> Sept. 22, 1914.
>
> The President, White House, Washington, D. C.:
>
> Mr. Welborn has sent a copy of the reply which he has made on behalf of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company to your letter of Sept. 6. As this reply is made on behalf of that company alone, I feel at liberty both as one of the Directors and as representing a substantial minority interest, to take a more active part in the matter than I did when it was in the hands of a committee representing all the operators. Will you permit me therefore to say that I am in hearty sympathy with the spirit of earnest desire to meet your wishes which Mr. Welborn's letter manifests?
>
> I sincerely hope that as a result of the interview you have granted to Mr. Welborn some practical plan may be evolved which will be adapted to the peculiar situation of our company and be acceptable to our employes. I beg further to assure you that my time is at your disposal, and that I will support any constructive plan which properly conserves the interests of the stockholders, the employes, and the public.

N. Y. U. OPENING TODAY.

Institution Enters Upon its 83d Year—Increase in Registration.

New York University will begin today its eighty-third year of service with the opening of the College of Arts and Pure Science and the School of Applied Science at University Heights. Despite war conditions and the continued wave of financial depression registration seems to show a marked increase, and it is expected that when the three-day period ends this afternoon a marked gain over last year will be registered.

Chemical engineering and its allied courses, which have shown such marked popularity during the past few years, will probably lead in the percentage of new students. Not long ago these courses were far from popular, but the need for trained men in the various chemical industries has so broadened the field that every year sees an ever-growing enrollment.

One of the important changes in the college at University Heights which will go into effect this year is the introduction of the point system. This has as its principal idea the adaptation of the course to the student rather than the student to the course, and, in addition to the introduction of major and minor subjects and an honors system, abolishes all re-examinations in minor subjects and electives. Work under the new plan will require also the study of seven prescribed subjects and will demand at least a one year's course in mathematics, in natural science, and in exact science. As many subjects as possible will be put on a six-day basis. This means that the college student will have to attend six days in the week.

CALL FOR GOLD TO EXPORT.

City Banks Asked to Contribute Their Pro Rata Shares.

The special committee appointed by the New York Clearing House to deal with the problem of raising this city's share of the $100,000,000 gold destined for Europe to relieve the foreign exchange stringency last night sent to the 128 banks and trust companies in New York City a letter asking for each institution's pro rata contribution. The letter, which was signed by A. H. Wiggin, William Woodward, J. S. Alexander, F. L. Hine, Benjamin Strong, Jr., and F. A. Vanderlip, was in part as follows:

"The banking and commercial interests of this country are suffering from the unprecedented dearangement of our international trade and banking arrangements. European credits are curtailed and foreign exchange in volume is unobtainable. It is of fundamental importance that the credit of the corporations, firms and individuals of this country be maintained by the prompt payment of foreign indebtedness, and it is equally important that our merchants and manufacturers be relieved of the expense and difficulties now imposed upon them in settling their foreign accounts.

"The Federal Reserve Board recognizes the necessity of providing an immediate solution of the problem and asks the co-operation of the entire country. The members of the Federal Reserve Board are Government officials, and the membership of the board includes the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States and the Controller of the Currency. The Federal Reserve Board is best able to cope with this international situation, and proposes to give its indorsement and recommendation to a request to the banks and trust companies in all the central reserve and reserve cities of this country to subscribe to this gold fund, if it is evident that the banks of New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston and Philadelphia, where the largest supplies of gold are held, will co-operate.

"The problem is a national one. The apportionment of the amount of gold to be contributed by the various cities will be determined by the Federal Reserve Board, due consideration being given to present gold holdings. This plan cannot succeed without New York, and the ability of New York to do its share depends upon the willingness of each institution to help."

The proportion of the $100,000,000 fund to be contributed by New York City is $45,000,000.

TWO DOGS SAVE FIVE LIVES.

Pet in Burning House Rouses Sleeping Family—Rescue from Well.

Two dogs in suburban towns saved five lives yesterday by their devotion to their masters. In Smithville South, L. I., the home of Anton Busch caught fire about 2 A. M., at which time none of the family was awake. Shep, the dog, tried to wake Mr. and Mrs. Busch and their two children by barking, and when they paid no attention to this he ran into Mr. Busch's room and tugged at the bedclothes until his master awoke. The family escaped just before the stairway caught fire. The house was a total loss.

Stephen Doyle of Eagle Rock Avenue, West Orange, N. J., yesterday afternoon was picking grapes from a vine wound about an old oak tree. Presently the ladder on which he stood gave way, and Doyle was pitched off, falling on some old boards covering the mouth of an abandoned well. He broke through and fell into the water, but was able to support himself on a stone projecting from the wall of the well. Here he clung precariously, while Blarney, his Irish terrier, who had seen the accident, ran to the kitchen, and by his barking brought Mrs. Doyle out to see what had happened to her husband. The dog led her to the well, where her husband was on the point of losing his hold. Mrs. Doyle threw him a rope which she had fastened to the oak tree, and with her aid he finally managed to crawl out to safety.

URGES PARCEL POST IN FREE MARKETS

Borough President Asks Postmaster General to Establish Special Stations.

DISPUTE OVER THE COSTS

Controller Holds Expense of Maintaining Open Trading Places Will Increase.

Borough President Marks made public yesterday a letter he has written to Postmaster General A. S. Burleson, asking that branch parcel Post Offices be established in the four new free markets in Manhattan. Mr. Marks suggests rates, for he pointed out that while the present rates for merchandise in general may be reasonable, they are prohibitive for neighborhood delivery.

"My suggestion is that a parcel post sub-station be provided in each of the open markets," he wrote. "I shall be glad to request the officials of the city to provide these spaces for the Government. As to rates, may I suggest the consideration of the following schedule for the Borough of Manhattan:

"Any parcel, basket, bag, or package weighing not more than 30 pounds, 5 cents.

"Any parcel, basket, bag or package weighing more than 30 pounds and not over 60 pounds, 10 cents.

"A proportionate charge could be made for any package exceeding 60 pounds in weight."

One pound, 5 cents; 10 pounds, 10 cents; 30 pounds, 20 cents; 50 pounds, 30 cents.

It is not believed the Government will deviate from the regular rates which obtain throughout the Union.

The Board of Aldermen at its meeting yesterday was asked to legalize the new free markets which Controller Prendergast says are being operated by Borough President Marks without warrant of law. Resolutions to that effect were introduced and referred to the Aldermanic Committee on Markets without discussion. The committee will report at the next meeting of the board, when the resolutions will come up for vote.

Controller Prendergast declared in no uncertain language yesterday that he was opposed to the markets, because the city has no right to pay the taxes it receives from storekeepers for the benefit of competitors who pay nothing to the city.

"It will require an outlay of at least $100,000 a year to run the markets," said Mr. Prendergast yesterday, and he added that this was a conservative estimate. Mr. Marks, he said, now seeks $29,000 a year in addition to the $35,000 he has already received

"There should also be charged," continued Mr. Prendergast, "the compensation of policemen, dock laborers, street cleaners, bridge laborers and inspectors of the Bureau of Weights and Measures and the Health Department. Even for men employed at the markets at this time, and assuming their number will not be increased, the charge for these men alone would be $30,000. Add to this the cost of carting garbage and incidentals and you have the $100,000 a year. This is without the payments for improvements. On Friday last a statement from Mr. Marks's office contained this phrase: 'The already large list of farmers who are regularly coming to the free markets,' &c. On that very day a careful inspection of the markets by an officer of the Finance Department showed only five farmers in all four markets."

"I think the Controller," said Mr. Marks, "will be willing to share the blame that may be attached to opening the free markets, for he knew all the time what I was going to do, and he did not have any objection until he found money was going to be spent on them. I don't believe a single retailer has been hurt by the markets. The fact remains that the city needs markets. What about those in other cities? Suppose some one is injured by the establishing of free markets. Why stop when the injuries, if there be any, are for the common good?"

At the close yesterday of District Attorney Cropsey's investigation of food prices in Brooklyn, Justice Benedict said that there had not been sufficient legal proof presented to warrant the holding of anybody for the Grand Jury. The court was of the opinion, however, that the inquiry had served a good purpose, and that the public had benefited. Justice Benedict commended the District Attorney for his work, saying that the public prosecutor was alive to his duties.

Tartan weaves in Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes

You know what "tartans" are; the characteristic plaids of the old Scottish clans. Some of them rich colorings, some more quiet and subdued.

Tartan colorings, in very small plaids and stripes, are now much used in our fabrics for men's clothing; they come from English and Scotch weavers, and from the best American mills; very beautiful patterns in blues, greens, dark reds; plaids and stripes.

Look especially at suits in tartan colors at $25; that price represents extreme value for you. We make some as low as $18; and others up to $50.

"FALSE" IS KEYNOTE OF REPUBLICAN CRY

"A BREAK WITH QUIGG"

Tanner Shows Anger, but Herbert Parsons is Judicial—Much Bitterness in Primary Fight.

The Republican primary situation was enlivened yesterday by renewed scrapping among the candidates and a statement from Chairman William Barnes in which he hurled defiance at critics. Mr. Barnes last night declared that he would continue to give advice as to how they should vote to best serve the Republican Party to all who came to him for such advice. He would draw the line only at coercion, promises of money or patronage, or the offering of other inducements which would involve a violation of the letter and spirit of the direct primaries law.

Said Mr. Barnes in his statement:

"The statements made in the press of various kinds in relation to the coming Republican primary regarding me in my capacity as Chairman of the Republican State Committee are false. I have a right similar to that possessed by every other Republican of the State to have my preference and to urge others to support those whom I believe best fitted to fill the offices for which they are candidates.

"I should like to suggest, however, to some of the Republican candidates before the primary, that they seem, in their zeal to secure their own nomination, to have lost sight of the more important fact that an election will take place in November, and that the battle is not between Republicans, but against Mr. Glynn, who will undoubtedly be the Democratic nominee; and that the ammunition cast against Republican candidates by Republicans will in turn be used against those who are successful at the primaries."

"Not Telling the Truth."

Congressman William M. Calder of Brooklyn, who was the first to accuse Mr. Barnes of improper practices, when told of the Chairman's statement, said:

"Mr. Barnes is not telling the truth. My information that Mr. Barnes was using the power of his position to unduly influence action at the polls in favor of a ticket headed by Mr. Whitman, came to me from members of Mr. Barnes's own State Committee and from County Chairmen up-State. It has also come to me in documentary form, but of this I will say no more at present."

District Attorney Whitman denied the statement made by Job E. Hedges that Whitman was receiving aid and comfort in his primary campaign from Lemuel Ely Quigg, best known as an accelerator for the Ryan interests.

"Why, it's absurd—absurd," said Mr. Whitman, with some show of indignation. "The only man behind the Whitman campaign is District Attorney Whitman. I have made inquiries, and I have been assured that Mr. Quigg has not contributed one cent to my campaign. Mr. Hedges says Mr. Quigg told him two years ago that he was going to make me Governor. What rubbish that is. As a matter of fact, I think Mr. Quigg opposed me when I ran for District Attorney five years ago.

"Is Mr. Quigg supporting me now? I don't know. I hope he is. I hope every Republican is supporting me. Have I seen Mr. Quigg? Of course I have seen Mr. Quigg when he has called on official business, as he has a number of times in the last few years."

Frederick C. Tanner, Mr. Whitman's campaign manager, became infuriated at the very mention of Mr. Quigg's name.

"Why, Hedges knows there is nothing to that," he said angrily. "Hedges and everybody else knows there has been nothing between Whitman and Quigg for months. They had a break last Spring."

Hedges Calls It "Bunk."

"What bunk all this is," ejaculated Job E. Hedges, when told of the denials made by Messrs. Whitman and Tanner. "Maybe there have been no formal calls since the campaign began, but there is such a thing as the telephone, isn't there? And entirely aside from the Quigg question, there is the implied contract that Mr. Whitman assumed when he was elected District Attorney that he should serve out his term."

Herbert Parsons, who is supporting Mr. Whitman, said:

"We hear about Quigg from Hedges, but Job makes no criticism of the action of George W. Aldridge and his machine in Monroe County declaring for him. The trouble with Job is not that bosses have declared for his opponents, but that not enough bosses have declared for him."

Harvey D. Hinman was put on the griddle by his opponents as a result of having done odd legal jobs for the Delaware & Hudson Railroad in Binghamton. The Delaware and Hudson raised its passenger mileage rate from 2 cents to 2¼ cents a mile. Mr. Hinman was in Buffalo yesterday and J. Calvin McKnight, his campaign manager, put in a long-distance call for him.

"Yes," said Mr. Hinman, "that information is correct. I have been retained both by the Delaware & Hudson and the Lackawanna, both of which roads enter Binghamton, but what about it?"

"Oh, nothing," said McKnight. "Only the Delaware & Hudson has raised its mileage rate."

"That should be up to the Public Service Commission," said Mr. Hinman. "And let me state incidentally that if I am elected Governor there will be some changes in the personnel of both the up-State and the New York City Commission."

ELLISON HAS NO KNIFE.

Ex-Corporation Counsel Defines His Attitude in Politics.

In reply to a letter from Bryan L. Kennelly, asking for a subscription to help carry on a factional fight against Leader Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall, William B. Ellison sent Mr. Kennelly a copy of a letter which he had written to Frank J. Goodwin, a Tammany leader, some time ago. This letter complained of the frequent use of Mr. Ellison's name by those seeking to reorganize Mr. Murphy out of the Tammany organization, and then it said in part:

> I am not blind to the fact that in the minds of a large number of people Mr. Murphy has suffered in his capacity as leader and has ceased to bring strength to the organization. There is nothing unusual in such a condition, for the reason, as we all know, that every man who has ever been a leader of a great political organization has in time become unpopular. It is now proposed by the marshaling of forces without the Democratic organization to make war on Mr. Murphy, and, of course, incidentally on each of the leaders who now supports him. With such a movement I have no sympathy, and of it I will not be any part.

Mr. Ellison said whatever political ambitions he might have had in the past had entirely passed away, but that his interest in the Democratic organization prompted him to define his position.

FIRST PRIMARY FORECAST.

Whitman Leads in this City According to Hinman's Figures.

The Hinman headquarters furnished last night a forecast as to the division of the Republican primary vote in New York City. Here it is:

New York County—Whitman, 11,000; Hedges, 8,000; Hinman, 6,000.
Bronx—Whitman, 2,500; Hinman, 1,500; Hedges, 1,000.
Brooklyn—Whitman, 13,000; Hedges, 10,000; Hinman, 7,000.
Queens—Whitman, 2,000; Hinman, 1,700; Hedges, 800.
Total in New York City—Whitman, 29,000; Hedges, 20,000; Hinman, 16,500.

"The small plurality shown for Mr. Whitman," said ex-Senator John B. Rose, who made the canvass, "will be easily overcome by Mr. Hinman's plurality up-State."

WILSON MEN CARRY JERSEY PRIMARIES

Democratic Congressmen Are Renamed with Slight Opposition.

RETURNS ARE VERY LATE

Vote in State Generally Light, with Bitterest Contests in Hudson and Bergen Counties.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 23.—With only the most meagre returns from today's State-wide primary election available at 1 A. M. today, it seemed certain that Wilson Democrats seeking nomination to Congress had won a victory over rival aspirants of their own political persuasion. The fact is that they had no real opposition, the Mercer County situation being much the same as that prevailing elsewhere with one or two exceptions.

In the fourth district, which, besides Mercer, embraces Hunterdon and Somerset Counties, Representative Allan B. Walsh had the field to himself with the exception of Charles J. Blake of this city, who ran against him at the last election and only got a handful of votes. History has repeated itself this year.

In Mercer County the indications are that J. Warren Fleming of Titusville has won out over his nine opponents for the Republican shrievalty nomination, while Fred R. Parker will doubtless be the Democratic nominee. Sheriff Walter Madden was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for Surrogate, while Samuel H. Bullock, the Republican incumbent, was also renamed without a contest. The Republican shrievalty fight was especially bitter, having been marked by Assemblyman Hervey S. Moore's attacks upon his opponents.

The Assembly nominations here excited very little interest. Hammond, Weart and Oliphant are the leaders in the Republican balloting at this hour, while Bennett, Enderbrock, and Field seem to be ahead in the Democratic. Three Assemblymen are to be named by each party.

First District—WILLIAM J. BROWNING, Republican; JOSEPH E. MOWREY, Democrat.

GET 17 NEW YORK REPEATERS.

Gang Had Two Autos and Poli Find Several Pistols in Them.

The arrest of seventeen young men suspected by the police to be gunmen and repeaters caused excitement in the Horseshoe District in lower Jersey City late yesterday afternoon. The prisoners had two automobiles. The police say they found revolvers in the automobiles and on one of the prisoners. The men loitered in the neighborhood of polling places.

They were taken to Police Headquarters and their pedigree and finger prints were taken there. Director of Public Safety Frank Hague said the finger prints would be taken to New York for comparison with the police records. Some of the prisoners had bruised faces. They were a husky lot, fairly well dressed, and most of them gave addresses in Manhattan. They were charged with being disorderly persons.

Edward Murner was arrested at a Montgomery Street polling place and charged with trying to vote illegally under the name of Frank Finn.

WILSON VOTES IN PRINCETON.

Takes His Turn in Line at Primary and Meets Old Friends.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 22.—Few people in Princeton were aware of the coming of President Woodrow Wilson today, and in consequence he had the rare privilege of walking about the university grounds practically alone. Mr. Wilson arrived at 12:30. He was accompanied by Dr. A. T. Grayson and the usual secret service deputation. Prof. Stockton Axson, the President's brother-in-law, met him at the station and went with him to the house of Engine Company 3 of Mercer County, where Mr. Wilson voted on Democratic ballot 18.

The President got a warm greeting from J. R. Drake, Chairman of the local board of registry, but there was no demonstration. Charles Houston, a Republican, was just ahead of Mr. Wilson at the polls, and wanted to step aside, but the President would not permit it. After voting, the President and Prof. Axson went to the new $300,000 athletic stadium, which is near completion. From there he walked out to his old home, meeting a lot of old friends on the way. He left here at 1:55 P. M. for Washington.

VIRGINIA GOES DRY.

Only Three Counties of the State Vote Against Prohibition.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 22.—The cities of Alexandria, Danville, Norfolk, and Richmond were the only ones that returned a majority against State-wide prohibition in the voting held today. The vote in the twenty cities was 21,726 for and 19,669 against State-wide prohibition. The country districts are rolling up an enormous vote in favor of the measure and Virginia will join the other "Dry" States on and after November, 1916, by a majority of not less than 25,000.

The surprise of the day was the vote in Petersburg, which was 2,122 for and 1,123 against. The "Wets" had figured on carrying that city as well as Newport News, which went "dry" by a vote of 1,024 to 761. In Alexandria, the home of a large brewery, the vote was 387 for and 1,132 against. Bristol, which voted "wet" in the last local option election, voted 424 to 282 for State-wide prohibition. Roanoke joined the "dry" column by a vote of 2,329 for and 1,226 against, and the vote in Lynchburg was 1,713 for and 973 against.

The Counties of Amelia, Page, and Greene are the only ones so far heard from that registered a "wet" majority.

The result of the election will cause the State to lose about $700,000 annually in revenues. It will cause all of the liquor manufacturing concerns to move from the State. Only manufacturers at present engaged in the production of wines and its by-products, cider, and beer of not over 3¼ per cent. alcohol, can manufacture in this State after Nov. 1, 1916. The product will have to be shipped outside the State and into territory where its sale is legally authorized.

The day was a perfect one throughout the State. No disorder was reported in any town or county.

Travis Comes Out for Calder.

Ex-Senator Eugene M. Travis of Brooklyn, candidate for the Republican nomination for State Controller, declared yesterday that he was in favor of Congressman William M. Calder of Kings for United States Senator and would vote for him in the primaries. Complaints had been made that Chairman William Barnes had placed Travis on his slate in a deal to win support in Kings County for James W. Wadsworth, Calder's rival for Senator.

HEDGES USES QUIGG TO ATTACK WHITMAN

Declares He Knows of Frequent Telephone Talks Between Them.

SUGGESTS JOHN DOE QUIZ

Tells of "Best Publicity Agent" and Col. Roosevelt in Conference on District Attorney.

At the Seventh Assembly District Republican Club, Eighth Avenue and Twenty-third Street last night Job E. Hedges talked of Lemuel E. Quigg's alleged connection with Charles S. Whitman's campaign for the nomination for Governor. Hedges styled Quigg "New York's best publicity agent," and said that Frederick C. Tanner, Whitman's manager, did not know of Quigg's connection with the Whitman campaign.

Mr. Hedges said:

"Mr. Whitman has denied that Mr. Quigg has, in any way, advised him during this campaign. He has denied that Mr. Quigg is a resident of New York City, and further he stated that he has neither seen him at his headquarters nor any other place for some months. I readily believe the latter. That is not the way Mr. Quigg works. He is the best publicity agent in New York City. As for the former statement, if Mr. Whitman will start a John Doe proceeding and inquire how many telephone calls he had received from Mr. Quigg in the last two years, particularly in the last few months, he will undoubtedly be surprised. I know conversations have been very frequent.

"I have never been to Oyster Bay," Mr. Hedges said. "Hinman went and took hold of something that he could not handle. Whitman went and got turned down. I may go some day, but it will be at noon and not at night.

"Roosevelt is a potential man. I have been informed that the last man Roosevelt saw before he went to South America was Quigg. Quigg had some business with the Colonel pertaining to the militia on Long Island. After the business talk was over, Quigg mentioned the advisability of Whitman being nominated for Mayor, his election, Quigg said, being a means of landing Roosevelt in the Presidential chair in 1916. If this statement is untrue, I will retract it with the publicity that I have made it.

"Things have come to a fine condition in the Republican Party when a County Chairman accompanys Whitman on his speechmaking trips and then rises and asks for his nomination. Tammany Hall, with all her political effrontery, never dared to perpetrate such tricks on the people."

WALSH FACES A FIGHT.

Democratic Leader in Westchester a Murphy Ally.

There is a revolt under way in Westchester that threatens the security of Michael J. Walsh's position as local Democratic boss. It is led by Verne M. Bovie of New Rochelle, the leader of the Westchester Hennessy-Roosevelt forces, or the Wilson Democracy, as the party is locally known. The Bovie adherents have nominated a county ticket which contains the following names:

For Sheriff—JAMES P. DUNN, Yonkers.

Treasurer—ADAM C. KISTINGER, New Rochelle.

Register—WILLIAM L. WARREN of Mamaroneck.

Senator—FRANK J. LAMB, White Plains.

For Sheriff—JAMES J. FLEMMING, Yonkers.

Treasurer—CHESTER DE WITT PUGSLEY, Peekskill.

Register—LEON ST. CLAIR DICK.

Senator—JOHN F. HEALEY of New Rochelle.

JOHN F. BRENNAN of Yonkers and MARTIN J. KEOGH of New Rochelle are candidates for the Constitutional Convention.

Walter A. Johnson of Pleasantville, a Progressive, has been named for Controller, a newly created office in the county, on both Democratic tickets, and has been indorsed by the Progressive Party.

Bovie himself is lined up against Mayor Fiske of Mount Vernon for State Committee in the Second Assembly District, while J. Coleridge Darrow of Peekskill is after John J. Sinnott's place as committeeman in the Third Assembly District.

John Larkin of Westchester is a candidate on the State ticket of the Hennessy-Roosevelt combination for the office of Attorney General, and John G. Agar and Augustus Thomas, both residents of the county, are candidates for delegates at large to the Constitutional Convention.

Other supporters of the county ticket are Bryan L. Kennelly of Purchase, Col. Francis Larkin of Ossining, formerly County Chairman; William Bailey, Jonathan Holden of Pleasantville, Michael Moran of Ossining, Charles May of Mount Kisco, and V. Everit Macy of Ossining.

Last week Franklin D. Roosevelt covered the county thoroughly in a speechmaking tour, and this week meetings are being held nightly with Mr. Bovie, Mr. Larkin, J. K. Sague, Augustus Thomas, and other Westchester independents as the principal speakers. Walsh's record as boss and as Charles F. Murphy's ally is held up for the inspection of voters at every meeting, and a great deal of care is taken to bring home to the silent vote the close political alliance and friendship between the New York and Westchester bosses.

Charges Broker Was Poisoned.

District Attorney Cropsey of Brooklyn yesterday received a telegram sent by Olga Britton in which she declared that David R. Beach, a Brooklyn real estate broker who swallowed bichloride of mercury in his home at the Vendome Apartments, Grand and Gates Avenue, was a victim of foul play. Mr. Beach is recovering. He said he never heard of the woman. The telegram was sent from Troy, N. Y., but the author gave her address as the Windsor Hotel, Montreal.

WHITMAN TOURS BROOKLYN

Will Appoint His Own Successor as Prosecutor if Elected.

District Attorney Charles S. Whitman made another tour of Brooklyn last night and spoke at the Twenty-first Assembly District Republican Club, 135 Leonard Street; the Congress Club, 586 Bedford Avenue; the Twenty-second Assembly District Republican Club, 236 Barbey Street; the Twenty-third Assembly District Republican Club, 31 Truxton Street, and the Kings County Republican Club, 1,068 Greene Avenue.

He was well received by audiences of considerable size. His speeches, which were brief, were practically the same at all the meetings. He said that if elected he would appoint his own successor in the District Attorney's office. He urged the voters to look up the record of each candidate and ask themselves what he has done, what he has tried to do, and what he has refused to do.

Mr. Whitman also visited a fair in the new clubhouse of the Loyal Order of Moose, at 482 Franklin Avenue.

LUSITANIA SAILS.

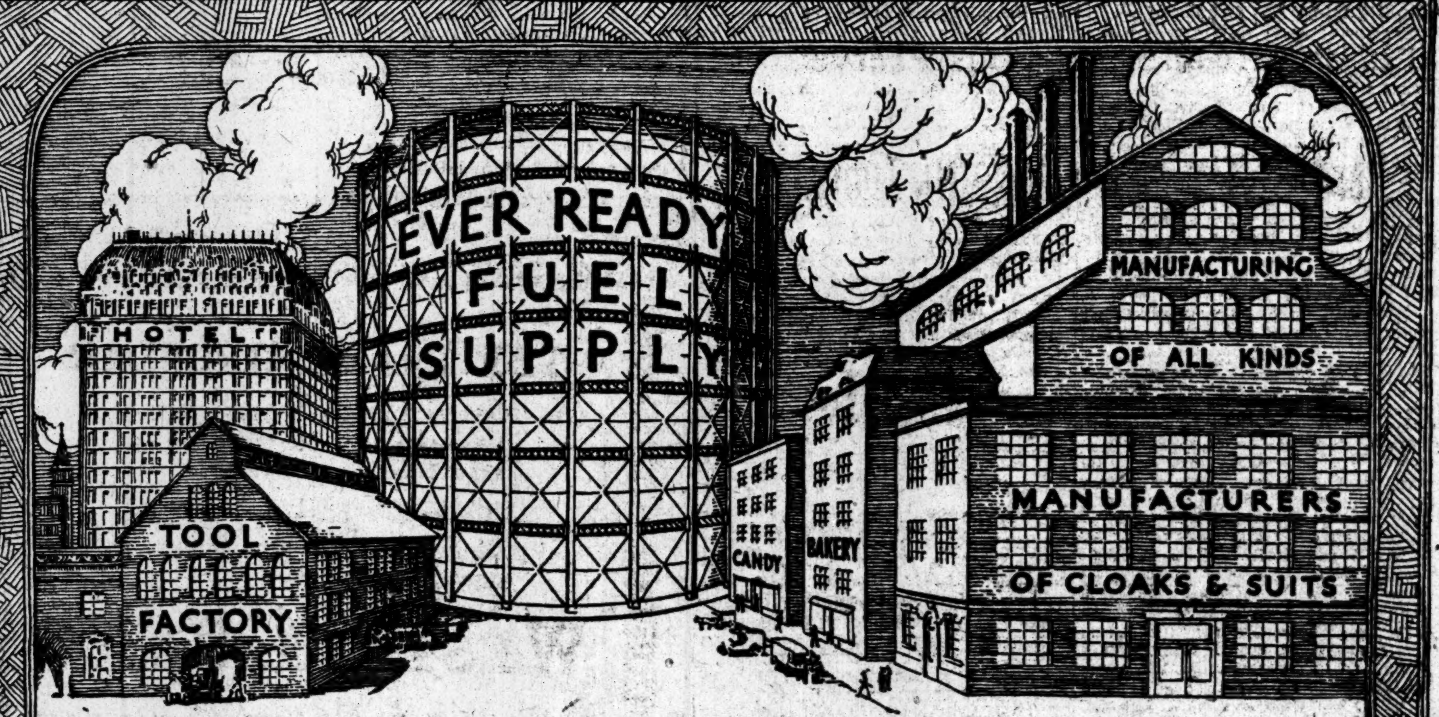
Military Attache of British Embassy Leaves for the War.

The steamship Lusitania of the Cunard Line sailed at 1 o'clock this morning for Liverpool direct, with 126 first-class, 110 second-class, and 250 third-class passengers aboard. Among the passengers was Lieut. Col. Moreton F. Gage, Military Attaché of the British Embassy in Washington, who left to join his regiment. He is a member of the Fifth Dragoon Guards. The Hon. Alfred Anson, one of the younger sons of the Earl of Lichfield, who has been touring this country, also sailed. He said that he intended to volunteer.

Just before the ship slipped from her pier Capt. Daniel Dow was handed an envelope addressed to the Lusitania, in which was a single sheet of paper bearing, in capital letters, the indictment: "Go to —— with the whole nation of England." The letter was mailed at the Grand Central Station Monday.



Big Business with Cost Prices Lowered

While developing a bigger business, manufacturers are figuring on lower "cost charges." This does not mean a lowering of the standard of the manufactured product. GAS FUEL is adaptable to every line of manufacture, no matter how large or how small the establishment. It is economical because there is no waste. Its heat is always under absolute control and ready for use at all hours—day or night. Present European conditions will add to the prestige of New York City, even now the largest manufacturing city in the world. You never see a gas-holder in any other than a thriving community because it is one of the most important agencies in the line of human endeavor and progress. ## THE WITHDRAWAL FROM VERA CRUZ.

So great has been the confidence of a large majority of the American people in the wisdom of the President's Mexican policy and their belief in its justification, thus far, by events, that the preparations making for the withdrawal of our armed guard of 7,500 men from Vera Cruz create hardly a ripple of excitement. The occupation of the chief port of Mexico, after Huerta's insult to our flag, was approved throughout the country, and there is no doubt that the presence of the troops was influential in hastening the close of hostilities in the Mexican civil war. There was no actual precedent for our occupation in the circumstances in which it was made, and, similarly, there is no precedent in all our history for the present withdrawal.

In Cuba we held military control until after the first election of a Cuban President, and in our second occupation, made to pacify the country, the troops remained until there was definite assurance that the danger of revolution was passed. As nothing could be gained for the United States, or for Mexico, by the withdrawal of our guard at Vera Cruz before a capable Provisional Government was established, preparations for a general election set afoot, and ample assurances received that the existing powers at the capital contemplate no action which will tend to precipitate European interference, the public mind is possessed of the idea that the Washington Government is satisfied on all these points. That is why there is so little comment on the pending withdrawal of our troops.

GERMANS AND THE WAR NEWS.

The most intelligible complaint of the German sympathizers in this country is that our newspapers print too much war news obtained from English and French sources. It is beyond argument that nothing more is printed than the situation demands. As the German military Government absolutely refuses to permit newspaper correspondents the freedom of their calling within its lines, there is no other source of information accessible. The reports of English correspondents, all of which are submitted to the cable censors before we receive them, are invariably credited to the sources from which they are derived. The curt official reports from the German authorities are printed daily as conspicuously as the statements emanating from the press bureaus of the British and French War Offices. There is every disposition on the part of the American press to give all possible prominence to news from German sources. The lack of such news is a continual subject of regret. But without the services of trained and unprejudiced American correspondents at or near the German lines such news could never be obtained.

Every effort has been made by the American newspapers to induce the German authorities to grant facilities to their correspondents, but to no avail. As a matter of fact the German military system gives no heed to an independent press such as that of England and the United States. The prevailing German idea of a newspaper is a subsidized and subservient sheet containing only statements of fact and opinion authorized by the Government. All American correspondents in Europe since the opening of the Atlantic cables in 1866 have been compelled to rely more largely than they have cared to on English sources of information. Yet the American people have never been under English influence, and they are assuredly not blind partisans of Great Britain now.

It is unlikely that any news derived from German sources would change the current of opinion in the United States as to responsibility for the present war. The New York Times has laid before its readers the "White Papers" of the British and German Governments, containing all the diplomatic correspondence preceding the outbreak of hostilities, which serve to place the responsibility precisely where it belongs. The American newspapers and their readers are eager to get news from the Germans. Such news, as reasonably impartial as most of that we get from English sources, notwithstanding the justifiable prejudices of the English writers, would be of immense value in the compilation of contemporary history. Our English dispatches have not given us a distorted view of the situation, in spite of the preposterous whims of the censors, who have frequently withheld from the cable, for twenty-four hours or more, statements of fact already printed in London.

We are not possessed of the idea that the Allies have been everywhere victorious. We have been enabled to comprehend the splendid efficiency of the German military machine. While we have been led to believe that the German losses have been heavy, we know that their adversaries have also suffered terribly. We know that the Germans have already destroyed six English warships, and we have learned that, not from German, but from English sources. Nothing in the way of official documents could be fairer or more candid than the reports of Field Marshal French to Lord Kitchener. Nevertheless, all American newspapers are willing to admit that they need more authentic and detailed reports of the operations from the German point of view, but they are not willing to admit that such reports would change the American idea of the culpability of the German military machine.

It is worthy of note, in considering the American reports of the war, that the New York correspondent of the Paris Temps, as announced in our cable dispatches this morning, is of the opinion that "Americans are infinitely better informed about the "war than any Europeans, even the "neutrals." It is his idea that the vast number of contradictory reports received here "rectify and clarify each other." With this opinion, we are inclined to think, unprejudiced readers of the best American newspapers will agree.

POSTAGE TO SOUTH AMERICA.

Postmaster General Burleson's announcement, reported in The Times yesterday, that he is considering a plan to make effective throughout the western hemisphere the two-cent rate for letter postage, and all the other cheaper mail rates of the Postal Union countries, took no account of the incidental sacrifice of revenue involved. It should take no account of it.

The Monroe Doctrine cannot forbid conquests by European nations in the commercial fields of South America. In these fields the United States has been outclassed. The exports of Great Britain to Brazil have been more than double in value those of the United States, and Germany has beaten us, too. Those two nations have led the United States in trade with all the other South American countries. Their banking facilities, postal money order systems, and means of exchange of intelligence and goods have been superior, their merchants have had advantages lacking to American merchants.

Postal treaties and conventions looking to the establishment of an efficient money order business with all the Central and South American countries, including the British, Danish, French, and Dutch West Indies, should follow the measures already taken to extend banking facilities to merchants of this country in South American cities. They should have been negotiated long ago. The opening of the Panama Canal and the exigencies of the European war merely accentuate their need.

THE REPUBLICANS AND THE SENATE.

When Elihu Root leaves the Senate next March this State will unwillingly surrender that position of leadership in the nation's councils which his presence in that chamber has conferred upon it. For many years the Empire State was about the least of the States in respect to influence in that body. She suffered the shame of voicelessness, with her Platts and Edward Murphys, while little States like Rhode Island and Maine guided the Republic's statesmanship. Mr. Root not only redeemed her from that reproach and made her vocal, but made her, as by right she should be, the leader.

Unfortunately, his determination to retire from her service is fixed. She can return, if she will, to the ignominious place at the foot of the table which she so long occupied. She can elect a mere politician, who will worthily fill the seat of Platt, but who will excite pity in the seat of Root. Some of the names suggested on the Republican side offer her that opportunity. If, however, she would like to preserve some remnant of the power and honor which for six years have been hers, there is at least one name on the Republican side which gives her a chance. That is the name of David Jayne Hill.

Dr. Hill is not only a statesman of experience, sagacity, and courage; he is also an authority on foreign affairs, and it is evident that a man who understands foreign affairs will be in a position to assume a place of leadership on the questions that are to come before the Senate in the immediate future. He has acted as Secretary of State at times of importance in the country's history; as Assistant Secretary of State he was a force, and made what in other hands has been an office of routine a place of dignity and influence; as Ambassador to Germany he ranked high among our diplomats. If he were in the Senate New York would have no such humble place among her sister States as she would if she elected some bright young politician or some party hack. We hope there are enough Republicans who feel pride in their State to see that the Senatorial nomination of their party goes to the one candidate who is most eminently worthy of it.

THE WEATHER.

The Summer ends today. It does not follow that there will be no more summery weather. The last few days, so far as the temperature is concerned, have been "left-overs" from June and July, which were compelled to carry a large share of early Spring weather, because the Winter of 1913-14, in its turn, lingered so long in the lap of Spring. This may not be a scientific explanation of the weather, but the scientific weather sharps have scarcely had a leg to stand on this year.

The showers they predicted were too often cold rains, lasting for many hours; they failed to explain the low temperatures which persisted in the season of outing, and we do not intend to rely on their assurances of seasonable weather now. We can philosophically bear the heat of late September, however, when we remember the chill nights and the persistent dampness of June and July, though it is worth noting that the crowds around the bulletin boards which were all strawhatted a fortnight ago, when the mercury was in the forties, have been felt and clothhatted lately with the temperature at 90, or thereabout.

THIS CITY'S DEVELOPMENT.

Foreign wars may come and go, but the development of Greater New York goes on apace. The next few years will show whether its scheme may unfold into the finest urban plan in the world.

Baron Haussmann's services as Prefect of the Seine in rebuilding and embellishing Paris furnish the only comparison to labors and the opportunities that lie before Chairman McAneny and the five Borough Presidents who make up the Board of Estimate's Committee on City Plan. Mr. McAneny's announcement, that the committee has the power not only to plan but legislative permission to execute, is preliminary to active work in redistricting and regulating the growth of the city in harmony with the dual subway and new dock and terminal improvements.

The subways will give the plan an adequate backbone. They will encourage, Mr. McAneny says, the "diffusion of the people over thinly settled districts," whence they may reach the civic centre by a single five-cent fare. The city and private individuals will within a few years spend several billions of dollars in buildings which will inevitably accomplish a redistricting. The only question is whether that redistricting shall be wild and uneconomic and inharmonious or orderly, with due regard to thrift and the welfare of the majority, and according to the cultivated judgment of the best architects and planners.

The regulative hand of the committee will be felt wherever changes threaten to be sharp and abrupt, involving hardship to large classes of the public and unjust advantage to a few. Those who fear that the committee may act arbitrarily forget that all their acts and decisions will be subject to the review of the courts, which may be relied on to deal evenhanded justice. But the day of complaints about insanitary tenements, unscientific streets, and lack of a beautiful and integrated park and playground system is past. With such vast changes as are bound to come with the new means of urban transportation a wonderful opportunity for civic planning will not pass neglected. The establishment of Central Park, the building of the City Hall, and the cleaning up of Five Points are isolated and sporadic examples in the history of the city, an earnest merely of what may come of a well-considered plan of city building. We are fortunate in having men like Mr. McAneny and his associates of a patriotic and non-partisan Administration to set the stamp and character upon this work.

CHILD LABOR.

The Colonel was reported yesterday as saying that when the Constitution was written there was no child labor. So far as this country is concerned that was true, because there were no factories, no tenements, no sweatshops. The Constitution did not produce them, and if the Constitution were amended or abolished they would still exist. They are not the product of modern heartlessness, but are byproducts of the factory system, without which modern populations could neither feed nor clothe themselves. That is no excuse for overworking children, and the Colonel carries everybody with him in wishing it reduced and regulated. But he shows small acquaintance with industrial history when he assails his contemporaries as child drivers.

When it was discovered how the application of power to machinery could enlarge human satisfactions the machinery was built low in order that children could work at it. That sounds shocking, but the fact is that such children workers came from the poorhouses, there being no means of support for either themselves or their parents. In the factories there were abuses which have disappeared. The children were flogged, and fettered, and sometimes committed suicide. Life was truly hard then, and yet the factory towns were better places to live in than the country towns where there was no work. Daniel Defoe contrasted them in his "Plan of English Commerce," and thought it cause for congratulation that in the factory towns "there is not a poor child above the "age of four but can earn his own "bread."

We have gone a long way since then, the Constitution and the courts to the contrary notwithstanding. We shall go a long way further yet, but we shall go further and faster by not taking the Colonel's way. We have in this State factory laws, and workmen's compensation laws, and other humane legislation such as he never provided us with when he was our administrator, but which he promises now that he has not the power. The world certainly is not as bad as he says.

Three of Great Britain's oldest and least valuable armored cruisers have been sunk by German torpedo boats. In this class of ships the Triple Entente floats 66 to the 11 flying the flags of the Dual Alliance, and in protected cruisers and scouts the ratio is 92 to 46. If, as Admiral Mahan thinks, submarines will play an important part in this war, the preponderance is still on the side of the Triple Entente, which at the outbreak of the war had 169 to 27 possessed by the Dual Alliance. In fact, in every naval class the weight of ships and guns is hopelessly against Austria and Germany. That is why the naval engagements thus far recorded have been insignificant. The British loss in the engagement just reported was measurably compensated by the destruction of two German submarines. The German Navy, at the outset of the war, had twenty-seven of these destructive craft and ten building. Three have now been lost. The engagement took place near the German coast, indicating that British war vessels are assembling in hostile waters and that a great naval battle may not be long deferred.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Peculiarity of Wartime Photographs.

Exemplifying, perhaps, that superiority of art over nature, or over reality, which Whistler has not been alone in proclaiming, quite the most "effective" illustration in the Mid-Week Pictorial War Extra to be issued tomorrow by The Times is a double-page reproduction of Detaille's "Defense of Champigny," a work of the French master that has long been one of the treasures of the Metropolitan Museum.

The painter had, of course, over the photographer, the advantage that, besides his carefully acquired knowledge of the scene he was to present, he could use his imagination for getting into his picture, as of a single moment, details that probably were not all to be seen at any one instant. That is the "condensation" to which all art owes so much. He could also make what may be called the emotional note of all the many personages, military and civilian, that he depicted, harmonious with the gravity of the chosen situation. The faces, therefore, of those defending the château are in expression all congruous with the serious business in which they were engaged.

One does not find this congruity in the other pictures, all actual photographs of recent episodes in, and consequences of, the present war. These pictures, too, have a reality that makes them intensely interesting as well as highly informative, but we distant observers of the war, thinking constantly as we do of its horrors and the momentous issues involved in it, cannot fail to be struck with surprise by the fact that a large majority of the faces caught by the camera, whether in the cities or in the field of active operation, wear expressions distinctly cheerful. Many of them are laughing, and it takes a long search to find one drawn with suffering or even sobered by anxiety.

The phenomenon is not inexplicable. War has many sides, and the experiences of those engaged in it are not all dreadful. Moreover, the human mind soon ceases to respond to a continuous stimulus. Now, as always, other feelings than those of fierce determination and bitter grief have frequent demonstration in these ravaged lands, and ordinary life goes on when it can, in spite of battle and sudden death.

Here, Surely, Is Real Enterprise.

Readers of The Times are well aware that the daily comments on the progress of the war in its several theatres, and the incidental explanation of the movements made by the various armies that are contributed by its military expert, have done much for them in the way of bringing into comprehensible order the mass of details coming here from official and unofficial observers. Few of our readers can know, however, and we have ourselves but recently discovered, that the work of this expert gets over to distant Petrograd, is there accepted as authoritative, and thence is sent back here, all in a space of time that is amazingly short.

One of many proofs that this is so which we might give from the same source is to be found in the following double-barreled exhibit:

| TIMES EXPERT, Sept. 20. | EVENING TELEGRAM, Sept. 20. |
| To relieve the pressure on the Austrians the army of Gen. von Hindenburg, in East Prussia, has turned southward in a demonstration toward Warsaw. It is hardly likely that this move will be carried further than is necessary to force the Russians to hold back a strong garrison in Poland. If too far pushed the German Army would be in danger of being taken in the rear by a new advance of the northern Russian Army from the Niemen. | To save the Austrian Army Gen. von Hindenburg, instead of hastening to France with his picked troops, is reported to be turning southward from East Prussia to make a demonstration toward Warsaw. It is not believed that he intends to invade Russian Poland more than is necessary to cause a strong Russian force to be deflected in that direction. If he tried to push too far into that territory he would be menaced seriously by a new Russian army which is advancing from the Nemen River. |

The Telegram's close and obvious paraphrase of our expert's remarks appears under a Petrograd date. Hence of course they went by telegraph and cable to the Russian capital, were there approved by Grand Dukes and Generals, and came back again, all in the few hours between the issuing of The Sunday Times and the Sunday Telegram!

The suspicious and cynical may have another explanation of this remarkable compliment to The Times, but we firmly refuse even to consider a theory that accuses a near and esteemed neighbor of predatory habits.

Two Wrongs Do Not Make Right.

Yielding to the not unnatural anger caused by the irreparable damage done by German cannon to the architectural monuments of France and Belgium, an English commentator on the war suggests that there are in the museums and galleries of Berlin and other German cities very valuable works of art. These, being movable, should all be taken away, he thinks, to other countries after the war comes to the end he confidently expects.

As an adjustment of punishment to fit the crime, this suggestion has a certain charm, but the pleasure that would follow carrying it out—should opportunity occur, which is not yet quite certain to be the case—would not be permanent or of the noblest quality.

The stealing of art objects by victorious from defeated nations was once so general, was a "folkway" so widespread, that those who practiced that form of acquisition were hardly deserving of adverse criticism. They had the practically adequate justification of doing only what everybody else did. Times have changed, however, and glimmers of ordinary morality are beginning to apepar even in those higher circles of sovereignty and diplomacy where they were formerly unknown and the higher expediency received never a thought. Preferable, therefore, to the Angry Briton's advice is some that comes from a Parisian source.

The vengeance of the Allies, declares the Frenchman Herve, should take another form. When they enter Germany, instead of retributive destruction, there should be scrupulous protection of all buildings which for themselves or their contents are of more than national value. Then the monuments of Belgium and France, so far as they cannot be restored, should be replaced by others of like kind, using funds contributed for the purpose from all countries except one—Germany—her penalty being deprivation of the right to help.

His Inquiries Would Be Useless.

Sven Hedin is of good repute as a man and of some fame as an explorer, but in spite of all his merits, an investigation by him under appointment by the Kaiser of the charges that "atrocities" have been committed by the German Army in Belgium and France could have no conclusive or satisfactory results.

He would be disqualified, as would be anybody else, through selection for the work by one of the parties in interest—the defendant.

People who investigate themselves—and investigation by a chosen agent is the same thing—are always acquitted, and always the acquittal leaves the question at issue where it was in the beginning. If the Germans and the Allies really want this matter settled for good and all, they will agree to an inquiry by persons not only theoretically impartial, but uninfluenced from either side.

The United States could supply such men, but it would hardly be possible to get them anywhere in Europe.

MR. CALDER AND TOLLS.

Did He Follow Senator O'Gorman on Panama Question?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was announced in your columns a day or two ago that William J. Schieffelin, to whom many of us are accustomed to look for good advice, had issued a public statement in support of Congressman Calder as a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Some of us would be glad if The Times would make public the record of Congressman Calder in relation to the Panama Canal tolls exemption and its subsequent repeal. If, as we understand, Congressman Calder followed in this vitally important matter the leadership of Senator O'Gorman rather than that of Senator Root, we do not want him to receive the Republican nomination for Senator, nor would we vote for him if he did receive it.

The most important questions that now come before the Senate for action are those relating to treaties and the maintenance of treaty obligations. The present European war has made clearer than ever how vitally important it is for the United States to keep its own hands clean and to live up to its plighted word. There would be no European powers making appeals to us now if we had shown ourselves indifferent to the maintenance of our own treaty obligations.

Without any criticism whatever of Congressman Calder's character or ability it does seem to some of us quite unthinkable that the enrolled Republicans of New York should vote with their eyes open to put in the seat of Senator Root a man who has vigorously opposed that course of action which has brought to Senator Root no small part of his well-deserved fame and distinction.

A YOUNG REPUBLICAN.

England's Seizures of Merchantmen.

All seafaring nations but England were willing to enter into an agreement in 1909, according to which no merchant vessel could be seized by a warship in times of war unless it tried to break through a blockade. England protested because it knew that it controlled the seas, and no agreement was made. Thus England can now carry on its policy of seizure undisturbed, and not only the warring nations, but the neutral countries as well, have to suffer from interruption of commerce.

MEMORY AWAKES.

What care I for the war, or who may lose!
Thank God that I am old, and these dim eyes
Long since wept dry. Fear, in her hideous guise,
No more can haunt my pillow till the long night flies,
Whispering her dreadful tale.

What is't to me that others' sons must go?
My share is paid in three mounds, side by side;
And I live on, who gladly would have died,
With naught to lose, whate'er may now betide—
Whether 'tis win or fail.

Women may lie with open eyes till the faint dawn
Thinking of lips that babble feebly to a darkening sky—
Gray hands that clutch a water flask long since run dry—
Of husbands, lovers, sons—but not so I—
On dreamless seas I sail.

Prate not to me of war! I've had my fill
Of death and sacrifice and bitter tears;
You marching feet, and blaring music in my ears
But rend apart my graves, now green these many years—
Make Time Past drop its veil.

ETHEL M. WOLFF.

THE MEANING OF THE WAR.

It Is a Struggle for the Rule of Law Against the Rule of Fear, Says Dr. David Starr Jordan.

By DAVID STARR JORDAN,
Former President of Leland Stanford University.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this war what of right and what of wrong? Not much of right, perhaps, and very much of wrong. But there are degrees in wrong, and sometimes, by comparison, wrong becomes almost right.

The Armed Peace, the peace of guns and dreadnoughts and sabre rattlers, has come to its predestined end. Its armaments were made for war. Its war makers and war traders, the Pan-Germanists in the lead, have done their worst for the last nine years. They have been foiled time after time, but they have their way at last. Their last and most fatal weapon was the ultimatum. If Servia had not given them their chance they would have found their pretext somewhere else. When a nation or a continent prepares for war it will get it sooner or later. To prepare for war is to breed a host of men who have no other business, and another host who find their profits in blood.

When the war began it had very little meaning. It was the third Balkan war, brought on as the others were, by intrigues of rival despotisms. The peoples of Europe do not hate each other. The springs of war come from a few men impelled by greed and glory. Diplomacy in Europe has been for years the cover for robbery in Asia or Africa. Of all the nations concerned not one had any wish to fight, and Belgium alone could fight with clean hands.

And this fact gave the war its meaning. The invasion of Belgium changed the whole face of affairs. As by a lightning flash the issue was made plain: the issue of the sacredness of law; the rule of the soldier or the rule of the citizen; the rule of fear or the rule of law. Germany stands for army rule. This was made clear when, a year ago, she passed under the yoke at Zabern. However devious her diplomacy in the past, Britain stands today for the rule of law. The British soldier is the servant of the British people, not their master.

The highest conception of human relations is embodied in the word Law. Law is the framework of civilization. Law is the condition of security, happiness, and progress. War is the denial of all law. It makes scrap paper of all the solemn agreements men and nations have established for their mutual good.

The rape of Belgium made scrap paper of International Law. The sowing of mines in the fairways of commerce made scrap paper of the rights of neutral nations. The torture of the Belgian people made scrap paper of the rights of non-combatants.

War may be never righteous, but it is sometimes honorable. In honorable war armies fight against armies, never against private citizens. If armies give no needless provocation, they will receive none. The sacking of Malines, Aerschot, Dinant—these are not acts of honorable war. The wreck of Louvain, historic Louvain, the venerable centre for 500 years of Catholic erudition, at the hands of blood-drunk soldiers was an act of dishonorable war. It marks a stain on the record of Germany which the ages will not efface.

"A needed example," say the apologists for this crime. The Duke of Alva gave the same "needed example" to these same people in his day. For centuries the word "Spanish blood" struck terror into peoples' hearts throughout the Netherlands. For centuries to come the word Prussian will take its hated place.

The good people of Germany do not burn universities. Neither do they make war for war's sake. They are helpless in the hands of a monster of their own creation. The affair at Zabern a year ago testifies to their complete subjugation. All the virtues are left to them save only the love of freedom. This the mailed fist has taken away.

The Germany of today is an anachronism. Her scientific ideals are of the twentieth century. Her political ideals hark back to the sixteenth. Her rulers have made her the most superb fighting machine in a world which is soul-weary of fighting. For a nation in shining armor the civilized world has no place. It will not worship them, it will not obey them. It will not respect those who either worship or obey. It finds no people good enough to rule other people against their will.

A great nation which its own people do not control is a nation without a Government. It is a derelict on the international sea. It is a danger to its neighbors, a greater danger to itself. Of all the many issues, good or bad, which may come from this war, none is more important than this, that the German people should take possession of Germany.

BISMARCK'S RETIREMENT.

Prince Hohenlohe Attributed It to Kaiser's Attitude Toward Russia.

History rarely repeats itself exactly, but it is interesting to recall at this moment the reasons assigned by Prince Hohenlohe, the third German Chancellor, for the breach between the Iron Chancellor and Emperor William. After talking with Prince Bismarck, with the Emperor himself, and with the Grand Duke of Baden, Prince Hohenlohe registers the opinion that differences regarding the policy to be pursued by Germany toward Russia were largely responsible for the Imperial decision "to drop the pilot." He and Prince Bismarck both considered the Emperor's attitude toward Russia to be "the dark spot on the future of Germany." Under date of March 31, 1890, Prince Hohenlohe records the following in his diary:

> Heuduck, who visited me today, tells me that the Emperor has communicated to the commanding Generals the grounds of Prince Bismarck's retirement. * * * The Emperor told the Generals that Russia was anxious to effect a military occupation of Bulgaria and to secure for that step the neutrality of Germany. The Emperor said he had promised the Emperor of Austria that he would be a faithful ally. The occupation of Bulgaria by the Russians would mean war with Austria, and he could not leave Austria in the lurch. More and more the impression gains ground that the breach between the Emperor and Bismarck was caused by their differences of opinion regarding the Russian plans. Bismarck wished to leave Austria in the lurch. The Emperor is determined to go with Austria even at the risk of becoming involved in a war with Russia and France. This is my explanation of Bismarck's remark that the Emperor practices politics after the fashion of Frederick William IV. It is the black spot in the future.

Bismarck's advice to Austria, according to another passage in the memoirs, was that she should adopt a waiting attitude toward Russian activity in the Orient. We can guess, therefore, what he would have said when Austria proposed to occupy Servia. The Emperor, as his remarks to his commanding Generals in 1890 show, cannot have been in any doubt in 1914 that the occupation of Servia by Austria "would mean war with Russia." But he kept his promise to be a true ally "even at the risk of war with Russia and France." I doubt if Austria has any cause to thank him.

W. F. BULLOCK.

New Rochelle, Sept. 22, 1914.

The London Times Comments on John Burns's Undelivered Speech.

Concerning the now celebrated undelivered speech of John Burns, of which your correspondent, Mr. Bullock, writes so entertainingly in The Times of today, it may be of interest to quote from an editorial of The London Times, issue of 9th inst., now before me:

> We printed yesterday some extracts from the Frankfurter Zeitung of the famous speech which Mr. John Burns did not deliver and which we understand bears no resemblance to anything he has ever said or thought about the war. The interesting point about the speech is that it is just what a German would wish to believe true. Most of us have at one time or another made up eloquent eulogies of ourselves and then imagined them delivered by some one else to a spellbound audience. The author of this speech went a little further. He said that it was delivered to a spellbound audience in London. He composed a dramatic romance, in fact, and then published it as the truth. In doing this he had no doubt a very practical purpose. The passages about the Mohammedans show that it was meant to be read and believed in Constantinople. But romances are appearing in other German papers which are no doubt firmly believed by those who write as well as by those who read them. It is necessary even for the German mind to make a case for itself; and the case which it makes is one with which only the German mind could be satisfied.

German sympathizers and officials in this country complain bitterly that we do not accept everything from Berlin as gospel, but, in view of the foregoing, it would seem that there is reason for taking reports from German sources cum granum salis. Anyhow, we marvel that Mr. Ridder should expect to find us easy to swallow such stuff.

ALSACE-LORRAINE SYMPATHY.

Thoroughly German, with but Slight Exception, This Alsatian Says.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You make the statement that "between the time of Louis XIV. and Napoleon III., Alsace and Lorraine had become thoroughly French."

I am on one side descended from Alsatian stock. I was born and raised in the palatinate, almost within a stone's throw of the Alsatian border, and am thoroughly familiar with the conditions as they existed in Alsace before 1870. With the exception of a comparatively narrow strip in Lorraine adjoining the present French frontier, the people of Alsace-Lorraine have always been thoroughly German. Eighty to ninety per cent. of them (after almost 200 years of French occupation) could not speak French, and only the Government officials sent over from old France and the children of the wealthy who were sent to France to learn the language, and also the young men who had to serve in the French Army and returned to their native soil, could speak the French language. Barring these exceptions, everybody else spoke the German dialect known as "Elsaesser Ditsch."

There was very little love lost between the Alsatians and the French. The latter looked down upon the former as upon an inferior race, and used them as a target for their jokes, while the Alsatians had about as much respect and love for the French Government officials living among them as the people of our Southern States had for the Northern "carpet baggers" during the reconstruction period.

MRS. KENNEDY AIDED WORK

Gave Cash to Continue Ramsay Excavations at Antioch, in Pisidia.

It was announced last night that the American woman who had provided funds for the continuation of Sir William Mitchell Ramsay's archaeological excavations at Antioch, in Pisidia, was Mrs. Emma Baker Kennedy, widow of John Stewart Kennedy, the banker and philanthropist.

Sir William, who was till 1911 Professor of Latin at the University of Aberdeen, and is a former Levering Lecturer at Johns Hopkins, first began his archaeological work in Asiatic Turkey in 1880, and has spent most of the time since then in explorations of that section and writings detailing the results of his discoveries.

His special field is the life and work of St. Paul, on which he is one of the greatest living authorities. His first publications on the Christian Church in Asia Minor under the Empire were issued in 1893, since which time he has written voluminously on all topics connected with the subject. Last year he started excavations of Antioch in Pisidia, and uncovered the ancient Roman forum, which is said to be in practically the same condition as when the Apostles visited the city in the reign of Claudius. This is of extreme value, as no other forum dating from this period has been found in any provincial city of this section of the empire in a good state of preservation.

The excavations alco uncovered the remains of a church of St. Paul, dating from the later empire, besides a number of inscriptions from the early Christian period.

Further exploration, Sir William declared, would find the answer to many unsolved questions raised by the study of the Acts and the Epistles, but the work was stopped for a time last June by the interference of the Turkish authorities, and when Sir William, by personal intercession with the Government of Constantinople, had obtained permission to proceed, the enterprise was imperiled by lack of funds. It is understood that the late Lord Strathcona had been providing the financial support of the expedition, and that upon his death in January last it was found that it had been omitted in his will. At this time Sir William wrote to American friends that he hoped American philanthropy would come forward with funds for the continuance of the work, and offered to serve gladly in person as a subordinate of any American scholar who could find financial backing.

EXPECT 12,000 AT COLUMBIA

University Begins Its 151st Year Today—Big Freshman Class.

President Nicholas Murray Butler will welcome the incoming freshmen to Columbia University when it opens its one hundred and fifty-first academic session today. The Faculty and President will form in academic procession at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and proceed to the gymnasium, where the opening exercises will be held.

A large freshman class is expected, in addition to the large number of graduate students, who are expected to swell the registration figures at Columbia this year to between 12,000 and 13,000 students. Among those who have already registered are many who have come back from abroad to finish their courses which were interrupted by the war.

The usual freshmen-sophomore fights which mark the opening day of college will be postponed until tomorrow afternoon. W. W. Dwyer, President of the Student Board of Representatives, stated yesterday that it seemed desirable to give the freshmen a better opportunity to organize than they have on the opening day. There are no classes on that day and, consequently, many of the freshmen do not put in their appearance until the second day.

MAYOR CHAMPIONS HARBOR WORK HERE

WRITES APPEAL TO WILSON

His Influence Sought in Campaign for 35-Foot Channel—Plans of the Delegates.

Nearly 600 delegates to the seventh annual convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, including representatives from nearly all of the Atlantic Coast States, gathered yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Majestic, Seventy-second Street and Central Park West, at the opening session of the meeting. Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, President of the association, called the meeting to order at 2 o'clock and introduced Mayor Mitchel. The Mayor outlined the improvements proposed for New York Harbor and asked the members of the association to use their influence to have Congress grant an appropriation sufficient to carry out the work.

"The plans your association is working to carry out," the Mayor said, "call for an inland waterway system extending from Maine to the Rio Grande. On this route the Port of New York is easily the greatest distinctive centre. It is the greatest port in the world and its harbor is larger than the harbors of half a dozen big European ports. Its development is a matter of interest not only to New York, but to the whole nation, and when New York asked Congress for an appropriation for the development of its harbor it did not ask for itself but for the nation. It was on this basis that I recently appeared before the Congressional Committee on Rivers and Harbors to urge the digging of a thirty-five-foot channel in the East River from Governors Island to its northeastern limits, and the removal of the dangerous reefs in this part of the harbor to open the Brooklyn, Queens, and Manhattan waterfronts to the commerce that is pressing to come in. From Manhattan Bridge north on the East River the Manhattan waterfront is practically useless because of the inadequacy of the channel. The improvement of the East River would give the United States Navy an opening to leave by the north and pass out through the Sound.

"The committee reported favorably and recommended a $53,000,000 appropriation. Now the Senate recommends that the amount be cut to $20,000,000. Nobody realizes more than I the necessity of national and city economy. New York is being frugal now because of the war, but to cut out these improvements just at the time when, because of the war, this nation is in a position to develop commercially, seems to me the most unwise economy."

The Mayor said that he wrote a personal letter to President Wilson yesterday urging him to use his influence to prevent a material deduction from the appropriation. If the Government would dig the channel to thirty-five feet, he said, New York would dig it another five feet before making the Queens subway excavations beneath the Coenties Reef at the present depth, so that future need of a deeper channel would not interfere with the subway.

Congressman John H. Small of North Carolina, a member of the Rivers and Harbors Committee, thanked the Mayor on behalf of the delegates for his welcome.

Congressman Joseph A. Goulden of the Bronx, Chairman of the New York and New Jersey Committee of the association, expressed the appreciation of the New York members that New York had been selected for the convention and took a fling at Philadelphia tardiness. Congressman Moore responded by saying that his grip had left Philadelphia on the fastest train yesterday morning, but had not yet reached him, which elicited considerable applause from the other Pennsylvanians present, after which he talked at length on the aims of the Waterways Association. Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith told the delegates that the Mayor had instructed him to let them miss nothing on their tour of New York Harbor today.

At the night session Col. William M. Black of the United States Army Corps of Engineers and President of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, who has made a close study of the proposed Federal improvements in New York Harbor, gave a detailed analysis of the work, illustrating his talk with a map, and Wilfred H. Schoff of Philadelphia, Secretary of the association, illustrated an address on "The Atlantic Intercoastal Waterway and Its Special Importance for New York" with another map showing proposed waterway improvements along the Atlantic.

Among the other speakers at the night session were Congressman William C. Adamson of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce; Congressman Sparkman of Florida, Chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee; Congressman Ambrose Kennedy of Rhode Island, and Congressman Talcott of New York. In nearly all the speeches references were made to the effort in Washington to have the New York harbor appropriation reduced $33,000,000.

The convention headquarters will be transferred today to the steamer Berkshire of the Hudson Navigation Company, and at 10:30 this morning the delegates will begin a trip about the harbor, going up the East River under the bridges to Riker's Island and returning by way of the Navy Yard and Governors Island. They then will pass Ellis Island and around Staten Island and go through Raritan Bay to Perth Amboy, N. J., where an afternoon session will be held, at which Gov. Fielder of New Jersey will speak. Dinner will be served aboard the ship, and another session of the convention will be held during the trip. Tomorrow at daybreak the delegates will leave on the Berkshire for a three-day trip up the Hudson, going as far as Troy. Daily sessions will be held and river improvements undertaken by the Government will be inspected. At Albany on Friday the convention will be addressed by Gov. Glynn and Secretary of the Interior Lane. The party will return to New York and disperse Sunday morning.

The Secretary of the Navy's yacht Dolphin is expected to arrive here this morning to convoy the Berkshire on her trip today. On board the Dolphin are Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Mrs. Champ Clark, and Miss Genevieve Clark.

Among the prominent delegates attending the convention are Congressmen Stephen M. Sparkman of Florida and Henry M. Goldfogle and Charles A. Talcott of New York; John J. Martin, President of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange of Boston; Charles E. Falconer, President of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Baltimore; Rollin S. Woodruff, former Governor of Connecticut; Lieut. Gov. Frank E. Howe of Vermont; Henry R. Edmunds, President of the Philadelphia Board of Education; Mayor Richard J. Davant of Savannah, and Mayor George Ainslie of Richmond.

CENSORS REPORT ON A PLAY

Comstock's Charges Said To Have Been Knocked Out.

District Attorney Whitman today will forward to Anthony Comstock the report made by Assitant District Attorney De Ford and the District Attorney's secretary, Lloyd Willis, on the play, "The Beautiful Adventure," at the Lyceum Theatre, which Mr. Comstock branded as indecent and immoral.

Neither the District Attorney nor the men he sent to see the play on Monday night would make public the report, Mr. Whitman saying that would not be done until after Mr. Comstock had seen the result of the investigation. It was understood that the report upheld the play, and declared it was neither immoral nor even suggestive.

Charles Frohman, the producer of "The Beautiful Adventure," said again that he was determined to sue Mr. Comstock for slander, but was willing to wait until he heard what the investigators had to say before taking any actual steps in filing the action.

FEAR STEFANSSON HAS BEEN BAFFLED

Doubtful, Says Dr. Anderson, if Explorer Has Journeyed Very Far to the Northward.

STILL WANDERS IN ARCTIC

Associates Have Had No Word of Him Since in April—Work of Anderson Party.

By R. M. ANDERSON,
Executive Head of the Southern Party of the Canadian Arctic Expedition.

Special to The New York Times.

BAILLIE ISLAND, N. W. T., Aug. 21, via Nome, Alaska, Sept. 22.—The Canadian arctic expedition's schooners Alaska and Mary Sachs got out of Winter quarters at Collinson Point, Alaska, on July 25. They were delayed somewhat by heavy ice at Martin Point and Demarcation Point, reaching Herschel Island on Aug. 5. The schooner North Star got to Herschel Island earlier from Clarence Bay.

Vilhjalmar Stefansson and his two companions, Vorkerson and Ole Anderson, who started out from Martin Point on a journey of discovery over the ice, have not been heard from since the support party came back from the ice early in April. Presumably Stefansson and his men made an attempt to reach the coast of Banks Island. The prevailing strong easterly winds and general westward currents off shore make it doubtful if they succeeded in getting far to the northward. There has been much open water off shore from Baillie Island all the Spring.

Ice is reported very scarce to the eastward. The schooner Mary Sachs, G. H. Walkins in command, which has gone toward Banks Island to look for Stefansson, was last reported, on Aug. 19, near the mouth of Hermon River, in Franklin Bay.

The schooners Alaska and North Star reached Baillie Island today, and will proceed east to Dolphin and Union Straits, and possibly may pass the Winter near Cockburn Point, south of Liston and Sutton Islands.

The schooner Teddy Bear returned to Baillie Island yesterday, after being missing for two years. The schooner spent last Winter in Lady Richardson Bay, Southwestern Victoria Island, being prevented from getting through the heavy ice in Amundsen Gulf to the westward. The southern party of the expedition has completed a traverse of the coast line from Demarcation Point to the Mackenzie River. It surveyed the west branch of the Mackenzie and part of the east branch up as far as Fort McPherson and Arctic Red River. It traversed Herschel Island River up as far as the boundary. Geological investigation has been made of the same region. Biological work was done at various points, as well as meteorological work, and tidal observations were made.

The prospects appear good for the southern party to get into its field early and to carry out its geological, topographical, ethnological, and biological work in detail as planned in spite of a year's delay because of ice conditions. All members of the expedition are well and in good spirits. The season is open for whaling. The Belvedere has killed five, and the Polar Bear three whales. R. M. ANDERSON.

'WILLIAM TELL' AT CENTURY

Capable Revival of Rossini's Opera Long in Oblivion—Harrold Excels.

The Century Opera Company went far back into operatic repertoire last night when it produced Rossini's "William Tell" for the first time at the opera house on Central Park West. It seemed a case of rattling dry bones on the face of it, for the work in question has long since been allowed to drop into oblivion. There are musicians whose hair is beginning to tinge with gray who will tell you they have never seen "William Tell" in operatic form on the stage. And most of them will say they do not ever want to.

That is more or less the attitude of music today toward Rossini—at least in his serious mood—which makes all the more interesting the fact that several thousand people last night heard "William Tell" with every indication that they considered it a live issue. This suggests the regrettable conclusion that somebody is wrong. On the one hand, you have those who insist that "William Tell" is a dried-up skeleton, and on the other, the Century audience, who seemed to have transplanted themselves to the era when Rossini was proving himself an innovator and an improver. Without attempting the task of umpiring, it may be pointed out that the latter viewpoint at least allows more enjoyment to its adherents.

It was a very capable performance the Century Opera Company gave. It started well, for at the end of the famous overture the audience applauded so violently that it came within an ace of getting a repetition. The applause was well earned, for Mr. Jacchia, who is apparently thoroughly sensitive to the style which earned Rossini the title of "Monsieur Crescendo" during his lifetime, led the orchestra through the network of contrasts and climaxes that is the sine qua non in dealing with the task in hand.

Later he did similarly with the chorus, which again distinguished itself. In particular, the "To Arms!" finale of the second act was done in a manner to provide a thrill, assisted by the flood of amber light which was thrown on the soldiers at the end, when a sudden martial picture was evolved from the hitherto calm, moonlit landscape. It was a deft imaginative touch on the part of Coini or whoever conceived it.

In the work of the cast there were a few roughnesses due to first-night unfamiliarity, but on the whole their part of the performance was excellent. Orville Harrold, as Arnold, had some really brilliant moments, and in general his singing measured up to the best he has done here yet, his voice gaining in the quality of penetrativeness. Lois Ewell, as Matilda, sang, as usual, with taste and effectiveness.

Louis Kreidler, in the title part, gave a performance that was acceptable, but he was no more than acceptable on the histrionic side. He failed in conveying any sense of masterfulness or domination in the character, such as would be appropriate to the legendary hero who could conduct the rebellion of a people against a powerful tyrant.

Henry Weldon's sonorous voice lent dignity to the rôle of Walter Furst and Alfred Kaufman did well with the rôle of Gessler, as did Gilbert Wilson as Melchthal. George Everett deserves mention for making vivid the small part of Leuthold, and Muriel Gough, a newcomer, showed promise in the small opportunity allowed by the rôle of Jemmy, the son of Tell, from whose head the apple is shot. The others were Kathleen Howard, Louis D'Angelo, and Hardy Williamson.

The English text was by Natalia MacFarren. It was a good piece of work, especially in the sense of combating the sentimentality and theatricalness of such stuff as the librettos of that period were made of. But even with this handicap to modern ears and the shallowness of much of the music considered, there is still enjoyment to be got unashamed out of the opera. Last night's audience certainly got it. The enthusiasm was greater than any that has been produced yet this season.

NEW HARBORS BILL PASSES THE SENATE

Makes Lump Appropriation of $20,000,000 and Lets Army Engineers Direct Expenditures.

HINT OF HOUSE REVOLT

Prediction That if Representatives Urge Specific Appropriations They May Imperil Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The substitute Rivers and Harbors Appropriation bill, no longer characterized as a "pork barrel" bill, was passed by the Senate today and sent back to the House of Representatives. The bill carries a lump allowance of $20,000,000, which is to be apportioned by army engineers among projects heretofore authorised. As the original bill went before the Senate it called for appropriations aggregating $53,000,000.

There was no roll call in the Senate today on the passage of the substitute bill. So utter and complete was the defeat of the advocates for larger appropriations when the Senate yesterday voted to direct the Commerce Committee to report a new bill appropriating only $20,000,000 that none today possessed the courage to demand a record vote.

The fight of the friends of the larger appropriations, however, may not be entirely over, for there were many murmurings of dissatisfaction on the House side of the Capitol over the new situation. There was, in fact, a sentiment there which indicated that the Rivers and Harbors Committee might rebel at the turn affairs had taken in the upper body, and demand a bill which at least would specify what projects should be continued during the year.

Should this be done, according to Senators who have felt the temper of the Senate in the last few days, or should the House return to the Senate a bill different from the one which today passed the upper body, the result will be to place the appropriation even of $20,000,000 in jeopardy.

It took the Senate Commerce Committee less than two hours to draft the new bill. As the Senate was explicit in its instructions the work was not at all difficult. The full bill is as follows:

> That the sum of $20,000,000 be and the same hereby is appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be immediately available, and to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers for the preservation and maintenance of existing river and harbor works and for the prosecution of such projects heretofore authorized as may be most desirable in the interests of commerce and navigation and most economical and advantageous in the execution of the work.
> Provided, That allotments from the amount hereby appropriated shall be made by the Secretary of War upon the recommendation of the Chief of Engineers.
> Provided further, That allotments for the Mississippi River from the head of passes to the mouth of the Ohio River shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War in accordance with the plans, specifications and recommendations of the Mississippi River Commission as approved by the Chief of Engineers.
>
> And provided further, That at the beginning of the next session of Congress a special report shall be made to Congress by the Secretary of War, showing the amount allotted under this appropriation to each work of improvement.

PARTS WITH MANCHESTER.

Church Service Bureau Severs Connection with Duke's League.

The effect of the European war on social uplift moving pictures was made manifest yesterday, when it was announced that the Church and School Social Service Bureau, of which the Rev. Dr. William Carter is President, had severad its connection with the International Education League, of which the Duke of Manchester is President. The Duke is also international Vice President of the Church and School Social Service Bureau, but it is explained that neither of the organizations has any control over the other. Their relations have been regulated by a working agreement designed to facilitate the carrying out of social uplift through moving pictures by Dr. Carter's society in the United States and the Duke of Manchester's organization abroad.

The war, however, has temporarily closed the field of the International Education League, and has also compelled the Duke of Manchester to give much of his attention to matters affecting British interests, and for this reason it was felt by officers of the bureau that the connection between the two organizations was hampering their own society. It will be ready to supply films within a few weeks. The abandonment of the agreement, which was described as "only nominal," is said to have been accompanied by entire good feeling on both sides.

TOWN BUYERS CO-OPERATE

Residents of Montclair Seek to Reduce High Cost of Living.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 22.—The Montclair Co-operative Society today moved into its new $40,000 store building on Bloomfield Avenue. In moving into its new store the society, through its Directors, announces that it purposes a comprehensive inquiry into the high cost of living and the pure food problems, and will recommend such remedies as seem most promising.

One of the novel forms of service planned by the co-operative society is the delivery to members free of books from the Montclair Public Library at the same time groceries are delivered.

MISS TERRY COMING SOON.

English Actress May Open Here in "Twelfth Night" in October.

The Liebler Company, the theatrical managers, were surprised yesterday to receive a cable from England stating that Phyllis Neilson-Terry, the English actress, would sail for New York next Saturday on the Campania. The Lieblers, who will manage Miss Neilson-Terry's tour in this country, had made no plans for her coming over until early in November, and her American début was not scheduled until the middle of that month. It is now possible that she may open here in "Twelfth Night" early in October.

Effort is being made to have Max Reinhardt come to New York to take charge of the Neilson-Terry productions. The Stage Society of this city has interested itself in the matter and is hopeful of bringing Prof. Reinhardt over.

MISS RUSSELL OPERATED ON

Actress's Recovery from Appendicitis is Expected.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 22.—Lillian Russell, the actress and the wife of A. P. Moore, publisher of The Pittsburgh Leader, was operated on for appendicitis early this afternoon at the West Penn Hospital. She was taken from the Schenley Hotel to the hospital late last night.

She came out of the anaesthetic at 5 o'clock, after being on the operating table for an hour and a half, and Drs. Swope and Schildecker report that, although the operation was very serious, her excellent physical condition will undoubtedly assure her recovery.

Mrs. Moore recently returned to this city from her Summer home in Atlantic City, where she suffered a serious illness several months ago.

SUBWAY WORK OPPORTUNE.

Monthly Payrolls for 14,000 Men Aggregate $2,000,000.

Chairman McCall of the Public Service Commission yesterday pointed out the benefit to the city and the country at large in the employment given by the construction of the dual subway system to thousands of men, and the good fortune of the city in having it financed on terms which were fixed before the present financial stringency.

"The monthly payments," the Chairman said, "on city and company contracts for rapid transit work are close to $2,000,000. About 14,000 men are employed directly on such work in this city, and in addition work is being given to the lumber, cement, steel, and other mills throughout the country, where the materials needed in the work are produced."

The Chairman pointed out that of the 83 sections of the city-owned lines contracts for 59 had been let on Sept. 1, leaving 24 to be awarded. The outstanding contracts on the Interborough lines aggregate $69,462,918, and for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines $71,073,466, making a total of $140,516,385. The city is paying out more than $1,650,000 a month on them, and its total disbursements for the six months ended June 30 were $9,703,443.02.

JAMES R. HOWE DEAD.

Brooklyn Merchant Was Ex-Congressman and Ex-Register of Kings.

James Robinson Howe, a Brooklyn merchant, died at his Summer home in North Salem, N. Y., on Monday afternoon in his seventy-sixth year. Mr. Howe was twice elected a member of Congress and once Register of Kings County. Mr. Howe was born in this city on Jan. 27, 1839, and was descended from the early settlers of New England. He started his own drygoods business in Grand Street and in 1870 he removed to Brooklyn, where he opened a store near the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza. Since the sale of this store, Mr. Howe devoted his attentions to another store in Jamaica, L. I.

In 1899, Mr. Howe was elected Register of Kings County, and was the only Republican on his ticket elected. He abolished the fee system of this office by having a bill passed which put the Register, County Clerk and Sheriff on a fixed salary basis. He refused to accept any of the funds due him by virtue of his office, which amounted to $50,000, and instead he returned the money to the city in the form of the Washington statue which stands on the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza. The statue was unveiled in 1906.

Mrs. Goodwin is survived by two foster children, Miss Eleanor H. Goodwin and Frank S. Goodwin of Newark.

CHARLES E. RECTOR DIES.

Heart Attack Kills Famous Restaurateur in his Seventy-first Year.

Charles E. Rector, the famous restaurateur, died at 8 o'clock this morning at his home in Rumson, N. J., of heart disease. He had been ill for several months.

Mr. Rector built and for twelve years was proprietor of Rector's, in Times Square, one of the best known restaurants in the city.

He was born at Lockport, N. Y., in 1844, the son of George W. Rector, who built and for many years conducted the Franklin House at Lewiston, N. Y. At the outbreak of the civil war Mr. Rector enlisted with the New York Volunteers, serving in the same company, of which his brother, George W. Rector, Jr., was Captain. He fought with his brother at Fredericksburg, where the latter lost his life. Soon after the close of the war, Mr. Rector went to Washington, where he was employed as a clerk in the War Department. Subsequently he became a dining car superintendent on the Pennsylvania Railroad, his run being from New York to Chicago.

He saved a small sum of money at this work, and this he increased by $5,000, which he borrowed from Chapin & Gore, Chicago liquor dealers, investing all of it in an oyster house he opened in that city at Clark and Monroe Streets. Mr. Rector had obtained much experience with sea food while at Washington, and when he opened his place in Chicago he made special arrangements with the railroads and express companies by which all kinds of sea food were delivered to him for his patrons almost as quickly as they could be obtained in seaport towns after being taken from the fishing vessels.

His business grew to such proportions that he erected the fourteen-story Rector office building on the site of the oyster house, in which he retained an interest until 1911, when he sold out entirely and put all his money in his New York enterprise. During the Worlds' Fair in Chicago Mr. Rector opened the Café Marine in the fair grounds, and it was one of the show places there.

In the Fall of 1899 he opened Rector's in New York at Broadway and Forty-fourth Street. Associated with him was his son, George W. Rector. Their business prospered until it is said Mr. Rector accumulated a fortune of nearly $2,000,000. He closed the restaurant in 1910, when the began the erection of the Hotel Rector, now the Hotel Claridge, on its site.

He was President of the Hotel Rector Company, the holding corporation. Under this management the hotel was run until May, 1913, when it was thrown into involuntary bankruptcy.

Mr. Rector is survived by his son, George W. Rector, and one daughter, Mrs. D. Fraser of Calgary, Canada.

CUBS ATTACK OLD MATTY AT THE START

Hits Rattle Off Chicago Bats and Giants Are Crushed by a 5 to 0 Score.

The Giants' trump card failed yesterday at the Polo Grounds when a crowd of more than 10,000 people—not without a pang of regret—saw the Cubs larrup Christy Mathewson in the first inning for a fusillade of five crashing hits and as many runs. That one inning was enough, and the final score was 5 to 0. It was the second whitewash for the Giants in as many days, and the repulse send them hobbling back in retreat, and they are now five full games behind the unbeatable Braves.

With Matty, the idol of Gotham's baseball fans for more than a dozen years, tumbling down before the relentless hitting of the enemy, and with the Giants' once sturdy batsmen cowing before the pitching of Larry Cheney, New York's pennant hopes faded with the last rays of the sun. The team's "kick" was gone.

In the club's collapse before the Cubs the fondest dream of John McGraw to win four National League pennants in succession goes into oblivion. New York's only chance now would be in the utter collapse of the Boston Braves, and that seems just as likely as the discovery of the fourth dimension.

The Cubs' assault on Mathewson in the opening round was overwhelming. Hits bounded from their bats in quick succession and fell among the outposts like a shower of hail. Wee Tommy Leach started it with a single. He scored when Wilbur Good poled a triple to left centre. Saier beat out an infield hit, but Good was held at third. Bad Heinie Zimmerman cracked a double to left, and Good scored, Saier romping to third. Schulte flied to Snodgrass in short centre. Art. Bues cudgeled a single to centre, scoring Saier and Zimmerman. On a wild pitch from the tottering Mathewson, Bues galloped around to third and scored when Meyers in his haste made a wild throw to Grant to head off the runner.

Then after all this violence was over and the damage completed, "Big Six" suddenly pulled himself together. The Old Master's cunning returned, and from that time on, he held the Cubs at his mercy with not another sign of cracking. But it was too late. The Cubs had all the runs and hits they needed.

In the third inning, with two out, Bues shot a double to left. Corriden pushed a stinging bounder through short. Fletcher made a brilliant stop and tossed Bues out at third and saved a run. The only other illuminating contribution the Giants showed was in the eighth, after Zimmerman beat out a roller to short. Schulte hammered a hard bouncer at Fred Merkle, who first tossed to Fletcher and got "Zim" at second, and Fletcher then doubled Schulte at first.

Larry Cheney made the Giants' batsmen look like a team of rheumatics. Three hits he gave them, one of which, by Meyers, in the fifth, was quite scratchy. Burns got a hit in the sixth and Merkle in the seventh. All the others looked pop-eyed at the shoots that whizzed over. Dave Robertson, who in midseason gave promise of doing valiant service with the wagontongue before the season was over, struck out three times. The batting slump into which the Giants have fallen is as deep as an artesian well.

Odd Happenings in This Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—Errors and passes played a big part in today's game, which St. Louis won from Philadelphia, 5 to 4. Nearly all the runs of both teams were due to fielding and battery misplays. Huggins and Magee each went to bat four times and scored two runs and yet neither was charged with a time at bat. Huggins drew three bases on balls and was hit by the pitcher, while Magee received four bases on balls. In the fifth inning Manager Dooin of Philadelphia threw wild to first base, and a spectator in the grand stand shouted a remark which caused Dooin to order the rooter's removal. A policeman escorted the rooter from the grounds after the umpires got in between Dooin and the spectator and prevented blows from being struck. The score:

"Emery Ball" Pitching Under Ban.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Use of the "emery ball" or the "sandpaper ball" in the American League is prohibited in a ruling today by President B. B. Johnson. Managers of clubs were notified that the first offenders will be suspended for thirty days and fined $100. In addition, the game in which the ball is used will be cast out of the records, providing it is won by the team violating the rule. Certain pitchers in the league, it was charged, rubbed a small piece of emery paper on the ball, thus disfiguring the cover. The trick made the pitching more effective, it was said, as it gave the user a firmer grip.

Saginaw Beats Bay City for Flag.

BAY CITY, Sept. 22.—Saginaw won the championship of the South Michigan League today by defeating the Bay City baseball team, 4 to 3, in the seventh game of the post-season series. The contest went ten innings. The season was divided into two parts. Bay City led when the first half was completed and Saginaw finished ahead in the second part. It is probable Saginaw will play the winner of the Michigan State League race to decide the Michigan League championship.

SEATON SCORES SHUTOUT.

Brookfed Twirler Has Better of Cullop in Pitching Duel.

Although outbatted two to one by the Kansas City Packers at Washington Park yesterday, the Brooklyn Federal League team, through the masterly pitching of Long Tom Seaton, was returned the winner of the final game of the series by a score of 1 to 0. Nick Cullop, the former Cleveland hurler, had the better of Seaton in the number of hits allowed, but the Tip Tops' star moundsman was fortunate in that his teammates collected a double and single successively in the second inning and tallied one run.

Seaton was hit safely six times, two of which were doubles, while Cullop held the Wardmen to three safeties.

Steve Evans went a long way toward giving Brooklyn a victory with a wonderful catch of a terrific line drive from the bat of Rawlings in the fifth inning. The Tip Top right fielder had to chase to the fence to pull down the ball, which would have been good for at least three bases had it escaped him. Chadbourne followed this effort with an infield single.

Kansas City lost several opportunities to win through good fielding by the home players. In the fourth inning Kenworthy, first man to bat, walked, and reached second safely when Hofman's throw to the midway station on Stovall's roller arrived too late to catch Kenworthy. Perring forced Kenworthy at third, Seaton to Westerzil, and Stovall went out trying to steal third when Westerzil made a fine pick-up of Land's throw. Kreuger advanced Perring to third with a single, but Delehanty closed the session when he tossed out Easterly.

Brooklyn's run was registered in the second, which Evans opened with a double. He advanced a base on a passed ball, was held at third when Hofman grounded to Stovall, but scored on Westerzil's hit to left for a base.

The attendance at Washington Park during this series has been at its lowest ebb. Hardly more than a thousand persons witnessed the games on Monday and yesterday, but interest in the team has waned since it lost its chance of winning the Federal League pennant. The score:

BRAVES ROMP OFF WITH EASY GAME

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The Braves made some hay this afternoon by administering another good trimming to the Pirates, while the Giants again fell by the wayside, sliding back to a point five games behind the leaders. The score was 8 to 2.

All the scoring the Buccaneers did was in the first inning after two men were out, a pass, a double, and a single sending the Pirates away with a two-run lead. But after this Left-Hander George Tyler was in prime form, and for the eight next sessions the Pittsburgh batting product was three singles and a double, this last being put in by Wagner, who was the only member of the Pirate band who saw second base after the first inning.

Fred Clarke sent McQuillan after the game, and he lasted four innings, Boston getting seven of its eight runs and eight of its dozen hits against him. The second half of the game was pitched by Kantlehner, who made a good job of it after the milk had been spilled. It was another of those fighting games for half the distance, the Braves getting the breaks, but playing the sort of ball that provides a good camp follower in the game of fortune.

The Boston hitting was timely, six of the first seven runs being driven home by clean, wholesome, non-fieldable wallops. The real damage again was done by Joe Connolly, however, the Boston outfielder duplicating yesterday's performance by again putting in a long hit that cleaned things up when the home club had the corners filled with base runners. This happened in the fourth, when Boston had secured a 4 to 2 lead, and the extra runs looked good, even if they were not needed.

In the first inning, after Carey had flied out and Collins had popped to Smith, Tyler passed Costello and Viox followed with a double over first base and came home with Costello on Konetchy's safe drive to centre field. This was the only punch the Pirates had all afternoon. During the remainder of the game Costello made two singles and McCarthy one, but neither was advanced from first base. Wagner's hit, a double, was the other of the four scattered ones against Tyler after the first break.

The Braves did not allow the Pirates to hold their lead long, getting back both of the runs in the first inning. With one out, Evers singled and Connolly was passed, Schmidt then cracking a triple to right field. In the third Boston went ahead a point, Maranville being hit, advancing on Evers's sacrifice and finally scoring on Whitted's fine single.

The blow-up for McQuillan came in the fourth. Smith opened with a hit too hot for Wagner and Maranville pushed him along. Whaling singled past third, and when the Braves started a double steal Maranville counted because of Viox's wild return. Tyler sent a fly to Konetchy, Smith not being able to score on Moran's crack to right. Then a pass to Evers filled the bases, and Connolly's long hit to centre followed, Joe oversliding third and being relayed out. Kantlehner pitched the four remaining innings, the Braves' one run against him, coming in the seventh on a pass to Whitted, Schmidt's sacrifice and Smith's fine double to left field. Score:

WORLD'S SERIES OCT. 8.

Ban Johnson Says There Is No Reason for Selecting Later Date.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Play in the world's championship baseball series probably will start on Oct. 8, one day after the American and National League seasons are brought to a close, according to President B. B. Johnson, of the American League and member of the National Baseball Commission.

President Jonnson asserted today there was no truth in the report that Oct. 10 had been decided on as the date for starting the series.

"It is our aim to start and finish the series as early as possible," Johnson said. "I believe we can arrange to play the first game on Oct. 8. There is no reason for delay."

In the event that the Boston Nationals and Philadelphia Club of the American League are contenders for the world's title, two games will be played consecutively in each city instead of alternating each day, as was the case between New York and Philadelphia. The place for the opening game, it was announced, will be decided by the flip of a coin.

Lawrence Wins Title Series.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Sept. 22.—In a closely contested game Lawrence wrested the New England championship from New London this afternoon by a score of 4 to 3. More than 2,000 fans were in attendance. Today's game was the fourth won by the local club, New London being credited with two. The visitors excelled in fielding, while the Lawrence team showed their superiority in stick work. This was illustrated in the eighth inning today, the score being tied 2 to 2, when Connolly hit Powers, New London's favorite twirler, for a home run, sending the ball over centre-field fence, and also forcing Luster over the plate for another tally. ## LOSE EIGHTEEN STRAIGHT.

Cincinnati Reds Humbled by Superbas by Score of 5 to 4.

Daubert's single with the bases filled in the tenth inning sent the Cincinnati Reds down to their eighteenth straight defeat yesterday and gave the Superbas their fifth straight victory by the score of 5 to 4. The Reds fought an uphill battle from the first inning, but succeeded in tieing the score in the ninth round. Herzog picked Yingling, the former Brooklyn player, to pitch against his old teammates in a desperate attempt to break his losing streak.

The Superbas got a two-run lead in the first inning. Daubert singled and was followed by Dalton, who got a pass to first base. George Cutshaw then hammered out a triple to left field on which both Daubert and Dalton scored. Cutshaw tried to stretch his hit into a home run, but was nailed at the plate.

The Reds took the lead in the fourth inning by hammering out three runs off Aitchison. Daniels started with a single. Herzog contributed another, and Twombly followed suit, filling the bases. Niehoff then made another single, which scored Daniels and Herzog. In trying to get Niehoff at second base after the throw-in to the plate, McCarty threw wild and Twombly also scored. Excepting this inning, Aitchison had the visitors at his mercy.

The Superbas jumped into the lead again in the seventh inning, when Egan made a single and was scored by McCarty's home run. McCarty's hit went to deep left centre field.

The Reds scored the tieing run in the ninth inning as a result of a little slow work on the part of Getz, the Superba third baseman. Killifer was on third base and Holden on second, when Gonzales hit a grounder to Getz. Instead of trying to get Killifer at the plate Getz threw to get Holden at second base and a run was scored before Holden was put out.

Dick Egan started the tenth inning for the Superbas by smashing out a two-base hit. McCarty attempted to sacrificed, but was safe when Kellogg threw to third and missed Egan. Myers was passed, filling the bases. Daubert then made a timely single, which scored Egan with the winning run.

The victory yesterday gave the Superbas a clean sweep of the series of five games with the Reds. The score:

Collins Beats Tigers Twice.

DETROIT, Sept. 22.—Ray Collins performed the unique feat of pitching Boston to a double victory over Detroit this afternoon. The scores were 5 to 3 and 5 to 0. ## GREENWICH GOLF RECORD FOR OUIMET

Champion, Beaten in First Round, Plays Course in 69 in Consolation.

Francis Ouimet of Woodland, the national amateur champion, after being beaten in the first round of match play in the invitation tournament of the Greenwich Country Club yesterday by Grant B. Peacock of Princeton 2 and 1 to play, established a new record for the course of 69. Like a good sportsman, Ouimet took his place in the beaten eight division and opposed G. B. Carhart of the home club. Ouimet won by 8 up and 7 to play and was going so well that when the match finished he concluded to play out the round in a trial for the record.

Ouimet's 69 not only cut three strokes off the amateur mark made on Monday by Reginald M. Lewis of Ridgefield, but also is a stroke better than the professional figures of 70, made last year by Jack Dowling of Scarsdale. In the afternoon Peacock was beaten by W. Parker Seely of Wee Burn, the Connecticut title holder, by 3 up and 2 to play.

John G. Anderson of Braeburn, the runner-up in the 1913 national championship, was eliminated in the afternoon by Maxwell R. Marston of Baltusrol 6 up and 4 to play.

As the result of the competition yesterday Marston will play Lewis in the upper half of the semi-final today while Seely will clash with Hamilton K. Kerr of the home club. Ouimet's opponent in the beaten eight will be R. H. White of Oakland. The contributory causes to the defeat of the national champion were a tendency to pull his drives and inability to get the run of the greens. The summary:

First Sixteen.—First Round—Maxwell R. Marston, Baltusrol, beat Gardiner W. White, Flushing, 5 and 4; John G. Anderson, Braeburn, beat W. V. Booth, Apawamis, 6 and 5; W. R. ### Hawk Carries Away a Golf Ball.

One of the most unexpected incidents that have occurred in golf was witnessed yesterday afternoon on the Arcola Country Club links, Arcola, N. J., during a match between Henry W. Runyon of Jersey City and Charles B. Rowe. Mr. Rowe was leading on the thirteenth hole, and Judge Runyon pulled his drive on the fourteenth hole. In following up his drive Mr. Runyon and those who were watching the match glanced in the general direction in which the ball was propelled, and saw, to their amazement, that a hawk had swooped down from a near-by woods, and was at that time flying away with the golf ball clutched tightly in its claws. This, naturally, created a discussion as to who lost the hole, but after a little arguing Mr. Runyon produced another ball and completed the match, which was won by Mr. Rowe.

THIRTEEN FAST HEATS.

An Average of 2:05 1-5 Made by Horses in Columbus Racing.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 22.—At the Grand Circuit races this afternoon a time averaging better than any ever known was made by four sets of trotters and pacers. Thirteen heats were raced at an average of 2:05 1-5. The principal contributors to this exhibition of extreme speed were champions Anna Bradford and Etawah.

Anna Bradford lowered her own world's record of 2:03¼ for three-year-old pacers to 2:01½, and took away from William the record of 2:05¼ and 2:05 for a two-heat three-year-old pacing performance. Squantum, the contender against the filly, was timed separately in 2:04 and 2:02¼.

Etawah made a break in the first heat of the Capital City Stake and was beaten by Omar in 1:05¼. The final heat's time took from Soprano the record of 2:05¼ for a fastest fourth heat. Margaret Druien, a pronounced favorite, won the card's richest event, the $10,000 Hoster-Columbus Trotting Stake in straight heats. In the middle heat she equaled her record, 2:05½, taken at Grand Rapids early this season. Summary:

War Spoils International Sports.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Sept. 22.—Because of the European war, Vancouver, B. C., athletes will not be able to meet Stanford this season as planned on the football field or in crew races. Dr. Frank Angell of the Stanford Faculty received a letter today from Reggie Woodward of Vancouver saying that the rowing club there had been transformed into barracks.

"So many of the Rugby players have gone to war," the letter says, "that no games can be arranged this yeyar. The oarsmen and football players are being drilled on the athletic grounds."

Mrs. Barlow's Record Golf.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.—Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow made a new woman's record for the links of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club today when she made the last nine holes in the qualifying round of the Berthellyn Cup tournament in 38 strokes. Her total for the course was 83. Mrs. Caleb Fox took 87 and Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck 90. Miss Sterling of Atlanta, Ga., and Miss L. A. Wells of Boston each had cards of 100.

Two Victories for White Sox.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Chicago won two games from Washington today, 9 to 1, and 7 to 4, winding up play with the visitors for the season. The first game went to the locals by bunching hits. Bentley weakened in the seventh inning of the second game and Chicago came from behind, driving him out of the box. The second game was called at the end of the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness. The scores:

FAVORITES FIRST AT EMPIRE CITY

Cast-offs and Selling Platers Produce Good Sport on Yonkers Track.

Unexpectedly good racing marked the opening of the five days' meeting at the Empire City track yesterday, when good-sized fields started in the five races that were run. Most of the contestants have been racing recently either at Belmont Park or on the Canadian tracks, so that the horses were all fit and the sport of the same sort that characterizes the Monday and Friday races at the more pretentious meetings.

Favorites or strong second choices won all the races, the only pronounced favorite which failed to get into the money being Water Welles in the third race. Except in the first race, in which there was an atrocious start, with Rhine Maiden sent off flying, Ivy Marquette and Goodwood left standing at the post, and Leda tangled up in the barrier, there were fairly good contests, such as gave the onlookers their opportunity to "root" and cheer the horse of their fancy. This they did with vigor, in spite of the oppressive heat.

Humiliation, a cast-off from the stable of Capt. E. B. Cassatt, won himself out for his new owner in the second race, a dash of six furlongs, for which he was the favorite. But his victory was no easy one, for Coneopsis and Hermis gave him a hard fight of it, leading up to within 100 feet of the finish, when Humiliation came with a wild rush from fourth place and just managed to get the money from Hermis, which was a rank outsider in the speculation.

Lily Orme and Ha'penny, the latter a Belmont cast-off, kept the crowd guessing all through the early stages of the race as to which would last the longest and so win. The matter was settled after the horses were straightened out in the stretch. Then Davis came up on the outside with Water Lily, collared the leaders, and for a furlong the trio had as pretty a contest as one could ask to see. But in the end Davis managed to get Water Lily home in front after a liberal use of the whip, Ha'penny just lasting long enough to defeat Lily Orme for the place money. Water Welles, the favorite, seemed track weary and unable to show any of the speed he has shown at the big tracks during the Summer. The summary:

MURPHY IN RING AGAIN.

Harlem Tommy Outpoints Frankie Callahan at Broadway A. C.

Tommy Murphy, the veteran lightweight of Flatbush, making his first local ring appearance in some months, last night outpointed Frankie Callahan of Brooklyn in the main bout at the Broadway Sporting Club, which was packed to its capacity with a record-breaking crowd. Murphy earned the honors in six of the ten sessions, three going to Callahan and one being even.

Murphy was continuously hooted and jeered by Callahan's supporters for hitting in the clinches, but he kept well within the boxing code, which permits a man to hit at will with one hand free. The wearing down tactics familiar to boxers in long-distance contests were used by Murphy. He was always boring in and refused to box at long range with the clever Brooklyn boy. The veteran outgeneraled his opponent in the clinches and inflicted serious damage while fighting at close range. Murphy's face was bruised somewhat from the stiff punches of his younger opponent, who did not become effective until the sixth round.

In the first five chapters Murphy made his opponent appear like a novice. With both hands he meted out his punishment and few of the punches he started failed to reach their marks. On the other hand, Murphy cleverly blocked most of Callahan's leads, although the youngster did succeed in placing a number of hard lefts to Murphy's face. In the sixth Callahan found his range and time and again he planted his left either to Murphy's face or body.

In the seventh he was equally as effective, and in the eighth round he repaid every blow Murphy landed. The ninth was different, however, for Murphy fought furiously, and backing his rival against the ropes forced him to hold for the major portion of the round. The rest did wonders for Callahan, who, in the tenth, tried desperately to knock out his older but sturdier antagonist.

The Flatbush boxer took three hard blows to the stomach before he fought back seriously, but he started his rally too late to win the honors of the round, which was one of the three to which Callahan was entitled. Murphy had the better of the weights, tipping the beam at 132½ pounds, against 126¾ pounds for Callahan.

Blackton Boats Not in Match Race.

In a letter to THE TIMES Commodore Blackton says:

> A report has been circulated without my knowledge or consent that Baby Reliance, 5th, and Baby Speed Demon, 2d, were to enter a match race with Peter Pan, 6th, at Oyster Bay, L. I. Neither Mrs. Blackton nor myself authorized such a statement, nor had we any intention of doing any further racing this season. Between them our two boats have won all the important championship races in America this season in competition with boats so much faster than Peter Pan that the idea of a special race is utterly ridiculous and could only have emanated from the fertile brain of a publicity man. The two "babies" are now laid up at the builders in Algonac, Mich., where they will remain until the regular racing season reopens. Might I ask, therefore, that you publish a denial of this statement in your valued publication in order to set at rest the many misleading stories that are being circulated without foundation.

Sullivan. Therefore, all athletes who still desire to place their entries for these championships have until next Monday to do so, on the evening of which day the committee will meet and close all entries.

WOMEN PLAY HARD MATCHES ON COURTS

Mrs. Raymond and Miss Bladgen Show Class in Metropolitan Championship.

Five players reached the round before the semi-final in the tennis tournament for the women's Metropolitan championship yesterday on the West Side Tennis Club courts at Forest Hills, Long Island. The majority of the victories were in straight sets, but two interesting contests required the full limit to reach a decision. Mrs. L. Raymond found strong opposition in Miss Gertrude Della Torre, the West Side Club representative. The result of the first set indicated an easy victory for Miss Della Torre, who won, 6—1. Mrs. Raymond changed her style of playing in the next sets, and by deep lobs placed her opponent at a disadvantage. Finding these tactics successful, Mrs. Raymond continued them in the third set and captured the match.

Miss Bladgen, who has been the surprise of the tournament, made a splendid recovery in her match with Mrs. R. A. Pope. This match was the most interesting of the day and attracted a big gallery. Miss Bladgen made a poor start, but gradually recovered, and after wearing down her opponent won the second and third sets in easy fashion. Her victory places her in the bracket with Miss Clare Cassel, who defeated Miss Adele Cragin with little effort, at 6—1, 6—1. Miss De Gersdorf and Mrs. D. C. Mills were the other players to qualify for the fourth round. Miss De Gersdorf won from Miss Sidenberg, 6—1, 7—5, and Mrs. Mills disposed of Mrs. Washburn, 6—3, 6—4.

Play of an exceptional quality was witnessed in the championship doubles, in which Miss Marie Wagner, the indoor national champion, and her partner, Miss Clare Cassell, appeared to advantage. This pair is favored for the title round, and judging by their form there is little to head them off. The mixed doubles will be started this morning. The summary:

Metropolitan Championship, Women's Singles.—First Round—Mrs. Borwick defeated Miss H. Miller, 9—7, 4—3, default.

Second Round—Miss Gertrude Della Torre defeated Miss L. Vanderhoef, 6—0, 10—8; Miss Bladgen defeated Miss Borwick, 6—2, 6—1.

Pope, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Clare Cassel defeated Miss Adele Cragin, 6—1, 6—1; Miss De Gersdorf defeated Miss Sidenberg, 6—1, 7—5; Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Mrs. F. Washburn, 6—3, 6—4.

Borwick, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. George De Gersdorf and Mrs. T. Garrett, Jr., defeated Mrs. C. N. Smith and Miss Nash, 7—5, 6—2; Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. L. G. Morris defeated Mrs. E. M. Smith and Mrs. Barnes, 6—4, 6—4; Mrs. Weaver and Mrs. Wood defeated Miss Helen Bernhard and Miss Wiel, 6—0, 6—1.

Gothiel defeated Miss Bernhein, 6—1, 6—1; Miss Kissell defeated Miss Whiteside by default; Mrs. Wood defeated Miss Pollock, 12—10, 5—7, 6—4; Mrs. Washburn defeated Mrs. Ladd, 6—3, 7—5.

GRAVES LOSES HARD MATCH

Washburn, by Brilliant Rally, Wins Tennis Contest at Forest Hills.

The defeat of Louis Graves by Watson M. Washburn was the feature of the championship tennis tournament of the West Side Tennis Club yesterday on the clay courts of the club at Forest Hills, Long Island. The former Harvard champion won the match after a brilliant rally at 7—9, 6—4, 6—1. Graves outplayed his opponent in the first set, which went to deuce. He continued his long back court game in the second set, when Washburn began his lobs and brought the game even. Graves went to pieces in the third set and was unable to make any impression on the aggressive attack of Washburn.

Walter Merrill Hall reached the final round through a victory over Hugh Tallant, who gave the former ranking player a hard argument during the early stages of the contest. Tallant was at his best in the first set, but once Hall struck his pace the veteran was outclassed, failing to win a game in the final set.

Material progress was made in the doubles, two classes reaching the third round, with several interesting matches. The summary:

Class B Championship, Men's Doubles.—First Round—Hoppen and Hoppen defeated Alger and Morris, 6—1, 3—6, 6—3; Tomlin and Edwards defeated Myrick and F. Washburn, 6—1, 6—1.

Heyliman defeated Ackerland and Earle, by default; Tomlin and Edwards defeated Browne and Brinsmade, by default; Groesbeck and Bishop defeated Nearing and Post, by default; Batt and Dodge defeated Guller and Guller, 7—6, 6—4, 7—5.

Class C Championship, Doubles.—First Round—Catty and Townsend defeated Page and Cassebeer, by default; Leask and Cherry defeated A. Brown and partner; Hall and Farrington defeated Adams and Bell, by default; Becker and Warner defeated Heath and Simmons, 6—1, 6—4; Stockwell and Kenny defeated Smith and Jones, by default.

Third Round—Walter Merrill Hall defeated Hugh Tallant, 2—6, 6—3, 6—0.

The Davis Cup People Thank You.

A gratifying sign of the times and a most unusual thing is the note sent out by Julian S. Myrick, Chairman of the Davis Cup Committee of the West Side Tennis Club, in which he expresses the grateful appreciation of the Davis Cup and West Side Club committees for the high class and substantial patronage the recent championship matches received.

BRICKLEY STIRS UP FOOTBALL SQUADS

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 22.—Harvard's 'Varsity team had its first real taste of football this afternoon in spite of the heat. With the thermometer again registering above 90, Percy Haughton took his men into the shade of the Stadium and tried out all of his forty 'Varsity candidates against the scrubs. For half an hour before the scrimmage the three 'Varsity teams worked on signals and plays, and also on their defensive formations.

There was a short scrimmage against the 'Varsity and the substitutes, and then the black Jerseyed scrubs came on to the field. The first 'Varsity team played against the second eleven just 10 minutes, and in this time scored three touchdowns. The veteran backfield had lots of speed, and the scrubs acted as if they never had known how to tackle. On the second play Charley Brickley skirted the scrubs' left wing for 68 yards and a touchdown, and five plays later, on a fake kick, Brickley caught Soucy's high pass over his head and then made another sensational run, one of 38 yards, for a score. The third 'Varsity touchdown was made by Bradlee after the 'Varsity had covered a long distance with line plays.

The substitutes then played the scrubs, making several more scores, the most sensational being on a 60-yard run by Rollins. The first 'Varsity team was as follows: Coolidge, right end; Morgan, left end; Cowan, left guard; Soucy, centre; Pennock, right guard; Trumbull, right tackle; Hardwick, right end; Logan, quarter back, and Brickley, Bradlee, and Mahan, backs.

A few forward passes were tried, none succeeding, and Hardwick missing long heaves from Brickley and Mahan.

Today D. Sigourney was elected Captain of the second team. The scrubs look small in comparison with the 'Varsity squad, on which almost every sizable man on the field has found a berth.

Heat Does Not Deter Fordham.

Despite the continued hot spell yesterday, Coach Wymard put the Fordham football squad through the hardest drill seen on the Maroon gridiron this season. The squad was divided into two teams, the backs running through signal and kicking practice under the charge of Capt. Wymard. Coach Wymard took the linemen himself and spent the afternoon drilling them in the main offensive and defensive tactics used by Carlisle. As Exedine, Glenn Warner's right hand man at Carlisle for the last two seasons, is head coach at Georgetown this year, it is expected at Fordham that the Redmen's plan of battle will be used by Southerners at Washington next Saturday.

The squad was further increased when three new recruits put in their appearance. Derby and Sullivan made a good impression for a first appearance, but it is expected that they will have to go at top speed to replace H. Kane and Robbin, the two veterans remaining from last year's back field. Healy, the other new man in uniform, was tried out at left end on the scrub and put up a good tackling game in the brief scrimmage, which followed the practice. J. Conklin also showed a renewal of the good work he displayed on Fordham's right flank a year ago.

N. Y. U. Squad Resumes Training.

Under the direction of Coach "Tom" Reilly and his assistant, "Rudie" Gorsch, the New York University football squad is again hard at work on Ohio Field after a preliminary practice of two weeks at Webster, Mass. Coach Reilly will devote the next few days to light work in tackling the dummy, running back punts, kicking, and falling on the ball, with practice in starts and formations, and will follow next week with stiff work in preparation for the first game with St. Stephen's College on Oct. 3. One of the new men eligible this year will be "Chubby" Somers, star tackle on the Stevens Institute eleven in 1912, who was prevented from playing last season by the one-year rule. Prospects for the line look promising with Wiener, Mackay, and Waldman of last year, with a host of good, heavy material. In the back field Huntley, Parks, and Thompson are the veterans. One of the promising linemen will be Sokalauer, while "Rubie" Bernstein, last year's full back at Curtis High School, will strengthen the offensive.

Dalton to Help Coach Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 22.—Ensign Dalton, one of the greatest backs that ever played on a Naval Academy football team, reported as a member of the coaching staff this afternoon. Brown, the big guard, admitted by all the experts to be one of the All-America calibre will probably be another of Lieut. Howard's assistants. A further impetus was given to football by the reporting of a number of the old men a day in advance of the call for the assembly of the squad. Capt. Overesch, a powerful end, was among these, as was Harrison, the stalwart full back of last season. The others were Kennedy, a big, strong fellow, who played in some games last season, and who is likely to make one of the line positions, and Alexander and Collins, two of the best men for the vacant places behind the line.

Cornell Avoids Play in Heat.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 22.—In view of the game with Ursinus tomorrow, the Cornell football team got a let-up today from the hard driving of the last ten days. The men did not even don their uniforms, the coaches deciding that running about in the hot sun would do them no good. Coach Sharpe substituted for the signal drill an hour's blackboard task, in which the plans for tomorrow's and Saturday's games were analyzed and discussed. The line-up tomorrow will probably be as follows:

Cornell Scores Touchdown for Yale.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 22.—Tommy Cornell, who replaced Forester Ainsworth in the middle of today's Yale football practice, registered the only touchdown of the day. Straight tackle plunges were the order, and Cornell crashed through the scrubs 8 yards for the touchdown. MacNeil, right tackle, retired after being injured, Driscoll succeeding him. A 50-yard run by Harry Legore on a fake kick formation was the most brilliant feature, excepting Pumpelly's punting. Because of the heat the scrimmaging was limited to eleven minutes. The line-up: Higginbotham, left end; Capt. Talbott, left tackle; Oakes, left guard; Wiley, centre; Kasitzky, right guard; MacNeil and Driscoll, right tackle; Church, right end; Wilson, quarter back; Ainsworth, left halfback; Knowles, right halfback; Legore, fuul back.

Amherst in Good Shape Already.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Sept. 22.—The Amherst football men have been working strenuously for the last two weeks for Amherst's first tussle with Bowdoin on Saturday. Coach Reilly, the former Michigan star, who successfully coached the University of Maine team which held Yale to a scoreless tie last year, has been getting the men in excellent shape. The work has been in all rudiments of the game, and scrimmaging has been held every day. Among the veterans are Capt. Warren, Ashley, Tew, Rider, Washburn, Cooper, and Knowlton, half backs; Cross, Shumway, Lind, and Curry, linemen, and Swazy and Whitten, ends. Promising material has been found among last year's freshmen.

Rutgers Folk Going To Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 22.—Interest in the game between Princeton and Rutgers at Princeton on Saturday continues to increase here. The local collegians are in good shape and the hot weather has apparently not set them back. "Pete" Francis, a former Yale star, is the latest addition to the coaching staff. A special train will be run to the game from New York, leaving the Pennsylvania Station at Thirty-third Street at 12:20 P. M. and returning a half hour after the game.

First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Thirty-Year Gold Bonds.

In view of the default by the Birmingham, Ensley and Bessemer Railroad Company in payment of the interest on its First Mortgage Bonds, due September 1, 1914, it is evident that the holders of bonds should unite in prompt and concerted action for the protection of their interests. At the request of holders of said bonds to a large amount, the undersigned have consented to act as a committee for the bondholders, reserving the right to associate others with themselves as members of such committee.

A Protective Agreement dated September 15, 1914 has been prepared.

Holders of bonds are urged to deposit the same at once in negotiable form, with the coupon maturing September 1, 1914, and all subsequent coupons attached, with the Empire Trust Company of New York, the Depositary named in the Protective Agreement, at its office, No. 65 Cedar Street, New York City. Certificates of deposit will be issued for all bonds so deposited.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Credit Arrangements with Europe, and More Are Likely to Follow Gold Fund Plan.

Supplementing the recent decision of the Committee of Seven of bond dealers in favor of freer trading in bonds, the Stock Exchange Committee of Five has modified the restriction previously imposed upon bond trading sufficiently to give practical effect to the understanding reached by the bond dealers, many of whom of course are also members of the Stock Exchange. It is now possible to trade in bonds at lower prices than the last quotations on the Stock Exchange, but in the case of listed bonds trades at reductions in prices have to be made subject to the approval of the Stock Exchange Committee.

Meanwhile here and there something is being accomplished toward the liquidation of the stock market position. In some instances brokers are obtaining larger margins from their customers and are in turn reducing their bank loans. This movement might well be carried much further with very good results. If a systematic effort were made by all houses carrying stocks on margin to have their customers take up their stocks or, where that was impossible, to greatly increase their margins, the margin accounts would gradually be cleared up, bank loans would be reduced and the whole situation improved in a way which would redound to the benefit of the Stock Exchange community as well as to the banks, for it would ease the credit position and would lessen the obstacles which now stand in the way of resuming trading in securities. Work along this line would not be carried on under compulsion, for loans are not now being called nor collateral sold out, but to the extent to which it could be done it would simplify the problems which the existing situation presents.

The success of the New York City note offering was assured from the beginning, but it is particularly interesting and encouraging that the offering, as it has, should have commanded the support of a very large number of individual investors. It is expected that the investment demand revealed through the response to this offering will encourage investments in high grade bonds when offered on attractive terms. There will now be an opportunity to supply this demand. That is the favorable result which may be expected to flow from the lessening of the restrictions on bond trading. In due time this will point the way toward the resumption of trading in stocks, although that presents a more intricate problem than the bond market.

Although the banks had not yet received yesterday the formal request of the committee that they participate in the proposed $100,000,000 gold fund, the indications were that the plan would have the full support of the banks here. The more promptly the means of paying our obligations abroad, in gold if need be, are provided the greater will be the likelihood that we will be able to effect credit arrangements with Europe which will lessen the foreign demand upon our gold resources. The giving of proof of our willingness and of our ability to pay in gold will not lessen but will increase Europe's willingness to make credit arrangements with us in lieu of demanding payment in gold.

Some credit arrangements are being made by our banks and bankers and what we will have to pay in gold after all will not be the sum of our obligations, but merely the balance which it may not be possible to cover by exchange. The sooner assurance is given that that balance will unquestionably be paid in gold the smaller is that balance likely to become.

ANACONDA DIVIDEND CUT.

Reduction from 75 Cents to 25 Cents a Share Not Unexpected.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company reduced its quarterly dividend yesterday from 75 to 25 cents a share, payable on Oct. 14. The alteration placed the stock on a dividend basis of $1 a year in place of the $3 paid in 1913. The Amalgamated Copper Company, owner of 3,212,684 of the 4,661,480 Anaconda shares outstanding, will feel the cut in its income account. Last year the Amalgamated received from this investment $9,638,052.

The lower Anaconda dividend was not unexpected to Wall Street. The buying of copper was decidedly slack before the war began and business has been practically stagnant since.

STOCK CONTRACTS CLEARED

Congestion in Clearing House, Due to Closing of Exchange, Overcome.

The Special Committee of the Stock Exchange announced yesterday that all contracts in securities which were entered at the Clearing House on the day the Exchange closed had been completed with the exception of those made by three firms that failed on July 30.

The finished operation leaves the Clearing House books entirely free to record business when the Exchange opens up. Since the market was closed on July 30 it is said that approximately $40,000,000 worth of contracts have been taken care of by the Clearing House Committee.

The Special Committee ruled yesterday that prices for listed bonds and notes would not hereafter be kept fastened to the last quotation before the board brought an end to trading on the floor. The ruling stated that members wishing to buy or sell bonds and notes "at the closing prices of July 30 or at moderate concessions therefrom" were at liberty to do so provided that transactions were submitted in writing to the Committee on Clearing House before completion. Exchange members were advised not to send out circulars yet in which prices were quoted, while public advertisements offering listed bonds should be approved by the committee before publication.

TABULATING CITY BOND BIDS

Half the Notes More Than 100 Per Cent. Oversubscribed.

The tabulating of subscriptions to the $100,000,000 of New York City notes and revenue bonds, books for which were closed at 10 A. M. yesterday, had not been completed last night and the syndicate managers were not able to give definite figures as to the amount subscribed. Nearly half of the notes had been withdrawn by the banks in the syndicate, and it appeared that the remainder available for the public was 100 per cent. oversubscribed, making it necessary to reduce most of the allotments to half the amount asked for.

It is expected that with the completion of the lists the applications will be found to number close to 10,000, indicating the presence of many small bids. These will get the full amount of notes asked for, it being desired to get the bonds in the hands of individual investors so far as possible. Foreign subscribers also will get their full quota, as the amount of gold which will have to be shipped abroad will be reduced to the extent of the European subscriptions.

The syndicate managers, J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., could not determine what proportion of the securities would go abroad, as many of the subscriptions were made through New York institutions.

BANKS' STOCK LIST FULL OF SURPRISES

HETTY GREEN'S 30 SHARES

Frank Vanderlip Missing from Among Large Interests in National City.

Publication yesterday of lists of stockholders in some of New York City's largest banks aroused considerable interest in the financial district, as much because of the absences of expected names as of the amounts of the principal holdings. The date at which the lists were compiled was not made known, and important changes may have taken place since, although as a rule there is little activity in bank shares and the controlling interests in most institutions have been in the same hands for many years.

Among the surprises in the lists, as published by Dow, Jones & Co., was the discovery that Hetty Green, often spoken of as a very important factor in the conduct of the Chemical National, owns only 31 of the 30,000 shares of that institution. Frank Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank, is not down among the principal shareholders, while James Stillman, Chairman of the Board of Directors, holds 47,498 shares of the total of 250,000. Mr. Stillman is also a large holder in the Hanover and the Citizens' Central. J. P. Morgan & Co. have the biggest holdings of any firm.

The shareholders, capitalization, number of shares, dividends, and book value, follow:

National City Bank—Capital, $25,000; total stockholders, 1,013; book value, $230; par value, $100; annual dividend, 10 per cent. Stock also includes $10,000,000 capital of National City Company, which pays annual dividend of 6 per cent.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat market lacked buying power and, in consequence of further hedging operations against large receipts and more or less liquidation, prices were lower, closing with a slight rally but at net declines of 2½ to 3 cents. Bradstreet's visible supply statement showed an increase in the United States and Canada of 13,324,000 bushels for the week, compared with an increase of 10,186,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.12, No. 2 hard at $1.11¾, No. 1 Northern Duluth at $1.18, No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.15¼, all nominal, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo.

CORN.

The corn market was easier under liquidation and in sympathy with wheat, closing with net losses of ⅝@1¼c. Bradstreet's visible increased 340,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 1,272,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 88c, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive, and strictly prime Argentine at 80c, nominal, delivered.

OATS.

Export sales of oats were estimated at about 800,000 bushels through outports, but this failed to hold prices, which declined ⅝@⅞c, in sympathy with wheat and corn and under liquidating sales. Bradstreet's visible increased 1,600,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 2,207,000 last year. The local cash market was quiet; standard white quoted at 54½@55c; No. 2, 55@55½c; No. 3, 54@54½c; No. 4, 53½@54c; ordinary clipped white, 56@57½c; fancy clipped white, 56½@58½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Trading in the provision market was extremely quiet, and prices developed weakness in sympathy with a decline in the hog market and with grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 13,000 head; estimated for Wednesday, 20,000 head; Kansas City received 12,000 head and Omaha 4,500 head.

COTTON.

That extraordinary difficulties have been encountered in adapting actual trading methods to the provisions of the new cotton futures law was further emphasized yesterday by the presence here of a representative of the Department of Agriculture in conference with members of the New York Stock Exchange. It was said that the object of these conferences was to decide upon the rules and regulations which would be used by the department in the administration of the so-called "Lever law." No announcement has yet been made regarding the syndicate plans for adjusting the remaining interest, but it is believed that results of recent hard work on the problems confronting the trade will be reflected by official statements during the next few days. Some of the spot cotton handlers here with Eastern belt connections reported rather freer offerings from their territory at slightly easier prices, but while the market at Augusta was ¼c lower Norfolk reported an advance of ⅛c, and advices from the Western belt indicated continued steadiness.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A weak undertone prevailed in the market for cottonseed oil, and closing bids were 24 points lower for September and 3@10 points lower for other positions.

The range of prices was as follows:

| | High. | Low. | Close. | Prev. Close. |

COFFEE.

The reconstruction of differences between the American and Brazilian markets made further progress during yesterday's operations, prices in the local spot market being generally lower for Santos grades, while cost and freight offers were 5 to 10 points higher.

According to a press cable from Rio, the Government is considering means of protecting the market against the influence of the absence of foreign demand, and it was said that the German Government is negotiating with the State of Sao Paulo for the purchase of its stock of 3,200,000 sacks, at prices now prevailing in Hamburg. In the local spot market Rio 7s were quoted at 6⅝c and Santos 4s at 10¾c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts for week, 49,136 packages; last week, 61,245 packages. Exports to tropical countries for week, 331 packages; imports for week, 857 packages. The fresh goods did not sell as fast as they came in and receivers were unwilling to accumulate them any more largely. At the close, fancy creamery is about steady at 30½@31c, the latter for very high scoring lots. A good deal of the stock is grading firsts and seconds and are easier bought than sold in the range of our quotations. Creamery, extras, 30½@31c; firsts, 28@30c; seconds, 25½@27½c; thirds, 24@25c; State dairy, finest, 29@29½c; good to prime, 27@28½c; common to fair, 23@26½c; process, extras, 26@26½c; firsts, 24@25½c; lower grades, 22@24c; imitation creamery, firsts, 24@24½c; ladies, current make, firsts, 23@23½c; seconds, 22@22½c; lower grades, 20½@21½c; packing stock, June make, fine, 22c; current make, No. 2, 20½@21c; lower grades, 19@20c.

EGGS.—Receipts for week, 91,267 cases. There has been a steady accumulation of eggs in first hands, and prices have fallen for both fresh and held stock. At the close the dullness is intensified by the Jewish holidays, and values are unsettled and uncertain. ## Birmingham, Ensley and Bessemer Railroad Company

Independent Bondholders Protective Committee

Under date of September 1, 1914, the Birmingham, Ensley and Bessemer Railroad Company defaulted upon the interest due on its First Mortgage bonds. Before the default occurred action was in progress to investigate the affairs of the Railroad and ascertain the facts in regard to its financial condition. The default, the Receivership and the situation of the Railroad since September 1, 1914, have accentuated the necessity of an investigation into the affairs of the Railroad by an independent Committee and such subsequent action as may be required. Messrs. Stone & Webster have been retained to investigate the Railroad's finances and are now engaged in such investigation. The undersigned have, upon request, agreed to act as a Committee to take such action as may be possible to protect the interests of the bondholders. A protective agreement has been prepared and the bondholders are requested to deposit their bonds at once in negotiable form, with the coupon maturing September 1, 1914, and all subsequent coupons, with the American Trust Company, Boston, which will issue certificates of deposit for all bonds so deposited. Agents in other cities will also be authorized to receive the bonds.

For further information in regard to the protective agreement apply to the Secretary.

TESTIFY ON COAST TRAFFIC.

Witnesses Questioned on the Southern Pacific's Competition.

Counsel for the Government in the Sherman law suit against the Southern Pacific Railroad endeavored yesterday to show that the connection between the Southern Pacific and the Central Pacific tended to stifle competition in the West. The hearing was held in the Custom House before Frank R. Hanna, the special examiner.

James C. Lincoln of the Traffic Bureau of the Merchants' Association was questioned by James W. Orr, Special Assistant Attorney General, regarding competition between the Southern and Union Pacific before 1901. A question whether the Southern Pacific then did not control traffic to the Pacific Coast by "indirect methods" caused a protest from J. P. Blair, general counsel for the Southern Pacific.

"The Southern Pacific could control the traffic," replied Mr. Lincoln, "because it was superior in some ways, but I don't know that it used any indirect methods. No company could very easily dominate the situation now."

Thomas M. Schumacher, Chairman of the Chicago & Rock Island, described his own connection with the Pacific Railroads and the routes by which the trunk lines entered California.

The hearing will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Monday.....6@7 " " " " "

Big Sale of Domets Reported.

Among other things reported in the cotton goods trade yesterday was the purchase of 2,000,000 yards of domets by a manufacturer of children's goods. It is understood that the goods will come from several mills. The purchase is taken in the trade as an indication that cotton is about as low now as it is going this year.

Much Duck Is Going Abroad.

Several kinds of cotton goods are now being sent abroad from this country, and, while it cannot be said that much of this trading has been direct with any of the belligerent nations, it is generally conceded that the goods are being taken for war purposes. Loose-woven cottons, suitable for bandages, are being exported, as are cotton blankets and other articles made from this staple. The call for cotton duck, both wide and army, is growing heavier. One of the local houses, which is admirably situated to handle this latter trade, is sending more of these goods to Europe all the time. The consignments are not direct from buyer to seller, however.

Gray Goods Again Quiet.

Business was again limited in the local gray goods market yesterday. There was some trading done on 38½-inch 64-60s at 4⅛ cents for nearby delivery, and there were several good-sized bids for that construction, for 1915 delivery, at 4 cents. A few sales of 38½-inch 60-48s were made at 4⅛ cents for quick delivery, while 39-inch 68-72s were moved in a small way at 4⅞ cents. There was not much doing in drills and sheetings. The day's closing prices follow:

Improvement in Heavy Cottons.

A much-improved demand for heavy cotton goods, colored and otherwise, is reported to have developed in the last few days, both from the jobbing and cutting-up trades. Salesmen who were sending in practically no orders a month ago are now turning them in in good quantities, much of the business coming from the Middle, Far, and North Wests. The Eastern buyers are ordering better, too, but little can be said of the Southerners. As yet there has been little interference with this trade by the talked-of shortage in dyestuffs, and the bulk of the business has been taken at prices which have prevailed for some little time, despite the efforts of first hands to advance them.

Hard Coal Conditions Good.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that conditions in the anthracite market are about all that could reasonably be desired by the producing interests, as the demand is sufficient to absorb the output without being so urgent as to lead to a flood of complaints from retailers who are embarrassed by delay in getting their orders filled. It continues: "The limited inquiry for bituminous indicates that most consumers have contracted for their requirements and so are out of the market. At the same time some of the remaining buyers are asking for heavier shipments, with the result that while the spot market is quiet the mines are a little more active."

Better Business in Shirts.

Shirt manufacturers find that the order so far obtained on merchandise for next Spring are for larger quantities than usual. Colored effects are those most sought, the situation in dyestuffs probably accounting for this. The concerns, which either make their own fabrics or do their own dyeing, feel no uneasiness regarding a possible shortage of materials in the future. Spot business in the shirt end is chiefly concerned at the present time with styles on the stiff cuff order and the demand, from all reports, is of a very satisfactory nature. If the war continues for any considerable period manufacturers believe that lines gotten out for next Fall may feel some effect, in that domestic will have to be substituted for the foreign fabrics hitherto used in certain grades of merchandise.

To Push Other Crops.

It was suggested here yesterday that some of the leading merchants get together and organize a movement for the purpose of bringing about the diversification of crops in the South. This is admittedly a needed reform, and while it has been preached for the last ten years or so there has been little heed paid to it by the farmers, with the result that the cotton crop is getting bigger every year that climatic conditions are normal. It was said by one man that the small grower, for instance, will grow cotton right up to his front door and then will take it into town and sell it so that he can buy for his mule fodder that he could easily have raised. Little faith is pinned on the belief that the cotton acreage will be curtailed next year, as the rule among the growers, it is said, is to leave the curtailment to your neighbor and plant your full acreage yourself. With everybody doing it, bumper crops are the result.

Another "Gentlemen's" Agreement

Much amusement is shown by local handlers of gray goods over the result of the meeting held by representatives of several Southern cotton mills recently at Greenville, S. C. The meeting, it is said, was held with the idea of coming to some agreement about curtailing production in the mills represented; in other words, to decide whether the mills should run forty hours a week while trade is uneven or sixty hours. By "gentlemen's" agreement it was decided to operate on a forty-hour basis. But reports from the South say that all the mills concerned are hammering away just as hard now as they were before the meeting, and thus another "gentlemen's" agreement has gone the way of all flesh. The silk trade has long held the palm for broken agreements, but the cotton trade is said to be running a close second now.

DIRECTORS GET ACQUAINTED

Six Members of Federal Reserve Bank of N. Y. Meet Informally.

The six Directors-elect of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York got together for the first time yesterday at the Hanover National Bank on the invitation of its President, William Woodward. Besides Mr. Woodward, the elected Directors are Henry R. Towne of New York, William B. Thompson of Yonkers, Leslie R. Palmer of Croton-on-Hudson, Franklin D. Locke of Buffalo, and Robert H. Treman of Ithaca.

Three Directors are yet to be appointed by the Federal Reserve Board, so that the six who met yesterday have no authority to take any action. Several of them were not acquainted with each other, and one of them said afterward that all that was done was to lunch together and become known to each other.

BUSINESS NOTES

Robert J. F. Schwarzenbach, a member of the Board of Managers of the Silk Association of America, and well known to the silk trade, has returned from abroad.

After Oct. 1 the account of the Pelletier Company of Sioux City, Iowa, will be handled by Alfred Fantl, resident buyer, 113 West Thirty-second Street.

ONE DOLLAR PER PROTEST.

Grievance That Importers Have Against a Recent Ruling.

Much adverse comment is heard in importing circles regarding the action of Government officers in the matter of protest fees. Shortly after the passage of the new tariff law, the Treasury Department at Washington issued instructions to collectors that where importers filed two separate protests on one entry, $1 was a sufficient compliance with the law. In other words $1 was a sufficient fee for both protests.

It was said yesterday that there were instances where importers offered $2 for two such protests, and were told at the local Custom House that $1 was enough. The Court of Customs Appeals ing to the validity of the protests to the quires the payment of $1, with the result that the Treasury Department, it is charged, has shifted its ground to conform to the judicial ruling. Importers, whose cases have been put on trial before the Board of General Appraisers since the resumption of hearings the first of this month, are finding that Assistant Attorney General Hanson and his assistants are objecting the validity of the protests to the board. The board under these circumstances has dismissed such protests without affording relief to merchants.

The Assistant Attorney General said yesterday that while he regretted the situation in which many importers find themselves, the mandate of the court must be followed. "It must be remembered," said Mr. Hanson, "that the regulations of the Treasury Department are subject to judicial review and may be superseded by the court. This explains the situation in which some importers now find themselves." It was brought out that other importers and their attorneys, who were skeptical regarding the validity of the Treasury's early instructions, insisted on paying $1 on each protest in spite of the instructions to the contrary.

THE TAHOMA ABANDONED.

Crew of the Lost Revenue Cutter Has Probably Been Saved.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 22.—The United States revenue cutter Tahoma, which struck a reef on Sunday, ninety miles west of Kiska Island, in the Aleutian group, has been abandoned, according to a cable dispatch received to-day from Seward, Alaska.

DUTIES ON BUTTONS.

A Specific Provision Governs Against a General One.

In sustaining a protest by Appelbee & Neuman, the Board of General Appraisers yesterday held that under the new tariff, as under previous acts, a specific provision for an article enumerated in the law must prevail in its classification against a general provision which clearly covers the same merchandise.

The merchandise, the subject of the decision, was pearl buttons of a special design, shape, and strength. The testimony showed that they are used, made for, and commercially known as shoe buttons. Collector Malone took duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 339, Act of 1913, specifying "buttons of shell and pearl below twenty-six lines." The importers contended that the goods should be returned at 15 per cent. ad valorem under the same paragraph as "shoe buttons."

Judge Hay, in his decision, lays down rules of general application when he says:

"It is a well-established principle in the construction of tariff laws that an eo nomine provision is to be taken as more specific than a general provision which clearly covers the same merchandise, and that wherever an article is designated by name it should be classified under the paragraph wherein such name appears rather than under some paragraph under the general terms of which it would appropriately come."

EXPORTS INCREASING.

Those Last Week Show a Large Gain Over the Week Before.

General exports, exclusive of specie, took a heavy upward move with the week ended last Saturday, according to the Custom House statement issued yesterday. The exports for the week aggregated $17,208,199, compared with $13,801,848 the week before, and $12,210,989 the week before that. Last week's gain over the preceding week was $3,301,848. at the Custom House it was said that last week's heavy exports were due to large purchases of foodstuffs by European nations now at war, besides large shipments of copper. The greater safety now prevailing in the ocean lanes was another reason assigned for the increase in general exports.

Exports from here the corresponding week of 1913 were valued at $14,561,782. Thus far this year the exports are $620,021,583, compared with $647,260,077 the corresponding period of 1913. Exports of domestics and cotton duck from New York last week were valued at $302,492, against $218,455 the week before, and $177,606 the week before that. The greatest amount shipped to a single country, $135,402 worth of cotton goods, went to the Philippines. Cuba led the week before with $71,901. Not a dollar's worth of merchandise was shipped out of this port to Germany or Austria-Hungary last week.

AWARDS SUBWAY CONTRACT

Service Board Accepts Bid for Park Place Section.

The Public Service Commission yesterday awarded the contract for the construction of Section 2 of the Park Place, William, and Clark Street subway route to Smith, Hauser & McIsaac, Incorporated. They were the lowest bidders, with $2,254,670, and agreed to comply with the recommendation of Alfred Craven, chief engineer of the commission, that in consequence of the magnitude of the work they increase their capital stock from $250,000 to $500,000.

This section is a two-track line, to be operated by the Interborough. It begins in Beekman Street, about sixty-two feet west of William Street, and runs down William Street to Hanover Square and Pearl Street. Owing to the nature of the soil, it will require unusual attention to underpinning. The work must be done in twenty-eight months.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The centre of the disturbance that was over Lake Superior Monday night has passed to the St. Lawrence Valley, but a belt of lower pressure extends thence southwestwardly to the Gulf Coast. This disturbance has been attended by showers in the last twenty-four hours in the South Plains States, the Mississippi Valley, and the upper lake region. There were heavy rains in parts of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. Fair weather continued throughout the East, the North Plains States, and the Rocky Mountain region and on the Pacific Slope.

Temperatures have fallen decidedly over the Southern Plains States, the Mississippi Valley, and the upper lake region, and are rising again in the Northwest.

Unusually warm weather for the season continued in the East. At Hartford, Conn., and Scranton, Penn., the highest temperatures of record for these stations for September, 92 degrees, was recorded Tuesday afternoon.

Indications are that there will be scattered showers Wednesday and probably Thursday along the West Gulf Coast and in the East Gulf and South Atlantic States. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday, although it will be unsettled with scattered showers Wednesday in the North Atlantic States.

Temperatures will fall Wednesday in the North Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the Gulf States, and Wednesday night and Thursday in the Middle Atlantic States. Temperature changes elsewhere will be unimportant.

Winds along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate to fresh southwest, shifting to west, Wednesday and Thursday; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate variable, becoming west; South Atlantic Coast, moderate variable.

FORECASTS TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and Northern New England—Unsettled and cooler Wednesday; Thursday fair.

EDUCATION NOTES.

At its meeting on Sept. 30 the Board of Education will take action on the report of its Committee on Care of Buildings, finding William R. Hayward, licensed fireman in Public School 14, Richmond, guilty of charges of neglect of duty preferred against him and recommending his dismissal from the Department of Education.

The portable building at King's Highway and East Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn, has been made an annex to Public School 99 in that borough.

It has been decided to hire Riverdale Hall, at 240th Street and Riverdale Avenue, the Bronx, from Oct. 1 to Jan. 1, once a week, at $12 a night, for lecture purposes.

The basement of St. John's Lutheran Church, 169th Street and Fulton Avenue, the Bronx, will be leased as an annex to Public School 2.

The services of James V. Quinlan as a temporary topographical draughtsman in the office of the Committee on Sites have been dispensed with and Malcolm Graham has been employed in his place.

MAYOR VETOES GARAGE BILL

Mitchel Says Oil Traps Are Necessary to Prevent Sewer Explosions.

Mayor Mitchel vetoed yesterday the ordinance of the Board of Aldermen which would have relieved garage owners from the obligation of installing an oil separator, trap, or other similar apparatus connected with the house drain, so as to prevent volatile inflammable oils from flowing into the sewers. In doing so the Mayor added a communication giving the reports of the Bureau of Sewers and the Fire Commissioner on the explosion which took place on Monday at Forty-second Street and First Avenue, in the sewer opposite the United States mail garage, bearing out his contention as to the danger of the presence of gasoline in the ordinary sewers.

In discussing the reason for his veto the Mayor gave figures of the waste oil products, including 40 per cent. of gasoline, found in the sewers near garages, and pointed out that thrifty garage owners were themselves accustomed to collect these products and to sell them. Then he took up the question of the expense of installation, which had been represented at the public hearings as from $600 to $1,000, and gave particulars of estimates which he had received for doing the work at very much lower rates.

Finally the Mayor analyzed the reports upon a number of recent sewer explosions, and showed that they proved conclusively the presence of gasoline and other oil products in the sewers in quantities which were dangerous to the city.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Big Deal on Lower Hudson Street Pending for Commercial Structure—Fulton Street Sale—Litigation on Chapin Home Property—$50,000 Montclair Sale—Commercial Leases.

A deal of more than ordinary importance in the lower part of the old Greenwich Village section is pending, it was learned yesterday, by the James Pyle estate and a large commercial firm which requires more room in that locality. The deal involves the sale by the Pyle estate of its extensive holdings on Hudson, Watts, and Broome Streets, consisting of the entire block front on the east side of Hudson Street, between Broome and Watts Streets, being 216 to 228 Hudson Street, fronting 168.3; also the adjoining property from 90 to 108 Watts Street, 195 feet, and 575 to 579 and 583 to 589 Broome Street, 66 and 135.2 feet frontage respectively. The intervening parcels at 581 and 583 Broome Street are owned by the Kelly estate, and these may be included in the prospective deal if all of the Pyle properties are taken.

The parcels are now covered by old one to three story houses, and if the deal goes through it is the plan of the new owners to erect a large commercial structure. The plot is within a block of Canal Street. No confirmation of the projected sale could be obtained from the representatives of the Pyle estate.

Sale in Fulton Street.

The downtown section furnished a deal in the sale of the six-story building at 141 Fulton Street, covering a plot 25.4 by 75.6 between Broadway and Nassau Streets by the Eva L. Kip estate. It has not changed hands for about fifty years. The buyer is stated to be the Royton Realty Company, of which Harold C. Mathews is President. The property adjoins the Bennett Building on the northwest corner of Nassau Street, and negotiations are pending for the leasing of the building to one tenant. It has been held at about $100,000.

Chapin Home Property in Litigation.

The Akron Building (Bing & Bing) Company has rejected title to the southerly half of the Chapin Home property, 150 by 100 feet, on the north side of Sixty-sixth Street, 170 feet east of Lexington Avenue, and brought suit to recover the money paid on the contract of purchase.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that the deed from the city of New York to the Chapin Home is invalid because it was made for practically a nominal consideration, whereas the Constitution of the State prohibits municipalities from so disposing of their property.

It appears that Chapin Home has been in occupation of the property since about 1870, when it was given a lease by the city for ninety-nine years, at a nominal rent.

In 1907 the home procured an act of the Legislature authorizing the city to convey the property to the home, but it is claimed that this legislative act is violative of the constitutional provision above referred to. The consideration paid by the Chapin Home to the city for the deed of the property was $5,000, together with an agreement by the home that it would provide 5,475 days each year of free care and maintenance to charity patients.

Park Avenue Buyer.

C. Alfred Capen is the buyer of the four-story building at 1,143 Park Avenue, on lot 16 by 70, adjoining the northeast corner of Ninety-first Street, reported yesterday as purchased from Charles Wanninger.

$500,000 Park Avenue Apartment.

Plans were filed yesterday for a twelve-story apartment house on the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street. It will have a frontage of 90.5 feet on the avenue by 125 feet on the street, with a façade of brick, limestone, and terra cotta, the general design being of the French Renaissance. The building will accommodate twenty-four families. The Four Hundred Park Avenue Company, S. Fullerton Weaver, President, is the owner. Warren & Wetmore are the architects and have placed the cost at $500,000.

Important Lease in Old Drygoods District.

George R. Read & Co. have leased for Ellen W. Duryea the entire six-story and basement building at 484 to 490 Broome Street, at the northwest corner of Wooster Street, containing 52,000 square feet of floor space, to the American Tobacco Company for a long term of years.

Bronx Sales.

D. Thomas Costar has sold to an investor for cash a plot, 200 by 125 feet, on the easterly side of Oneida Avenue, running through from 236th Street to 237th Street.

The single family house at 1,466 Rosedale Avenue, on lot 25 by 95, has been sold by John A. Steinmetz for the River Realty Company to Alphonse Brueckner, and the same broker has also sold for a client the two-family house at 653 East 165th Street, on lot 17 by 100.

J. S. Maxwell sold for a client to Elizabeth H. Smythe the property at 768 East 187th Street.

Long Island.

The Neponsit Realty Company has sold on its development at Neponsit, West Rockaway, to Elizabeth G. Kennedy a plot, 80 by 100, on Seminole Street, facing Jamaica Bay; to Harry Bills a plot, 40 by 100, on Seminole Street, and to John McCarthy, a plot, 60 by 100, on Adirondack Boulevard.

At Bayshore Terry & Brewster have sold the Sara W. Coe property on Awixa Avenue to Francis H. Thurber; the Frank M. Randall property on Fordham Place to Roy B. Davis for an all-year residence, and the W. A. Swan place on Clinton Avenue to R. Lubal.

The M. Morgenthau Jr. Company conducted an auction sale of part of the Healy property consisting of three cottages and seven plots located on Cornaga Avenue, Grove Street, Seaview Avenue and Loretta Place, Saturday. Cottage on Plot 10 was sold to H. Mulhauser at $22,000; cottage on Plot 4 to William E. Morgan at $6,350, and cottage on plot 5 to Arthur J. Rieser at $8,050. The purchasers of the plots were G. G. Brooks, L. F. Jacobs, Arthur Butler, and Mrs. Edward C. Wells, the prices ranging from $2,000 to $7,550 per plot. The total amount realized at the sale was $59,375.

PULITZER VALUATION RISES TO $18,637,545

Appraiser Now Includes Three Associated Press Memberships at $240,000 Each.

WHITE PAPER BILLS HIGHER

Deduction of $264,600 for Increase on That Score—Estimates Put on Good Will Revised.

The reappraisal of the estate of Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of The New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch at the time of his death on Oct. 29, 1911, was filed by Transfer Tax Appraiser Joseph I. Berry yesterday. The supplemental report was occasioned by the refusal of Surrogate Cohalan to confirm the original appraisal, filed on Nov. 21, 1911, the Surrogate contending that the estate had been "grossly undervalued," especially as to the newspaper properties.

The new report shows a net estate of $18,637,545, as compared with the original appraisal of $16,843,484.01, the increase being due to an appraisal at $240,000 each of the three Associated Press memberships held by the estate and the good-will of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The original appraisal gave no value to The Associated Press memberships, they being considered as included in the value of the newspapers and without any separate value. The good-will of The Post-Dispatch was placed at $500,000 under the old report, whereas the new estimate is $1,964,110.

The total value of the Press Publishing Company, which publishes the morning and evening editions of The New York World, is placed, under the new report, at $3,314,316.25. The value of one share is $662.86, and the estate holds 4,990 shares of the 5,000 issued, making the estate's holdings $3,307,671.40, of which $811,802.25 is named as good will. The original appraisal placed a value of $1,000,000 on this good will.

The total value of the Pulitzer Publishing Company, which publishes the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is placed under the new appraisal at $2,921,527.75, and the 9,164 shares of stock held by the estate out of a total of 10,000 shares, are valued at $2,677,262.60. The original report valued this stock at $1,115,717.

White Paper Contracts.

In arriving at his new conclusions Appraiser Berry followed a theory which he explained in his report:

The stock of the Press Publishing Company and the Pulitzer Publishing Company has been valued by me by adding to the appraised value of the tangible property of each of these corporations a good-will value consisting of the value of Associated Press memberships, and all other elements of good-will arrived at on the following theory:

By taking the average annual earnings of each of said corporations for four years preceding Mr. Pulitzer's death as a basis for capitalization; and in view of the fact that these corporations enjoyed, during the years for which the earnings are set forth, advantageous contracts for the purchase of white print paper at a figure far below the market value of such paper during those years, and the further fact that the contracts for the supply of the said paper were about to terminate within a few months subsequent to the death of the testator and that new contracts for such paper at the increased cost had been made before decedent's death, I have deducted from the average annual earnings 60 per cent. of the difference between the market value of the said white print paper and its actual cost under the expiring contracts, because, while in my opinion these earnings were extraordinarily large by reason of these contracts, and an intending purchaser of the said newspapers would be confronted with this increased cost of white paper as affecting future earnings, nevertheless such a purchaser experienced in the management of a great daily publication would undoubtedly anticipate being able by practicing economies in other details of its administration to offset at least 40 per cent. of this increased expenditure during future years.

I have also deducted in addition thereto the value of the services rendered to each corporation by the testator, an extraordinary newspaper genius, whose services, in my opinion, were reasonably worth the sum of $100,000 a year to each corporation, and a further sum equal to 6 per cent. on the capital invested.

In further explanation the report contains the following table in respect to the publications:

Bonuses to Employes.

The further information is given that 50,000 tons of white print paper are required annually for the publication of the morning and evening editions of The World, and 13,000 tons are required for The Post-Dispatch, and that this difference is important for the fact that the increased cost of $7 a ton on the paper makes it more profitable to get out the St. Louis paper than it does the New York papers, as far as this one item is concerned. The report also states:

It appears that of the bonuses paid to employes, at least $120,000 were contracted for services rendered to the Press Publishing Company, and this amount is allowed as a proper expenditure during the four years preceding the testator's demise.

The final balance of average annual earnings with the aforesaid deductions I have capitalized at ten (10) per cent., one of the percentages indicated in the memorandum of the learned Surrogate, because of the hazardous nature of these newspapers enterprises.

Expert Testimony Taken.

Mr. Berry sought the advice of newspaper men in this and other cities and held hearings to which he summoned Henry Watterson, Louisville Courier Journal; Adolph S. Ochs, NEW YORK TIMES; Lewis A. Leonard, newspaper broker; Frank A. Munsey, New York Press; Arthur Brisbane, Evening Journal; Henry L. Stoddard, Evening Mail; Don C. Seitz and Florence D. White, both of The World; Charles M. Palmer, newspaper broker, and others.

Col. Watterson said he knew of only one other as hazardous as the newspaper, and that was the hotel business. Asked what was the hazard of the business, the Colonel replied:

"That is rather a complicated question. The newspaper, like the hotel, depends absolutely upon the individual capacity and aptitude of one single source of its existence; that is, the man who conducts it. Take any eminent man away from a newspaper which he has created or in which he has power, and that property becomes extremely hazardous, unless there were a successor equally able and trained to that particular business."

The Colonel did not consider the keen competition in the newspaper business in New York City a hazard. There was plenty of room for all that were now doing business here, he said.

"Was the death of Mr. Pulitzer of serious consequence to The World and The Post-Dispatch?" Col. Watterson was asked.

"I know nothing of The Post-Dispatch," he replied. "I know The World pretty well, and all the circumstances that entered into the purchase by Mr. Pulitzer and followed his management of the paper, and, of course, Mr. Pulitzer took it over and blew the breath of life into it. Now that property may live upon its momentum.

"It may be managed, as it seems to be managed, by most competent persons, and yet, in a twinkle of an eye, the whole property may be wrecked by some incompetent act. I understand that the paper is edited by a Board of Directors. You might as well try to run a locomotive by a Board of Directors. The moment the wisdom of one man or two men is superseded by the folly of one man or two men the efforts of a lifetime may then and there be wrecked. It has been done repeatedly."

Col. Watterson declared that it was his opinion Mr. Pulitzer was worth at least 100,000 yearly to The World. He was worth much more, the Colonel said, answering a further question. Each of the witnesses agreed that the least value of Mr. Pulitzer to The World was $100,000.

Mr. Ochs said he would have been greatly puzzled to estimate the value of the good-will on the day following the death of Mr. Pulitzer. Some persons could have purchased the property and destroyed whatever good-will there was, where others might have enhanced the value of the good-will, as his sons had shown ability to do now.

Asked if he was acquainted with the services Mr. Pulitzer rendered to The New York World, Mr. Ochs replied:

"Mr. Pulitzer was a genius, one of the ablest men this country has ever had in journalism, and his success was a personal achievement."

Mr. Ochs thought the services of Mr. Pulitzer would have been worth about $500,000 a year to some other newspaper. Concerning the hazards of the newspaper business, he said:

Answering a question on cross-examination, Mr. Ochs explained that he did not want to appear as reflecting upon the character of The World in any sense.

"What I have in view," he said, "is the fact that The World largely realized upon its popularity, its very large circulation, its special news gathering facilities, and its revenue derived from very large advertising patronage that barely pays the cost of the space it occupies in the paper at the actual cost of the paper itself. I refer to the 'help' and 'want' ads of The World, which I think The World carries at a loss."

Paid Nothing for Membership.

Mr. Seitz, who is business manager of The World, was questioned concerning what he knew about the price Mr. Pulitzer paid for membership in The Associated Press.

"Mr. Pulitzer never paid anything in The Associated Press," he said. "The Press Publishing Company paid nothing for its membership in The Associated Press. The Press Publishing Company loaned The Associated Press $2,000 and took therefor bonds for that amount."

Lewis A. Leonard of Troy, N. Y., an appraiser of newspaper properties, testified that he figured the good-will of The World at the time of Mr. Pulitzer's death as worth $800,000 to $1,000,000. Mr. Palmer thought the fair market value of The World and its good-will on Oct. 29, 1911, was about $5,000,000, speculative.

Mr. Brisbane said he thought the profits of The World and The Post-Dispatch depended more upon Mr. Pulitzer's personal work and individual contribution than upon the entire staffs combined.

The estate has paid a transfer tax of $410,000 into the State Treasury to save the 5 per cent. that accrues to its credit for prompt payment. This is in excess of the tax which the estate will be required to pay under the new appraisal, which is estimated by attorneys for the estate at about $335,000. Hornblower, Potter & Miller had charge of the case for the estate, Halsey Malone of that firm having taken care of the details when Mr. Hornblower died soon after his appointment to the Court of Appeals.
